When I am lying pale and dead, Come not, dear friends, around my bed, And pour your loss in deafened ears And wash my beedless face with tears. What thrill of hope or tenderness Will beat beneath my burial dress? What look of gratitude arise And lift the hid of sightless eyes ? What loving voice escape those lips, From which no speech or language slips? Alas! I cannot rouse and say "If ye lament me I will stay." Speak while I hear, and while I long To feel your love is true and strong

Wait not to miss me; hold me now ! Set not your kisses on my cheek, Nor on my mouth, too cold to speak ; And in your fruitless grief forbear To shed that sweetness on my hair. In 1 fe I long to feel their breath, But what are kisses worth to Death? Like blessems dropped on ice and snow, Like songs when howling tempests blow. A wasted gift, a vain caresa That might have been a power to bless. A longing answered all in vain, A touch that death must needs disdain, That might a life with joy endow,

While peace can soothe my troubled trow,

Oh! if you kiss me, kiss me now. Remember not when I am gone The deeds I did or would have done, How much I loved, how vainly strove To find an answer in your love ; Nor weep to think what less is yours Since mather life nor love endures : Say not with there and cries and prayers "Would that we showed her tendererer cares, Had patience with the faults we knew, Clung to the heart so warm and true,

That now we weep with hopeless pain And know will never come again." Oh! breathe not then the uscless vow ; But if you love me, love me now. Nor, standing round my wintry grave, Too late to serve me or to save,

Fling on it all you have to give, "At last her follies we forgive ! An angel might repel with scorn Such speech of poor repentance born Might weep to see such Lev.te pride Pass coldly by a coffin's side. No! if within your hearts there be A kind but slumbering thought of me, memory of the vanished past, Of hope, of peace and love at last,
