A recent traveler in that State says. The cow-boys, while tending (mounted on their wiry mustang ponies) their Texan cattle, and as dangerous to a man on foot, are accustomed to sing a great deal to while away the lonely hours. At night they hobble their ponies, and, wrapped in a "Lar's 'lustrate it," hiccoughed a blanket, lie down to sleep on the prairie, with wild affright, and they will snort and paw the earth, and in a moment a wild rush and stampede would commence; but the cow-boys would spring up, and while they loose and mount their ponies they commence singing their old songs. The cattle, hearing the well-known and accustomed voices will soon quiet down, thinking all is right, and resume their rest again. ----
