

Republican National Convention.

A National Convention of the Republican party will meet at Chicago on Wednesday, the 2nd day of June next, at 12 o'clock noon, for the nomination of candidates to be supported for President and Vice President at the next election.

Republican State Convention.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania are requested to send delegates, appointed according to their representation in the Legislature, to a Convention to meet at Harrisburg, at 12 M., on the 4th day of February next, to elect delegates to the Republican national convention to nominate Presidential Electors, to nominate a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court, and to transact such other business as may be brought before them.

The Grand entertained cost Philadelphia over twelve thousand dollars. Such people as claim to know, announce that the new Bible will be issued in 1880.

People in cities and large towns still complain of the work of the body-snatcher.

The parties who own the twenty-five hundred riot damage claims, propose to Pittsburgh that they surrender their claims for $2,600,000.

People of the Southern States turned out and gave to General Grant a hearty welcome as he passed through the States last week.

Just how certain journals are doing their best to create the belief that the mind of General Grant is slowly approaching a state of insanity.

Total abstinence people are pleased to note the fact that General Grant "turns the wine cup upside down" at receptions where wine is offered.

Gonzales is the name of the rascal who shot at the King of Spain while he was driving with the Queen through the streets of the capital city.

It is stated that $3,000,000 of counterfeit money was captured by Federal detectives last year. Over 500 manufacturers and dealers in "the queer" were captured and punished in the same time.

The Washington Republic says: There never were three other Americans so grossly abused as Washington, Lincoln and Grant, and there never were three Americans who could better afford it.

An exchange says: "Great cry and little wool." After all the fuss of Indiana Democrats about the colonization of colored voters in that State, it has turned out that of the twenty colored people who settled in Shelby county, only two were voters, the rest being women and children.

From all parts of the State the most favorable recommendations are poured in, asking that Mr. Passmore be nominated by the Republican State Convention for the office of Auditor General. He is a gentleman who makes friends wherever he goes, and his integrity is vouched for by his friends. His nomination would insure to the State a most efficient officer.

Socialists, Communists, held a National Convention in Pittsburgh last week. They propose to run a candidate for the Presidency of the United States. It is "here's labor lost," for there are few crack-headed people in this country who believe that when they earn a dollar that they cannot control that dollar, and have it put to whatever use, or spent for whatever purpose they please. Once when the people of the Republic believe that they cannot take care of their own earnings, then will be time for the Communist.

Democratic papers profess to believe that the grand receptions to Grant are manufactured receptions. They have overlooked the fact that in the old wars across the sea, where no one could probably have a personal interest in the General, great hearty receptions were accorded to him in every country, excepting Ireland. The respect paid to Grant is as hearty as that which was paid to Washington. He also was accused of many evil designs upon the Government that he did so much to build up.

An exchange says: "A ladies' congress is talked of in Washington, to be composed of the wives of Senators, Representatives and other officials, who will discuss and decide questions of etiquette and fix the relative rank of different sets in society."

The exchange that penned and published the above item, puts official people above all other people. It has lost sight of the fact that official people in the Republic can be so only for a period, a few years at most, after which they must be succeeded by other officials. It forgets that officials in other countries are taken from the common crowd of people, and in a majority of cases the officials and their families are of the very commonest of the common. The exchange has aristocratic longings that cannot be gratified in the Republic, or it has been on a Christmas and New Year frolic.

THE FRAUD IN MAINE.

Democratic Leaders Give it a Half way Justification by Saying the Republicans Acted Fraudulently in Louisiana.

THIRD CASES OF MAINE AND LOUISIANA ARE NOT ALIKE.

Irregularities in Juniata County Like Those in Maine.

The Supreme Court Pronounces the Work of the Governor in Maine All Wrong.

Leaders of Democracy attempt to divert the eyes of the people, by telling them that the case of the throwing out of the Louisiana returns by the Republicans is like the case in Maine, where the Democratic Governor threw out enough Republican Senators, and Representatives to make the Legislature Democratic.

The Republican candidate for Governor has 20,000 majority. The outrageous counting out process of the Democracy will, if allowed to stand, count out the Legislature and Governor, both of which, under the rules of honesty, fairness, and equity would be Republican.

If the cases of Louisiana and Maine were alike, even if the Louisiana business was a fraud on the part of the Republicans, which it was not, there could be no justification in the Democracy following what they condemned. What good is there in a man who condemns stealing, and then at the first opportunity steals anything and everything that he can lay his hands on?

But the cases are not alike. The Louisiana case is not like the case in Maine. The laws in Louisiana are clear, in conferring the right on returning voters to count out, or reject the votes or returns of all such districts in which a course of intimidation and bull-dozing has been practiced. It was proven to the satisfaction of the Louisiana returning boards, that in a number of parishes, or election districts, letters had been written to intimidate certain people; letters that threatened the voters against all who should vote the Republican ticket; letters that threatened all kinds of prosecution and persecution, even to murder.

It was proven that intimidating letters had been written, intimidating speeches delivered, and that people had been driven from their homes, that their homes had been burned. It was proven that many people had been murdered, for working for the Republican cause. With such sworn testimony before them, the sworn duty of the Louisiana Returning Boards was to reject the return of voters of districts where such work had been carried on.

In Maine the case is different. The crime of driving people from their homes; of burning their houses and barns; of shooting their horses and cattle; of murdering and whipping people, was not indulged in by Republicans to carry the election. The whole campaign and election was a peaceable one, and a Republican Governor and Legislature were elected. The cases of the two States are no more alike than are "night and day."

However, in a number of the districts in Maine the return papers were slightly defective; in a district or two the names of Republican candidates were not spelled as the law required that they should be spelled; in a district or two the election notices did not have quite the full number of names that is required by law, and yet for such slight defects in election papers the Democracy wish to justify their course of the counting out of a Republican Legislature and a Republican Governor in the State of Maine, and placing in its stead a Democratic Legislature and Governor. Such slight defects as enumerated above they proclaim as ranking with the systematized intimidation of the South, by which people were driven from their homes, and shot down with as little compunction of conscience as a sporting boy shoots a rabbit that has been chased from its covert.

Such slight defects in election return papers, in election notices, as the Democrats in Maine claim to count out the Republicans on, may be found in almost every election, and any election held in this (Juniata) county. Scarcely ever is there an election held in this county in which the return papers are free from just such defects as those upon which the Democracy of Maine have counted out a Republican Legislature and Governor. Some papers, in almost every election, are not precisely as the letter of the law requires them to be.

Such mistakes have never before for a moment been seriously considered, for they have been looked upon as "mistakes of the head, and not mistakes of the heart," in other words, as unintentional mistakes. For just such unintentional mistakes the Democratic Governor and Green-back advisers in Maine have counted out a Republican Legislature and Governor.

If it were any other than a self-adjustable government, in which wrongs may be righted by future elections, there would be sufficient cause for the people to rise in their physical power, and by force drive out such people as the Democratic Governor and his friends, but under the system of government in which both the National and State governments are working, all questions may be submitted to the whole people, at the polls, by a vote.

The people generally, without regard to party, have honest intentions, and go wrong only when they are deceived or confused.

If the Democratic Governor in Maine persists in his unjust course, the Republicans cannot be justified in raising a riot to prevent him from carrying out his fraud. Their course will be to pocket the iniquitous work of the Democracy and the fanatics till next year, when the people will make it right, correct the wrong by overwhelming the wrong doers at the polls.

The right of the Democratic Governor, Garcelon, to take advantage of such trifling technicalities as he has Harvey Troup, a well-known farmer, who resided a short distance from New Hope, Perry county, hung himself on Monday evening, Jan. 5. Troup was about 35 years of age, married, and leaves a wife and six children. He had been deranged for some time and had made repeated threats that he would hang himself. He accomplished his purpose with a rope used for hoisting hay, and when discovered was hanging in the barn with every spark of life fled. Religious excitement is said to have led to his derangement.

The suicide of Andrew Lampo, of Fairfield township, near Meadville, Crawford county, having been a singularly romantic one. He had for some months been intimate with a widow living in the vicinity, and finally his wife became cognizant of the intrigue. She followed him to the house of the widow on one occasion, and soon after came upon them in the woods, the widow being in male attire. The husband fled but the widow remained, and a hand-to-hand fight ensued, in which she was victorious. Not long after Lampo boasted of his conquest, and the widow had him arrested for slander. The trial came off at Meadville, and the evidence was concluded on Thursday night a week. Lampo went home, and soon after he had stabbed his team, made an excuse to his wife, who was in bed, and went to the stable. An hour or two later, becoming uneasy, she sent one of the boys to the barn, who found that he had fastened a rope to one of the beams, slid off the hay mow and hanged himself. He left a letter, telling how the widow had seduced him, and putting the blame for his wrong doing entirely upon her. The deceased had always been held in high esteem. He was a man of honesty and integrity, and a member of the German Reformed Church in good standing. He left four children besides his wife.

A Carlisle paper says: Mrs. Catherine Zell, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Mary Kiehl at Carlisle, Pa., in November, was, on the 18th of December, sentenced by Judge Herman to be hanged. Forty-seven reasons had been filed for a new trial, some of which were deemed sufficient by the Court to warrant the re-opening of the case. Before the sentence of death was pronounced Mrs. Zell earnestly protested her innocence. The sentence appeared to her innocent Judge Herman much more than it did to the prisoner. The crime for which Mrs. Zell is to suffer death on the gallows was the poisoning of a woman 81 years old, who resided in the suburbs of Carlisle. The condemned lived in the neighborhood and frequently visited the house of the deceased. It was shown by the testimony that she had been there during the illness of Mrs. Kiehl, which terminated fatally in three days, after great suffering. The fact that Mr. Wyncope, a Justice of the Peace, appeared as the sole spectator of the play, and an investigation was instituted, which resulted in the discovery of arsenic in two coffee pots in her house, and her body having been exhumed about two weeks after her death. Mrs. Zell is believed to have administered the poison at the instance of Wyncope, who is in jail, and will be tried in July. A writ of error will probably be taken out in the case of Mrs. Zell and the matter argued before the Supreme Court in Philadelphia, in January.

A Pittsburg paper, under date of Tuesday, December 23, 1879, says: The people of Pittsburg were in a fever of excitement yesterday, owing to a fist-fight which took place in the First Reformed Presbyterian Church on the Sunday night, the 21st. Some weeks ago the congregation voted for a pastor, the Rev. Nevin Woodside receiving 167 votes, against 116 for other candidates. A majority of the trustees were bitterly opposed to Mr. Woodside, and charged that his selection was the result of illegal votes. The majority of the congregation were determined that Woodside as the call was sustained by the Presbytery. An appeal was taken to the Synod, and since then there have been bitter quarrels among the members of the church. The Woodside faction triumphed over their enemies, and on one occasion, notwithstanding the existence of an injunction restraining Woodside from preaching until the appeal was decided, he preached in the church by strategy, held the place all day, and listened to a sermon by the pastor in the evening. That night the quarrel culminated in a free fight. The trouble began early. Woodside wanted to preach, but his opponents had another clergyman whom they wished to preach. Both parties waxed hot, and the excited spectators gave vent to their feelings in remarks designed to encourage their favorite. The trustees and Sunday-school teachers took sides and shouted excitedly. One of the persons essayed to mount the rostrum. He was seized by his antagonists and roughly hustled from the steps. This led to a general fight. It was thickest round the altar, but all over the church were heard the sound of blows. The police were called in and after some difficulty succeeded in quelling the riot.

Euson's lamps, of electric light, it is said, burn brightly. Bernard Shanley, a quarryman, was engaged Saturday morning a week with another man in splitting open a large rock at East Rock, near New Haven, Connecticut, with wedges. The rock opened and he fell in between the two pieces, which, from some unknown cause came together again, imprisoning him as in a vice. He retained consciousness, and directed the work of prying the fragments of rock. His abdomen was crushed frightfully, and he died several hours after being taken from the rock.

GENERAL ITEMS.

Marshal Bazanis—he who was shut up in Metz so long in 1870—is fat in Spain.

Two brothers named George and Haight Drummond, living near Woodman, N. J., were drowned while skating there on Friday a week. George, aged thirteen, first broke through the ice, and Haight, aged seventeen, heard his cries, and was hastening to his aid, when he also broke through an air-hole. Both bodies have been recovered.

An artist has recently published, in a French journal, an account of his Swiss sketching tour. On a beautiful afternoon in June last, he left his hotel in Interlaken, went out alone with his camp stool and easel, and strayed as far as the foot of the Jungfrau. As he was about to begin his sketch he was startled by seeing, a few yards in front of him, a huge bear, that growled ferociously. He seized a six chambered revolver and leveled it at the bear, but before he could fire, he heard the words, "Halt! halt!" The bear sat on his hind legs and wrung his fore paws. "What?" cried the artist, "do bears speak English?" Then holding the revolver close to the nose of the pretended bear, he demanded, "What dost thou in this accursed country?"

The rogue in the bear's skin replied that he was merely earning his living. He was a river by profession, but had been a very bad one and he had been obliged to take another trade. He had entered into a compact with a number of guides to clothe himself in a bear's skin, "Which I can assure you is as hot as purgatory in such weather as this," and plant himself in one of the favorite mountain paths. "When one of my associates comes along this road with a tourist, I suddenly show myself. The foreigner is ready to die of fright, but the courageous guide rushes at me and drives me away, naturally receiving a very handsome donation for his bravery in risking his own life in order to preserve that of his employer." In the evening the bear and guide generally met at an inn and divided the spoil. The bear pleaded so pitiously that the artist did not have the heart to have him arrested.

A HOUSE AND LOT CONTAINING one-fourth acre, in the center of Meadville, having thereon erected a weather-boarded Log House, Stable, Blacksmith Shop—oldest and best stand in the village—other out-houses, good garden &c. Price to suit the times. JOSEPH D. LONGACRE, Meadville, Juniata Co., Pa.

A RARE CHANCE. To Buy a Large Tract of Good Land at a Moderate Price. To a man who desires to make farming and stock-raising his business, this is the greatest bargain in Juniata county.

Three Hundred Acres and more, having thereon a large Brick Dwelling House in good condition, Barn and other outbuildings; running streams of water near the door, also, good well water in yard; an Orchard of 2 acres, as good as any in the county; a grove of 50 maple trees, which, if attention were directed to, could be turned into a source of income, as such groves are in Somerset county, this State, and as such groves are in New England. Good timber on the farm. The farm will produce 10 to 20 tons of hay annually, and grow grain of all kinds. There is an abundance of LIMESTONE on the farm.

We repeat, this is the greatest bargain now offered in this county, to the man who has energy and desire to farm and raise stock. To such a man, who has moderate sums of money for first payment, there is a rare chance to secure a property, that in the nature of things must increase in value gradually, for the period of a full generation yet to come.
