WHIP-POOR-WILL.

Up rose the moon o'er the towering mountain, Sparkled, and danced, in the silvery rill,

Floated the notes of a lone whip-poor-will. Saftly the breath of the evening allured me

As the calm of the hour again reassured me, I heard in the distance the lone whip-poor-

Sharp as the swirl of a willow it sounded-Sharp on the balm of the evining still ;

Back from the mountain the clear echoes Bounded the wail of the lone whip-poor-

While the moon from my vision by clouds was o'er-shaded, Again broke the plaint of the lone whippoor-will.

Forgive Him!

"Forgive him!" said Mrs. Stains, "Oh,

William, forgive bim !" The speaker was an aged woman and a widow. Her head was white with the frost of years, and her mild features were deeply marked by the hand of time. There was a tear in her eye, and her face was clouded with sorrow. She spoke to her son, a mid dle-aged, strong-featured person, whose countenance betrayed a firm-willed, unbending heart, but yet who appeared an upright-
