LOVE AT HOME.

There is beauty all around . When there's love at home There is joy in every sound Peace and plenty here abide. Smiling sweet on every side, Time doth softly, sweetly glide,

When there's love at he In the cottage there is joy, When there's love at ho Hate and envy ne'er annoy, When there's love at home Roses blossom 'neath our feet, All the earth's a garden sweet. Making life a blas complete, When there's love at home

Kindly heaven smiles above, When there's love at home : All the earth is filled with love. When there's love at home. Sweeter sings the brooklet by, Brighter beams the azure sky ; Ob. there's One who smiles on high ; When there's love at home.

Villainy Unmasked-

The nature of my profession brings me The nature of my profession brings me in contact with every description of person. I have formed through its agency many pleasant acquaintanceships, to which my memory often reverts with pleasure. Some years ago, I became acquainted with a Mr. Norval, a wealthy merchant, who resided in West Fortieth street. He was a widower, and the only persons living with him were

Mary Norval, his niece, was a beautiful girl, about 20 years of age when I first became soquisinted with her. She was tall and gracefully formed. Her hair was dark and gracefully formed with long eyelashes, which gave a dreamy expression to her lovely, oval face. Her complexion was most acreamy expression to her lovely, oval favore, and her form was gracefully in the work and shoulders might have served for a model for a sculptor, they were so exquasitively chiaseled. Such was Mary Norval when I first possessed of the best wife in the world, she would have been just the woman I would have chosen for a wife, for her mind, and the amiability of her character, fully equalled her physical beauty. She

One day Mr. George Norval invited me to dine with him, I accepted the invitation, being somewhat of an invalid, my host excused himself for an hour while he want to cused himself for an hour while he want to lie down. I amused myself in the meantime examining some illustrated works placed on the drawing-room table. The apartment in which I was seated was only separated from an adjoining one by folding doors. I should have stated that Miss Norval had also excused herself, under the Norval had no difficulty whatever, and I cannot entertain the slight heard, however, that he is in Australia. Young Norval was completely crestfallen, and left my presence without uttering a word. That same night I restored the will to Mr. M—'s possession, and the delight with which he received it was belong to the rest the sight when alternately viewing theard, however, that he is in Australia. Young Norval was completely crestfallen, and left my presence without uttering a w alone to my reflections, I fell into a reverie, which, I suppose ended in a doze, for I was suddenly awakened to consciousness by the sound of voices in the adjoining apartment. The evening was somewhat advanced, and consequently the noise in the street had almost entirely ceased. Owing to this fact I heard distinctly every word that was said. It was Mr. Norval's son Charles's voice that awakened me.

"Mary, listen to me," he exclaimed with a peculiar thick utterance which showed that he had been drinking: "you know I love you. Yes, dear girl, I adore the very ground you walk on. Your beauty is so ascendent that you appear more like

"None at all, he has been ailing for some When did you get hold of the precious time. He died of disease of the heart. A document?" post-mortem examination has settled that question satisfactorily. You are aware, perhaps, that I was his lawyer, and you also know the terms on which he lived with his son. About three months ago Mr. Norval sent for me to make his will. As I have before said, he had been failing in health for the settle of the will in his private desk, and it was only by chance that I obtained the key. The moment I did so, I seized the document, and put in its place a piece of blank in his private desk, and it was not provided that the will be will be a provided that the will be will
