Let me sleep while the daylight is shining. While the sun still illumes all the sky, While my vigor still knows no declining-In the montide of life let me die.

Ere my sight or my hearing has failed n.e., Or the hopes I have cherished are dead ; Ere the sorrows of age have assailed me, Or the relish of jiving has fled ; While the warmth and the glow are remaining. And the pulse of my soul beateth high ; Ere the strength of my manhood is waning,

In the adontide of life let me die. Who would linger for years in his dotage,

To be reckoned again as a child-As the "old man" or woman unnoticed, Or appeased with a simpering smile ? If the life waver there" is immortal. And its youthtulness never goes by, I would hasten to knock at its portal-In the noontide of life let me die.

As the apple when ripe should be gathered, If its flavor he held at their best If it hang in the chill autumn weather It will fail in the epicare's test. So the fruitage of life seems the fittest, For the garners of God up on high, When the soul is the strongest and righest, In the noontide of life let me die.

Though the friends who so fondly have loved me

May be sad as they lay me away; Though the thoughless may harshly re prove me For the wish I have uttered to-day ; Though I bow to the will of the Father, And would wait for his time as the best, If He leave it to me I would rather Ere the noontide be gone be at rest. A. M. Buck, in Otsego Union.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored KENNEDY & DOTY. B Just published, a new edition of Dr. Calverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical care (without medi-(Successors to Buyers & Kennedy.) cine) of Spermatorrhora or Seminal weak-ness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impo-tency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Im-DEALERS IN pediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Con-sumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c. The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarm-COAL ing consequences of solf-abuse may be rad-ically enrod without the dangerous use of uternal medicine or the application of the LUMBER, knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himsoif cheap-ly, privately, and radically.
