

MIFFLINTOWN, Wednesday, March 3, 1880.

B. F. SCHWEIER, Editor and Proprietor. Republican State Ticket. Supreme Judge, HENRY GREEN, Auditor General, JOHN A. LEMON.

Judge Jeremiah Black, is out in an article in the North American Review, against Grant, or the third term as he calls it. He expresses a fear that Grant might do as Nero and Domitian did with Rome. The article of the Judge, is a "rope of sand" and it must of its own weight break into a thousand pieces when he attempts to stretch Roman history into a parallel with the present condition of the Republic.

The Roman Republic was destroyed by Julius Caesar, before Nero and Domitian saw the light of day. The days of the Roman Republic, if ever it could have been called such, had long ended and the days of the Roman kings, or emperors again resumed, before either Nero or Domitian came upon the stage of action. Generally, in the times that the Judge writes of, the Pretorian guard, the pet soldiers of the Emperors chose the Emperor, and the people had nothing to do with it.

The Judge who can imagine a similarity in the state of society, as found under the Roman Emperors, and the state of society as it exists to-day in the American Republic, of the United States, has an imagination of unbounded fertility, and can do, perhaps, what no other man can do, excepting that class of men, who could calmly sit by, and see an armed organization seek to overthrow the Republic, in the interest of human slavery, and in the face of it all, maintain that our Government had no right to employ the army, to prevent the slave holding states from dividing the Government.

There is nothing to fear from any man, or set of men the liberties of the people are safe as they can be, and will remain so, until the people forget to settle all their disputes by peaceful means. Once they refuse to do that and resort to arms, or war, their liberty will be put in great danger, for war develops the military power, which, when in full sway, is despotic, and rules to suit itself.

The Republican State Convention of New York was held last Wednesday. The delegation to Chicago have instructions for grant as a candidate for the Presidency. There was a hearty movement in the convention for Blaine.

Tilden will be a strong candidate among the Democracy for the Presidency. Two hundred rooms have been secured, it is said at Cincinnati, for the accommodation of his friends during the sitting of the Convention.

And now an Indian statesman gets up and tells the country that the Indians are more numerous than they were 50 years ago.

Tilden is almost as silent a man as Grant, but his friends say that when he wants to talk, he can talk with the best.

The management of the State fair have concluded to give $40,000 in premiums next fall. Six thousand of which will be on sheep.

The Democratic National Convention will be held at Cincinnati, June 22 1880.

Boston wants the law repealed that prohibits smoking in public places. Democracy will nominate a hard money man at Cincinnati.

Keeney says, there is a plot afoot to assassinate him. Advocates of woman suffrage are encouraged.

As exchange, writing on the subject of iron, last week, said: The rapid advance in the price of iron within the last year is something unprecedented in the history of that pivotal trade, if we except the period of our great war.

Thus far Grant and Blaine, are the most talked of for the Presidency by the Republicans. The Democracy have opened vigorously on both, against Grant, they shout Babcock, Whisky Ring, and King, against Blaine, they shout $54,000 Little Rock railroad stock, $10,000 for making up committee, $21,000 for Cumberland coal stock.

Presidential Notes.

The Penn Monthly makes some positive predictions, and is certain that a member of the Republican candidates cannot be elected. It does not go out into deep water and say who can be elected. It says: The least of the objections to General Grant is that which regards the third term. If he had shown himself an unexceptionable President during the eight years he was in office we might bear with the violation of the unwritten tradition which requires our chief statesman to become a nobody just about the time when his hands have become used to the reins of power.

From a Democratic standpoint. Of course all hands got busy. And as "when wine—or rum—is in wit out," they lost their discretion and blurted out their real feelings and intentions. Amid the maudlin tumult one W. D. Hill, who represents the Sixth district of Ohio in Congress, shouted to the handful of spectators who were looking on at orgies: "The Democrats will nominate their candidate in Cincinnati, and we will inaugurate him whether he is elected or not." This was too strong even for Sergeant at-Arms Thompson; so he dragged the orator in from the balcony and chucked him under a table, afterwards explaining to the crowd that, "We don't intend to inaugurate our nominee if he is not elected." Another enthusiastic Ohio man promised that the Buckeye State would furnish three hundred and fifty thousand able-bodied men to inaugurate the Democratic nominee. After more maudlin speeches, a drink was had all around, and the disgusting scene ended by the drunkest of the lot being dragged off to bed by their more prudent or strong-headed companions.

One of the who things the present Congress did was to appoint a Committee on the Electoral Count. Last week the Committee reported a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States, that the President shall be elected by the people, by a direct vote. Such an amendment would have few opponents among the people.

The Philadelphia Sunday Times says: The news comes from Washington that Senator Blaine has two or three dozen favorite candidates for Vice President. They are located at convenient points and are going to get all the delegates they can for Blaine in return for the nomination to the second place. Two of these are in Illinois, one in Ohio, another in Michigan and at least two in Ohio.

The New York Herald says: Leading opponents of the third term have within a few days determined that, though they do not think Mr. Blaine an ideal candidate, they will not further oppose his candidacy. The third term they regard as the chief and only real danger to the party and country.

Senator Bayard's copper-head speech has quenched his aspirations for the Presidency. The blue hen's chickens must have dung hill blood in them.

Bayard, Tilden, Hancock, Randall and Seymour are the prominent candidates for the Presidency among the Democracy. Whose your choice? Is what they are asking each other.

The men employed in piano factories in New York, to the number of 4,000, are on a strike.

STATE ITEMS.

Bradford is aroused by an intense religious feeling. Thirty-four Indian boys and girls were baptized at St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, Carlisle, recently.

John Glover a switchman, met his death by being run over at Horneville Junction, near Bradford.

In Chest township, Clearfield county on the 18th of February Miss Susie McLaughlin picked up a rifle in play, and while in her hand it exploded, killing her brother, a young man of 23, almost instantly.

There are 1,500 coal miners on a strike in the neighborhood of Houzdale, Clearfield county.

Betsy Kinney, 80 years of age, was set upon in the Cambria county Almshouse last Monday evening by an insane girl and beaten to death.

Some curious things happen in Saratoga. A drunken ruffian, named Davis rushed into one of the public schools and created a panic among the children by his wild appearance, obscene language and desperate conduct.

A vein of silver ore about three feet in thickness assaying $188 per ton has been discovered on a farm between Berwick and Blountsberg.

STALE ITEMS.

A Reading lawyer received nineteen valentines. Strawberries are quoted at two dollars a box. Wilkesbarre has the measles very badly. Contests on the liquor license question are very lively in the Chester county courts.

Mr. H. E. Fisher, of Allentown, has the stump of a tree dug from a coal mine in Schuylkill county has turned to solid rock. A wood chopper working near Sugar Springs, Berks county had a fight with a bear a few days ago and was terribly injured.

Concessions Africa has had 1,000 applications for position as enumerators. Robert Stuart, of Guilich township, Clearfield county, is 99 years old, and can read without the aid of glasses.

A man named Milan, of Hamburg, Allegheny county fell from a trestle-work on Monday afternoon, and broke his neck. There is a scarcity of oak timber among car manufacturers.

Henry Legals, a resident of Franklin, recovered $738 damages against that city before the court last week, on account of personal injuries caused by defective sidewalks.

A young woman, who at one time was one of the most beautiful and wealthy girls of Erie, has returned to the home of her parents to die, after leading a life of shame for several years.

The excitement in Clayville, Washington county, is very great concerning the incendiary act of James Worrell, who burned his father's house with a view to destroying the whole family.

He was attentive to a young lady, and, wishing to possess sufficient means to marry her, sought to obtain them by destroying the whole family, which would make him sole heir to the property. It is reported that if he returns home he will be lynched.

Rev. F. M. Collins married a couple in the road near Martic township, Lancaster county a few days ago. Efforts are being made in all parts of this State to procure the names of Andersonville and other prisoners held by the rebels during the war, for the purpose of securing special pensions for them.

Two children of Peter Fasnacht's, in Lancaster, while at play several days ago, upon a spot of boiling mud on the range. One was terribly burned about the head and the other cannot recover.

Warren county has nineteen inmates in the Western penitentiary. Millard F. Sixte, an undertaker, of Philadelphia, while riding in his wagon collided with a vehicle on Saturday night. He was thrown out, run over and killed.

Joseph Goldberg, who was shot and killed at Lehigh, on the 11th of the month, is said to have declared while moulding the fatal bullet, the use to which it would be put.

In 1874 a little daughter of Mrs. Mary Kelly, of Titusville, disappeared, mysteriously from her mother's home, and it was supposed that she had been kidnapped. Recently she has been found in Pittsburg.

An Easton mother had her son committed to the House of Correction to get rid of him. She had promised her husband to bear him but three children, and this unfortunate boy was the fourth.

A courageous man employed by a widow living in the English town of Cranford, was attacked by several burglars a fortnight ago. She ran before them and locked the doors of the rooms containing valuable property. She was thrown down stairs and partially stunned, but retained sufficient courage and presence of mind to rush out of the door and throw the keys in the square.

John Wollege, a barber of Mount Joy, who had repeatedly threatened his wife with bodily harm because of an unfounded suspicion that she had been too intimate with other men, shot her in the side, Tuesday afternoon with an old musket, inflicting fatal injuries.

A son of Wollege, aged about fifteen years, was considerably injured by a stray shot. The barber, who was committed to the Lancaster county jail, maintains that the shooting was accidental, but his wife told a different story shortly after she had been wounded. Wollege is about 45 years old and his wife ten years younger.

The tragedy was followed by much excitement, and for a while there was danger of Wollege being lynched.

GENERAL ITEMS.

The Sultan of Turkey has three hundred general items. John Sherman will not let up on Fitz John Porter. Louisville averages six earthquakes a day. Good digestion will do a great deal to keep a man straight than good resolutions.

It is recorded that a vessel left Boston last week carrying eight hundred thousand gallons of rum and one missionary. For neglecting to support his wife, Rev. Charles E. Walker has been suspended from the ministry of the Methodist Church at Fall River, Mass.

The New York Times says that only one fifth of the six thousand lawyers in that city earn a livelihood and do something better than exist. The rest are doing nothing half the time, dunned by their landlords and every class of tradesmen.

Not any to soon, Mayor Kallack, of San Francisco has concluded to put a stop to meetings on the sand lots. A tramp prettied himself from the cold at La Harpe, Ill., by building a complete circle of fire and going to sleep in the enclosure; but he was burned to death.

Captain Webb, the English swimmer, was under the water for five and a half hours. The attempt will be made in March, in London, in sea water of summer temperature. What next?

A pretended carpenter was the author and executor of the Winter Palace plot to kill the Czar. Nelson J. Lee, the temperance apostle of Erie, has fallen from grace again, started a saloon and skipped the city.

A San Francisco actor named Snow is in luck. He was out a few days ago traveling on horseback when his horse slipped and he fell over the bluff. Snow was on the ground, but the actor but the other kind of snow; so the actor Snow was on the snow falling over and over. Had the ground and rocks been bare he would have been badly hurt, but he kept on rolling down the hill, which was at an angle of forty-five degrees till he was stopped by a mass of moss covered stone striding out of snow.

At a dance at a village in New Hampshire, one of the musicians got intoxicated and reeled against one of the dancers, who became so angry that he seized the poor fellow's bass viol and struck him on the head with it, inflicting injuries from which the musician died shortly afterward.

A courageous man employed by a widow living in the English town of Cranford, was attacked by several burglars a fortnight ago. She ran before them and locked the doors of the rooms containing valuable property. She was thrown down stairs and partially stunned, but retained sufficient courage and presence of mind to rush out of the door and throw the keys in the square.

An even more dangerous performer works his left arm as well as if it were a pump handle. A tall man, with a top-heavy kind of stoop, leans over his partner like a great hen taking a chicken under her wings. One man holds his partner as if he were afraid she would slip from his grasp, while another looks as if he wished he was rid of his bargain.

Many a horse has been seduced from a pasture into a stable by a halfpint of whisky. A horse was seduced by a similar operation. India John, the Winesboro chief from Shawano, appeared a few days ago in the Wisconsin Legislature, with a petition, and at the suggestion of some graceless wagger, waddled up to Assemblyman Naber, who had the floor and was apostrophizing narrow-gauge railroads, and grasped his outstretched hand.

Of course there was a roar of laughter and applause, in the midst of which the Sergeant at Arms held up a nickel before the Winesboro chief's face, and slowly backed toward the door of the lobby. John followed to the very exit where the nickel was bestowed upon him and the door slammed in his face.

The Chinese question has broken out with renewed force in California; a despatch from there a few days ago said. Many persons who have been supporters of the anti Chinese movement now express the sentiment that rather than suffer a continuation of the evil results of the protracted agitation it would be preferable to have it out once for all, and the sooner the better.

Martin Yoder, a farmer of Oley township, Berks county, will be a Democratic Congressional candidate before the next election. The Reading Times and Dispatch says that the eastern townships of the county will be for him. There will be six candidates besides Mr. Yoder.

George Donlay, of Dunkard township, Greene county, who is 53 years of age, wandered out of the house on Monday night a week unable to sleep, and was found drowned in a spring the next morning.

GENERAL ITEMS.

The tendency of fashion is to increase the size of the bonnet. Germany is becoming alarmed at Russia's frontier fortifications. One of the most violent of the speakers who harange the hoodlums at the San Francisco sand lots is a woman, Mrs. Smith, whose speech is said to have reminded some of those who heard her of the raving of the female mob of Paris during the Reign of Terror.

Angus McDonald, of Aetow, Canada, is 104 years old. He stood by the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo when he said, "Oh, that Blucher or night would come!"

There has been a fight between the students of Cornell University and the town boys of Ithaca. None were seriously injured, the students held a meeting and passed resolutions of regret at the occurrence, and all is serene between the antagonistic parties—till they meet again.

"The thieves of Cincinnati are playing a trick which is either a new one or a very old one resurrected from oblivion. A woman the other day asked a grocer for a pound of the best coffee. Just as he was about to put it in a paper bag, she held a jar toward him so that the top was open, but he could not see the bottom, and told him to put it on the counter, and he poured the coffee in the month of the jar, and then the woman with a well-feigned expression of an annoyance cried: 'I do declare, I have left my purse at home! I just set the jar of coffee down on the counter here while I run home and get the money.'"

She placed the jar on the counter and went out, but she didn't come back, and when the grocer picked up the jar he found that it did not contain any coffee, and that the bottom had been knocked out. Then he concluded that when she poured the coffee in the jar it ran through into a bag concealed by the woman."

Last week forty-eight hundred men employed in a nickel factory at Coloes, N. Y., made a strike for higher wages. Proprietors of the works, Hoyt and Wynkoop, while trying to rescue a man named John Wynkoop, from a number of the strikers, were attacked. A desperate encounter took place. Hoyt was wounded in the head and his left arm was broken by kicks and blows.

Wynkoop was attacked by the mob, but entered a house and remained till the fuss was over. John Wynkoop, when he saw that his friends could not rescue him, drew a revolver and fired three shots. Dunn was shot in the head, left shoulder and hand, and Peter Curry was hit in the left side. John Cahill was shot in the right arm and Lansing Smith in the hand. Eight of the assailants upon Wynkoop, including Dunn, were arrested. Dunn was seriously wounded. The wounds of the others are not considered serious.

"A farmer from the suburbs was in Boston the other day dressed up in his Sunday clothes, and having read about romantic ways of becoming acquainted with ladies on the street thought he would try his luck. He was a well-dressed man, evidently just knocked off from the shoe pertaining to some pretty little foot. Now was his chance, thought he. He could soon tell who lost it by watching for a lady walking lame; he would offer it to her, she would thank him sweetly, ask him to help her fasten it on he could escort her home, further acquaintance, proposal, marriage, etc. Here came a pretty young lady limping, but her dress was long and she couldn't see her shoe. She must be the one. He said: 'Miss! If you'd your heel back there, and I'm happy to be able to present it to you. I noticed while walking behind you that you limped—that is, you walked quite lame—and I was really sorry for you.' The young lady thanked him pleasantly, but told him it wasn't hers, but that she was lame as the result of an accident. He apologized, and somewhat disconcerted, waited for another limping lady who was even prettier than the first. He spoke to her, but she didn't take any notice of it. He again said: 'Pardon me lady, but I have found your heel, and it gives me great pleasure to return it to you.' 'How dare you, sir!' and she gave poor Hezekiah a look that nearly made his hair stand on end—'show dancer you are!'"

STATE ITEMS.

Jacob Isenberg and William Thompson quarreled near Huntingdon last Thursday, when the former was killed in a fight that ensued. Thompson has been arrested and put in the Huntingdon jail.

A New Lebanon Shaker, front name Samuel, was killed by lightning a few days afterward, a female medium Shaker, Mary, said that she had met him and asked him what he meant by coming about there. "I do not know. I go to the shop and the boarding-house, and no one notices me. What is the meaning of all this, Mary?" "Why, Samuel, do you know that you are dead?" "Dead? why, no, I am not dead." "Surely you are. You were struck by lightning a week ago last Thursday and killed, and we buried you in the yard yesterday."

"That really so?" "Certainly it is. 'Then good night, Mary,' and she says she has never seen his spirit since."
