SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN Republican National Convention.

The Republican National Convention met at Chicago last Wednesday, to nominate a candidate for the Presidency and Vice Presidency. Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, was elected president of the convention, and committees were appointed to consider the various questions that agitated the delegates, and the people whom the delegates represented. The unit rule was a question that had raised great interest in a number of the States. It was said by many that the unit rule was the medium by which certain men wished to rule the nomination It was of no avail that they protested against such a construction being put upon their mo-The committee in charge of the ques-tion decided that the Congressional
