BRERETON, IRISH EMIGRATION AGENT AT DUNDALK, AS TO WHETHER THE LANDING OF ABLE-BODIED PAUPERS IN NEW YORK WOULD BE OBJECTED TO, HAS WRITTEN THAT POVERTY IS NO BAR TO IMMIGRANTS WILLING TO WORK AND OBEY THE LAWS, BUT THAT IMMIGRATION OF DISOLUTE PAUPERS AND CRIMINALS IS CERTAINLY OBJECTIONABLE."

THE MARRIAGE RELATIONSHIP IS BECOMING DISTRESSINGLY LOOSE IN SOME OF THE EASTERN COUNTIES. AN EXCHANGE FROM DELAWARE COUNTY SAYS: "ELOPEMENTS HAVE BECOME EPIDEMIC. MEN AND WOMEN ARE SWAPPING WIVES AND HUSBANDS AT A LIVELY RATE. THE CHILDREN OF COURSE ARE LEFT BEHIND."

WHERE IN THE WORLD IS ALL THIS GOING TO END? WHAT EFFECT IS IT GOING TO HAVE ON SOCIETY GENERALLY? THESE OCCURRENCES TAKE PLACE AMONG PEOPLE THAT ARE COMPREHENDED UNDER THE TITLE OF PROTESTANTS.

IT IS A WELL KNOWN FACT THAT THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE COMMONWEALTH DECIDED, OR RATHER GAVE IT AS HIS OPINION, THAT MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE ARE NOT ENTITLED TO MORE THAN $1,000 SALARY UNDER THE NEW CONSTITUTION, AND THAT THEY HAVE NO POWER TO INCREASE THEIR OWN SALARY.

THE LEGISLATURE PASSED A SALARY BILL WHICH GIVES THE MEMBERS EXTRA PAY TO THE AMOUNT OF $200. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL ADVISES IN HIS FORMER OPINION THAT THE EXTRA SALARY BILL IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL. THE STATE TREASURER, ACTING UNDER THE OPINION OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, HAS REFUSED TO PAY MEMBERS MORE THAN $1,000.

THE LEGISLATURE APPOINTED A COMMITTEE TO CARRY THE CASE TO THE COURTS FOR DECISION.

DISCOVERY LEADERS ARE NOTHING BUT A SET OF GRINDSTONES THAT ARE GRINDING AT THE PRESENTATION OF TRADE, AND GRINDING AT THE PRESENTATION OF THE MANUFACTURING INDUSTRY OF THE COUNTRY; AND GET WITH ALL THAT THE DEMOCRATIC LEADERS IN CONGRESS NEVER COME TO THE RESCUE BY PROPOSING CONGRESSIONAL LEGISLATION OF TARIFF, OR ANY OTHER KIND OF LEGISLATION THAT TENDS TO PROTECT AMERICAN LABOR FROM THE COMPETITIVE FORCE OF FOREIGN LABOR.

HOW THE DEMOCRATIC LEADERS CONTINUE TO LIVE POLITICALLY ON SUCH STUFF AS IS DISHED OUT TO THEM, IS A QUESTION NOT UNDERSTOOD OUTSIDE OF DEMOCRATIC POLITICAL CIRCLES. THEY ARE NOW HUNTING OVER THE FACT THAT A NUMBER OF FURNACES HAVE GONE OUT OF BUSINESS. WHEN THEY DID NOTHING TO PREVENT THE IRON MANUFACTURERS FROM THE COMING OF THE CHEAP IRON OF THE OLD WORLD.

GENERALLY considered the class of men that make their money by dealing in paper, buying and selling bonds, or so forth, is a class of considerable pretension to the quality of a higher manhood. The facts, however, are that the most of them are mere pretenders to the qualities of manhood. The facts are that they are tricksters, and upon their tricks they thrive. It is a well-known, and oft-repeated tale that a noted financier of London had horses posted at convenient distance from the English army where it encountered Napoleon at Waterloo to the English Channel, and there a boat was in waiting that was to carry the courier with the news of the result of the battle to London, for the purpose of using the news to make money with. A ring of money men was formed; it was to circulate a false report; the courier was to bring the correct result of the battle. The ring was to circulate just the opposite result from the truth. The paper, bonds, and so forth, of the defeated party, of course, would rapidly decline in value in the markets. The ring were ready to buy up the depreciated obligations, and their profit would certainly come when truth came joggling along to change the value of the depreciated paper to an advance of a premium. In the London and Waterloo case the ring told what was not true. They purposely told that the English had been defeated at Waterloo, and, as had been calculated by the ring, the English securities depreciated. The holders became panic-stricken and threw their paper on the street, where they could get a good price. The ring was to buy up the funds to buy it all up. Truth came along after awhile with its account, and it was just the opposite from what had been reported. The English had been successful. The securities returned to their former price, and advanced beyond to a premium, and the ring were made rich in a single transaction. By a trick many men lost much money.

Some days ago a ring was formed by certain financial operators in the cities of this country and England, to operate through a trick to make money. It was not a battle this time; it was a man, or the name of a man, that was to be used. The money tricksters proposed to cause a panic by announcing that Jay Gould had been shot, and in the expected confusion they were ready to buy up certain kinds of securities that they counted on depreciating by reporting his death. The trick, however, was discovered before the report got fairly started, and now there is an effort to find out who the ring are. That kind of money making is not of a high order.

There has been trouble experienced by fish commissioners to get people along the principal streams to respect the fish laws. One of the chief causes that induced fishermen to hold the law in contempt, is the fact that manufacturers and corporations are not prohibited from emptying poisonous stuffs from their establishments into the streams of water. The people say, what is the use of appropriate money to breed fish, and appoint a commission to attend to the work, and pass a law to punish us fishermen for catching fish when, and as we please, when corporations and manufacturers are allowed to empty their refuse material of their works into the rivers and creeks and thereby exterminate fish by the wholesale. Some of the streams in this State have had their fish population destroyed by the poisonous stuff that has been allowed to be emptied into them. Down in New Jersey a paper manufacturer, in Passaic county, was convicted in court, on the 8th inst., for having polluted the waters of Passaic river with carbolic acid. The laws against the pollution of the waters, and the destruction of fish should be uniform.

Tax faculty of the State Normal School at Millersville, Lancaster county, deemed it proper to expel one student and suspend another, for having violated the rules of the school, and for having been instrumental in organizing a movement against the discipline of the institution. The action of the faculty caused quite a number of students to leave the school. One hundred and fifty of the scholars formed in procession and, headed by a brass band, marched to Lancaster to see those that were taking their departure, off on the cars. The Democracy used to open all their speeches by the sentence, "There is something wrong," and the same may be said of Millersburg. There is something wrong, and the students have had too much of "free schools, free speech and free lands," or the institution has not a good management. Who can answer the inquiry, "What is wrong?"

There has been a good season for American horses abroad. Only a few days ago and Iroquois won the Derby race in England; now the news is, that on Saturday, Foxhall, another American horse, won the Paris race. A dispatch from New York, on the 12th, relative to the race reads as follows: The winning of the race for the Grand Prix de Paris by Mr. J. R. Keene's American horse Foxhall today caused much excitement in turf circles here. Several of the New York pool and club rooms were open, and crowds were waiting to hear the news. Mr. Keene, the owner of Foxhall, was found in his elegant apartment after the fact of Foxhall's victory had been received. He said: "Shepard, the trainer of my stable, called me yesterday that Foxhall was in condition and sure to win. But it is not well, you know, to count your chickens before they are hatched. For the credit of American thoroughbreds and American breeding I am glad—very glad—of the colt's victory. Foxhall has been running second, and it's annoying in this respect to lose—that while one may not care much about the result himself, if you run your horse your friends expect you to win."

When asked if there were no American jockeys skilful and reliable enough to send over to ride American horses Mr. Keene said: "No; we have them reliable enough, but they do not possess the skill acquired by English jockeys. I expect in a couple of weeks to send over five or six good ones, and I intend to keep up my stable abroad, and go on in my quiet way, until I win the Derby."

It is currently reported in Paris that M. Gambetta is about to be the daughter of M. Durand, a South American planter of French origin. The prospective father-in-law was the son of a poor provincial couple, and when a boy went to South America to seek his fortune. He engaged in the coffee and cocoa trades, was very successful, and is now rated the richest man in the Spanish tropics. He returned to his native land several years ago. His oldest daughter married Count Platen, a Swedish nobleman; the second married the Marquis de Escobras, and the youngest, and only remaining daughter is to be the future Mme. Gambetta.

A DISPATCH FROM ENGLAND says: "Professor White, a champion swimmer and inventor of a theory of resuscitation, consented a short time ago to drown himself, that it might be tested for the benefit of the London Humane Society, who were present to witness the experiment. He jumped into the water, and after remaining some time was taken out in an apparently lifeless condition. His body was then put through the course of treatment laid down, and he revived in a short time without apparent unpleasant consequences."

A DISPATCH FROM WHEELING, W. VA., last Wednesday, says: "A storm of unusual severity occurred in this region about midnight last night. A family named Straub, living on Glenn's Run, were swept away by the night, the mother and five children being drowned and the father carried on a log to the head of one of the Sisters Islands, where he was found to-day in an insensible condition. The bodies of the mother and two children have been recovered, but the others have been carried down the river."

Richard Thompson, colored, was killed by lightning at Richmond, Va., a few days ago, while loading a cart with sand on the river bank. There was no storm prevailing, and only very small clouds passing over the city at the time, from which only one flash of lightning issued, accompanied by a moderate report of thunder. He was standing resting on his shovel when killed, the lightning striking him in the forehead.

At Oil City, Pa., a land slide took place about 2 o'clock last Friday morning from the hillside in the Third ward of the city, and crushed through the dwelling house occupied by D. G. Conroy and his family, and three children were sleeping in the house at the time, and narrowly escaped. The house was completely gutted, nothing saved whatever, and the inmates barely escaped with their lives.

Last Friday, the 10th inst., about 5 o'clock in the afternoon a storm struck Solomon Valley, Kansas. At Beloit a great deal of glass was broken out of the windows, but the fury of the cyclone was greatest at Williamsport, where nearly all the glass was broken from the north windows and a number of houses were destroyed, but no lives were lost. Four miles northwest, Dennis Morgan and his sister were instantly killed, and their house was totally destroyed. At Beamington, on the Valley road, twelve miles northwest of Solomon City, a farmer named Ferguson, his wife, and hired hand were killed, and his house was completely demolished. In the same vicinity three stone farm houses were blown down, but the inmates were in the cellars and escaped without serious injury. Many houses and barns along the valley, between Solomon City and Minneapolis—a distance of twenty miles or more—were blown down, but further loss of life has not yet been reported. Hailstones came down very thickly, and some of them were larger than walnuts. The cyclone did not extend so far east as Abilene, but the rain and hail came down for about twenty minutes at a lively rate, and the damage to window glass is large. The cyclone proper was funnel shaped with the small end downward, and at times, as it moved onward, the heavy rain would descend over the hills, east, and large jets would shoot out in various directions. The display lasted about twenty minutes, and the duration of the storm was about one hour. The damage to houses and crops is heavy.

In Kansas, are that the storm extended into Lynn county, did great damage to the crops, buildings, fences, &c. The town of Americus, near Emporia, is almost entirely destroyed, every building in it being more or less damaged. The United Presbyterian church was literally torn to pieces, and the Methodist church was blown from its foundation and almost totally destroyed. Several houses in Emporia were blown down and fences and other property seriously injured. The north and east sides of the State normal school were well patronized. Mr. George O. Hensel, of Lancaster has 10,000 silk worms at work. Five thousand young trout have been placed in streams in Chester county. Employees in Reading breweries will each average forty glasses of beer a day. The following counties in this State are free from city debt: Adams, Butler, Cambria, Fayette, Fulton, Greene, Lycoming, Northampton, Snyder, Susquehanna, Union, Washington, Westmoreland and Wyoming. John B. Holtzman and John H. Feltz killed a black snake near Millfin Station, Lebanon county a few days ago that measured 13 feet in length. Cut worms have made their appearance in the tobacco patches of Chester county. Andrew C. Crozier of Millertown, Venango county, has been held for trial, for indecent assault upon Miss Kate Gilbert of that place. James Dickson was accidentally drowned in Raystown Branch, Huntingdon county on Friday. The body of Marshall Irwin, a boy, who disappeared from Allegheny City five weeks ago, was found in the Allegheny river on Wednesday. Fossil bones, apparently of human origin, were dug up last week in East Franklin colliery, Schuylkill county, 1000 feet below the surface of the earth. There were no marriages in the Second Presbyterian congregation at Soranor during the past year. John Smith, living in Plymouth township, Montgomery county, was attacked by highwaymen on Thursday, who stole his watch and his pocket watch, and robbed him of clothing and $17 in money. A washout occurred on Thursday night on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, near Aberdeen, about thirty-three miles east of Baltimore, which put a stop to all trains. On the night of the 8th inst., Mrs. Jennie Ducey, wife of a prominent citizen of Wapella, Illinois committed suicide in an appalling manner. She burned herself to death by turning coal oil on her clothes and igniting them with fire. In a few minutes she was burned to a crisp. For some time past she had been suffering from a slight insanity. She was a woman quite well known in Central Illinois for her literary culture. That Miss Blanding Elting of Port Jervis New York is a brave woman is proven by what she did on the afternoon of the 8th inst. She captured a burglar named Charles I. Wright. "Miss Elting was at the barn. Hearing the dog barking at the house she went out and discovered a man on the roof. She ordered him down and when he came she called him. The burglar fought and struggled desperately, and tried to throw Miss Elting into the Neversink river. She finally threw him down, and placing her knees on him, held him until the help summoned by her cries arrived."

William Murphy, the divorced husband of Mrs. Newton McClarran, visited from the home of that lady, at Edgewood, on the afternoon of the 7th inst., and requested an interview. When Mrs. McClarran appeared, Murphy threw his arms around her neck, and while thus embracing her drew a revolver and shot her in the back. He fired a second shot, which entered her breast, and then placed the revolver against his forehead and fired, the bullet crashing through his brain, killing him instantly. It is thought that Mrs. Murphy was a divorcee from the account of a divorce from McClarran, who died some years since. About four weeks ago she was married to Newton McClarran, a druggist. The parties are well known, and occupy a prominent position in society.

A dispatch from Archbald, Pa., dated June 9, says: A miner named Charles Gligallon, of this place, is suffering from one of the most painful accidents that ever occurred here. He had with him in the chamber where he worked a boy who helped him to load coal and put away his tools. While inserting a charge of powder for the purpose of blasting down some coal, Gligallon handed the five feet in length, sharp, slender tool five feet in length, to the boy who threw it in the "gob," with the point sticking upward. As soon as Gligallon fired the fuse leading to the blast he jumped on the "gob," to get out of the way, and was impaled upon the priming needle, which entered as the groin and came out just back of the arm pit. Physicians say it penetrated the liver and right lung. With the needle thus sticking through him Gligallon ran some distance, then staggered, and called the horrified boy to his assistance. In the fall the miner's light went out, and the lamp in the lad's belt revealed the shocking spectacle when he went to his aid. With much difficulty he pulled the needle from Gligallon's body. Just then the driver came along and called out, "Bring on that oil." The wounded man sprang to his feet and pushed the wagon out of the chamber without any assistance, then walked about 300 yards along the gangway, until he met two laborers, who helped him to his feet. The doctors believe that he thinks it possible that he may recover as he is endowed with wonderful vitality and courage. Nine accidents are of frequent occurrence and various kinds, but nothing so peculiarly painful as this has ever happened before.

As soon as Gligallon fired the fuse leading to the blast he jumped on the "gob," to get out of the way, and was impaled upon the priming needle, which entered as the groin and came out just back of the arm pit. Physicians say it penetrated the liver and right lung. With the needle thus sticking through him Gligallon ran some distance, then staggered, and called the horrified boy to his assistance. In the fall the miner's light went out, and the lamp in the lad's belt revealed the shocking spectacle when he went to his aid. With much difficulty he pulled the needle from Gligallon's body. Just then the driver came along and called out, "Bring on that oil." The wounded man sprang to his feet and pushed the wagon out of the chamber without any assistance, then walked about 300 yards along the gangway, until he met two laborers, who helped him to his feet. The doctors believe that he thinks it possible that he may recover as he is endowed with wonderful vitality and courage. Nine accidents are of frequent occurrence and various kinds, but nothing so peculiarly painful as this has ever happened before.

PHILADELPHIA'S two public baths are well patronized. Mr. George O. Hensel, of Lancaster has 10,000 silk worms at work. Five thousand young trout have been placed in streams in Chester county. Employees in Reading breweries will each average forty glasses of beer a day. A mercantile firm in Clearfield pays from fifty cents to $1.50 per head for live foxes. The Sportsman's club of Washington county pay $2.50 for information concerning every squirrel shot out of season. Rachel Lester died in Allegheny City while laughing. A number of furnaces have gone into blast in Chester county since the first of the month. There is an eye disease in Pike county that effects the optics of man and beast alike. Hannah Johnson, a domestic living in West Bradford township, Chester county, attempted suicide by cutting her throat with a razor. A Soranor stepmother who had not seen her stepdaughter, Anna Morgan, for several weeks suddenly met her on the street and shook her so violently that she fell in a fit. Mrs. J. P. Harsen, wife of the Presbyterian clergyman at Nanticoke is ill with small-pox contracted by nursing a female servant who had it. The following counties in this State are free from city debt: Adams, Butler, Cambria, Fayette, Fulton, Greene, Lycoming, Northampton, Snyder, Susquehanna, Union, Washington, Westmoreland and Wyoming. John B. Holtzman and John H. Feltz killed a black snake near Millfin Station, Lebanon county a few days ago that measured 13 feet in length. Cut worms have made their appearance in the tobacco patches of Chester county. Andrew C. Crozier of Millertown, Venango county, has been held for trial, for indecent assault upon Miss Kate Gilbert of that place. James Dickson was accidentally drowned in Raystown Branch, Huntingdon county on Friday. The body of Marshall Irwin, a boy, who disappeared from Allegheny City five weeks ago, was found in the Allegheny river on Wednesday. Fossil bones, apparently of human origin, were dug up last week in East Franklin colliery, Schuylkill county, 1000 feet below the surface of the earth. There were no marriages in the Second Presbyterian congregation at Soranor during the past year. John Smith, living in Plymouth township, Montgomery county, was attacked by highwaymen on Thursday, who stole his watch and his pocket watch, and robbed him of clothing and $17 in money. A washout occurred on Thursday night on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, near Aberdeen, about thirty-three miles east of Baltimore, which put a stop to all trains. On the night of the 8th inst., Mrs. Jennie Ducey, wife of a prominent citizen of Wapella, Illinois committed suicide in an appalling manner. She burned herself to death by turning coal oil on her clothes and igniting them with fire. In a few minutes she was burned to a crisp. For some time past she had been suffering from a slight insanity. She was a woman quite well known in Central Illinois for her literary culture. That Miss Blanding Elting of Port Jervis New York is a brave woman is proven by what she did on the afternoon of the 8th inst. She captured a burglar named Charles I. Wright. "Miss Elting was at the barn. Hearing the dog barking at the house she went out and discovered a man on the roof. She ordered him down and when he came she called him. The burglar fought and struggled desperately, and tried to throw Miss Elting into the Neversink river. She finally threw him down, and placing her knees on him, held him until the help summoned by her cries arrived."

William Murphy, the divorced husband of Mrs. Newton McClarran, visited from the home of that lady, at Edgewood, on the afternoon of the 7th inst., and requested an interview. When Mrs. McClarran appeared, Murphy threw his arms around her neck, and while thus embracing her drew a revolver and shot her in the back. He fired a second shot, which entered her breast, and then placed the revolver against his forehead and fired, the bullet crashing through his brain, killing him instantly. It is thought that Mrs. Murphy was a divorcee from the account of a divorce from McClarran, who died some years since. About four weeks ago she was married to Newton McClarran, a druggist. The parties are well known, and occupy a prominent position in society.

A dispatch from Archbald, Pa., dated June 9, says: A miner named Charles Gligallon, of this place, is suffering from one of the most painful accidents that ever occurred here. He had with him in the chamber where he worked a boy who helped him to load coal and put away his tools. While inserting a charge of powder for the purpose of blasting down some coal, Gligallon handed the five feet in length, sharp, slender tool five feet in length, to the boy who threw it in the "gob," with the point sticking upward. As soon as Gligallon fired the fuse leading to the blast he jumped on the "gob," to get out of the way, and was impaled upon the priming needle, which entered as the groin and came out just back of the arm pit. Physicians say it penetrated the liver and right lung. With the needle thus sticking through him Gligallon ran some distance, then staggered, and called the horrified boy to his assistance.
