

SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN

MIFFLINTOWN, Wednesday, August 13, 1879.

B. F. SCHAEFER, Editor and Proprietor.

Republican State Ticket.

FOR STATE TREASURER, SAMUEL BUTLER, OF CHESTER COUNTY.

Republican County Ticket.

FOR SHERIFF, Lieut. JAMES H. KELLY, OF JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP.

FOR REGISTER AND RECORDER, HENRY CAYEN, Esq., OF FAYETTE TOWNSHIP.

FOR JURY COMMISSIONER, Capt. JOHN P. WHARTON, OF POST ROYAL.

"Will Wallace vote for Bart?"

The wheat crop in this country is not as large as it was last year.

Look out for a Democratic howl. Bart is getting ready to come home.

Yellow fever is not making the progress in the South that it did last season.

The large railroad corporations are fighting for the railway control of this continent.

There was a wonderful falling off in both the Democratic and Green back votes in the Kentucky election.

It is reported that 5,000 to 8,000 persons have gone to the British possessions to live. Hope it is true. Hope they may never come back.

This is the turning month in the wheat market. There is a gain in improvement in the crop in Europe, grain will be considerably higher than it is now.

An election fraud investigation case in Cincinnati reveals that certain so-called political clubs were not political clubs, but organizations for the purpose of getting money out of whomsoever had it to pay. They were like sheep in the market.

The Democracy in this county are counting on the plan to secure about 10 Republican votes in each township to secure the election of their candidates. They understand the seductive art. Don't let them run away with you.

The North American reads the fate of the Greenback party in the late Kentucky election, as follows: "The fate of the Greenback party was fore-shadowed at the Kentucky election. Last year the soft-money carrier carried five out of seven Legislative districts, while this year they have barely secured one."

"Canal projects are booming. Two companies are being formed to intercept the Florida peninsula, so as to shorten the sailing distance between New Orleans and Europe or New York. The scheme is practicable, and will probably be carried out rather sooner than later, the value of a canal just there being incontestable."

The Field himself must have been abroad in the land within the past ten days, if the rumors that have taken place are a standard to judge of his personal work. We publish, among the items, brief notices of a few of the field's outrages. We would gladly abstain from publishing the few, but a faithful chronicler of events cannot pass them by.

The North American says: Again it may be said for the enlightenment of the Greenbackers, that we have received $120,000,000 of bonds with greenbacks, holders' option, since the first of January. Now that the Republican party has made greenbacks the equivalent of gold, nobody demands payment in gold. The interest legally payable in gold is taken in Treasury notes.

As exchange says: All accounts agree that the coming fall will see a mighty uprising of the colored population of the South in an excruciating struggle which will exceed anything that has yet taken place in that section. It is an ascertained fact that every colored man and woman in the old slave States of the Mississippi Valley are hoarding their earnings in anticipation of this great movement, which is the only theme of sermons, prayers and conversation in that section.

The English people across the water were quite severe in their criticism when the Beecher scandal was uppermost in the public mind; but now they are busy with a scandal that is as unpleasant as was the New York trouble. One of their prominent preachers, Rev. Newman Hall, took his wife into court for divorce, claiming a lawful separation on the grounds of infidelity on the part of the wife. Mrs. Hall was not to be put off in that way; she turned about and says he is doubly guilty of the things that he charges on her; and now all England is in a flurry. It always has been so, and always will be so; only those who are faithful can endure. The English Court granted the preacher a divorce on Saturday.

The looseness of marriage relation is subject for serious consideration. Almost every day brings the information of the unfaithfulness of people to their marriage vows—of people in every phase of life—people in the most obscure walks of life, people in church, and people outside of the church in prominent places in life.

To-day it is Hall, and Conkling, in Church and State, and thousands of obscure people—every community has its percentage. Those in the lowest scale, like Albright, resort to the murderer's knife or pistol; those on a higher plane resort to the courts. Every phase of society needs to call to mind.

Certainly not everybody has fallen into licentiousness. In this time and generation, like in all the past, the Lord will get his own, and the Devil will get the rest.

Tax following intelligence is from Lebanon, this State: The greatest consternation exists in insurance circles in various sections of Lebanon county.

The Raber insurance managers are becoming leary, and insurance brokers are trembling in anticipation of the coming crack of doom. Some of the prisoners convicted of the murder of Raber on Tuesday of last week sent peremptory orders to certain parties residing in the neighborhood of Indian-town Gap to call and see them inside of ten days, and if they failed to do so an officer would be sent to fetch them. This fact is exciting considerable comment. Mr. Miller, the prosecuting lawyer for the prosecution, says that a number of men near Indian-town Gap were under the eyes of the law for similar to that which Drews, Stiechler, Brandt, Weise, Hammel and Zochman were convicted. One man, it is said, has made $15,000 in this kind of insurance business, and another made about $12,000. These parties, it is alleged, have agents in Reading and Lebanon.

The Democracy at Washington and in Ohio are perplexed over the accidental folding and mailing of large numbers of Republican speeches by the Democratic Committee at Washington, which was due to the illiteracy of some of the new Democratic appointees. They found, it is said, the Republican speeches printed upon better paper than those of the Democrats, and not knowing the difference folded them and put them into envelopes which had been franked by General Irving's autograph. It is now believed that many sound political sermons have been sent upon their mission of good by reason of this accident.

It is worth while for the Democracy to talk of respecting the vote of the people, when they made war to overthrow the verdict of the polls in 1860? Rebellion was not resistance to the result of the polls. When ever you hear a man talk, or read an article about free elections, and an honest verdict from the people, who are supporting the men who made bloody war to defeat the verdict of the people at the polls, and against free elections, mark the people who talk that way, or as people who are talking and writing to create trouble.

The Harrisburg Telegraph says:—Since the adjournment of Congress, we have not heard a single Democrat loud about bayonet rule in the South. Where is Senator Wallace? He made great threats in Washington, to what he intended to do before the people of Pennsylvania, on the subject of the Federal election laws and the bayonets by which they were enforced. Let him now come forth and make good his threats, or forever hereafter keep silence.

GENERAL ITEMS. Samuel Nushbaum, an old citizen of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, cut his wife's throat, on the 6th inst., and then cut his own. Domestic trouble is said to have been the cause of the tragedy.

Dr. James L. Roberts, a highly-respected citizen of Millville, Ky. county, Mo., while sitting in the store of G. D. Cravens, on Monday evening, the 7th inst., was accosted by D. J. S. Keyes and charged with talking about his (Keyes) family. Roberts denied the charge, whereupon Keyes called him a liar and drawing a revolver shot him twice through the chest, killing him. Keyes then mounted his horse and escaped. Roberts was over 60 years old, while Keyes was about 30. The latter was indicted to drink.

No one could undertake to ranch for all the snake stories that the up-country farmers tell without seriously compromising his reputation, but the Hamilton (Ga.) Journal assumes the responsibility of the latest one with a willingness that argues thorough confidence in the story-teller. Henry Scott, a farmer of Harris county, Ga., was hoeing a field of corn when he saw a large horned snake crawling near him, with his head and tail raised about a foot from the ground. He decided to kill the snake, and accordingly hit it a number of times with his hoe. After worrying it a while, the snake turned back to meet its foe, and the farmer, considering discretion the very best part of valor, turned and fled, hotly pursued by the snake. After running across a ten-acre field, Scott had gone playing with the reptile and so started for a white oak tree with the intention of climbing it. Just as he dodged behind the tree the snake struck at him, and the horn, about two inches long, struck in the tree. The reptile was unable to free himself, and the farmer's turn having come round again, he picked up a rock and killed the ugly thing. The Hamilton Journal again assures its readers that the farmer is thoroughly reliable, and then adds that in less than twelve hours after the snake's attack upon the tree, the leaves withered from a fresh green to a withered brown.

The Pittsburg Telegraph says that the depressing effect the appearance of yellow fever in Memphis and vicinity is already upon business of all kinds has been made manifest in that city by a falling off in the glass and iron trades. One firm of glass manufacturers stated that they would lose 2,000, if not more. Several iron frustated that, while sufferers to some extent now, they were concerned for their business in the future the epidemic became more serious.

At Albany, N. Y., on the 7th inst., Thomas Mallon, about sixty years of age, deliberately shot his wife, Ann Mallon, killing her instantly. The husband had just returned from work, and, after having a few angry words with his wife, he retired to a bed-room. She followed him, but on seeing a gun in his hands retreated. The next instant he raised the weapon and fired. The charge passed through the woman's left arm and entered her left breast just above the heart. The affair caused great excitement. The murderer was arrested. He is said to have been a very quiet and inoffensive man and why he committed the terrible deed is a mystery.

The United States has 450 full-fledged female dentists, while there are 1,355 now studying the profession.

Turtles are peddled in Kittanning by the wagon load. The streams in Armstrong county swarm with snappers.

General W. W. Irwin, of New Brighton, Beaver county, Pa., and formerly Treasurer of this State died of apoplexy on Saturday evening a week. He was elected State Treasurer in 1865 over William V. Lettich, the Democratic nominee, and belonged to what was known at that time as the Curtin wing of his party.

A shoemaker, named Winters of Harrisburg, who lost his hearing during an engagement in the late war, suddenly recovered it while bathing a few days ago.

On Monday morning a week George Givans, a farmer residing between Evansburg and Hartstown, Crawford county, went into the woods to do some chopping. Not returning for dinner Mrs. Givans became alarmed and went in search of him. She had only gone a circular half the distance when she found her lifeless body. Mr. Givans was 46 years old and leaves a wife and one child. His death is supposed to have been caused by heart disease, but, as no post mortem examination has been held, this is only conjecture.

It is stated in a Pittsburg paper that Annie Moore, the Beaver county girl who married a negro coal miner some weeks ago, and who has been living with him at Salem, Ohio, has deserted her husband and returned to the home of her parents in Beaver. It is stated that she has returned a wiser girl and that hereafter she will endeavor to do better. She left Salem on Tuesday last buying a ticket for Beaver.

When the train on the Erie road was coming from Red House to Salamanca on Saturday afternoon a week, at the rate of thirty miles an hour it brought up so suddenly as to shake up the passengers thoroughly. The cause of the trouble was a wo-begone looking countryman, who stepped forward and said he stopped the "keers kase he thought it mought do the passengers good to look at the big trout he had just killed." In a manner not at all amiable the conductor pulled the bell.

Dr. Wickersham, Superintendent of Soldiers Orphan Schools, has issued a circular addressed to mothers, guardians and friends of the soldiers orphans of the school at brigdewater, stating that the principal, James Sitzer, having resigned that school will be closed on the 30th inst., and the pupils transferred to any one of the following schools which they may select, viz: Uniontown, Fayette county; Mercer, Mercer county; Dayton, Armstrong county; Mansfield, Tioga county; Hartford, Susquehanna county; McAlisterville, Juniata county; or Mount Joy, Lancaster county; if the department be informed of the choice of those interested within ten days.

W. K. Miller, of Harrisburg, was shot and instantly killed last Thursday by Samuel F. Albright, of Montgomery's Ferry, Perry county. Albright and the murdered man were both partying at a young lady by the name of Hamaker, who resides at the ferry, and it was while Miller was on a visit to her that Albright deliberately walked into the girl's father's house and shot Miller through the heart, instantly killing him. The murderer escaped to the mountains.

A dispatch from Mechanicsburg, Pa., under date of the 7th inst., says: "On Tuesday night last, Samuel A. farmer residing in this place, was taken suddenly ill. The family becoming alarmed called in Dr. L. P. O'Neal, who at once pronounced it a case of hydrophobia. On the 4th of July a dog belonging to Mr. Smith, and which had been absent several days, returned, injured in one leg. While the owner was examining the wound the dog bit him in the finger. The wound was slight and caused no alarm. On Tuesday Mr. Smith overheard himself, when the disease manifested itself. The sick man suffered greatly, but is easier, and some hopes are entertained of his recovery."

The following is from a Lancaster paper of last Wednesday: "At a late hour yesterday afternoon Miles Frankford, Paul Quigley, Charles Albright and John Thompson, alias 'Whitey the Tramp,' were arranged before Alderman Spurrier, of Lancaster, charged with the larceny of chickens by a number of respectable farmers of the county. They are believed to be members of an organized band of thieves, and when it is stated that the farmers of that county lose thousands of dollars in chicken flesh annually by the depredations of professional and amateur thieves, it may be imagined the feeling against the accused parties is very bitter. Miles Frankford, the leader of the following: Here stealing seems to be the 'business' of this county. On Sunday last a young lady stole a horse at Houzdale, this county, and decamped. She was arrested on Monday at or near Du Bois City and lodged in jail at Clearfield. On Sunday night two horses were stolen from J. B. Valliant at Frenchville. James Cole and a few others proceeded to Driftwood, Pa., and started to walk to Keating in search of the thieves. When they neared Keating they met the thieves and captured both (with horses), and lodged them in the county jail at Clearfield. The thieves were both armed with seven-shot revolvers, but made no resistance whatever."

Having retired into Canada, Sitting Bull declares his intention to remain there. The Kanucks are welcome to the honor."
