H. T. HELMBOLD, Druggist and Chemist,

By Willow brock, beneath the hill Stands quaint and gray the old grist-mill. Spring mosses on his steep roof grow, Where broad their shade the w llows throw, The pond near by is clear and deep. And around its brink the alders sweep; The fily pads spread gay and green, The lilies white and gold between ; While grinds the mili with rumbling sound,

The water wheel turns round and round. Among the reeds the muskrat dives, And swift ' the swallow homeward flies The robin sits in cedars near, When Willow brook runs swift and c'ear ; The children by the school house play. Where simberous shadows softly stay, And warm and low the summer breeze Is whispering through the willow leaves,

While grinds the mill with rumbling sound,

The water wheel turns round and round. The crows now wing their southern way; The squirrels in the nut trees play ; With merry shouts the school boys run ; The mountains blu h 'neath autum.'s sun ; Their grain they bring adown the hill, The farmers, to the old grist mill ; And faint from far o'er hill and dale Falls on the ear the thresher a flail ;

While grinds the mill with rumbling sound,

The water wheel turns round and round. Long years have come and passed away : The mill with age is gaun: and gray ; The roof gaps wide to rain and sun ; With cobwebs thick the walls are hung. The pond is overgrown with weeds; The marsh-wren builds among the reeds; The night winds through the willows mo n : The school house gone, the children grown The farmers sleep where wild flow rs arow, Who trought their grain so long ago, When ground the mill with rumbling sound. And the water wheel turned round and round
