What do you think of the report from Alaska that only one man in that northern region was killed last year? Most people will say, "Well I suppose their number moved further south."

The Governor of Wisconsin called out eight companies of the State militia to prevent a lot of striking lumber mill hands from destroying property at Eau Claire, on Saturday the 23rd inst.

District Attorney Corkhill has given particular notice to the keeper of the Washington jail that fourteen receive no communications, or see any persons excepting through the District Attorney.

When the President's health has so far recovered that doubt no longer exists of a complete restoration of health, then a day of thanksgiving will be recommended by the Governors of the respective States.

The Prince of Wales is again involved in debt, and the English government is asked to appropriate money to save him from falling into disrepute, which naturally follows a failure to pay honest debts.

An exchange says: "Prayer as the means of healing the sores of the afflicted and curing the sick, is about to be tested in an institution established in New Jersey, in which no medicine or surgery will be used."

The New York Senatorial question came to a close last Friday by the election of Mr. Lapham as Senator. New York State is now represented in the United States Senate by Miller and Lapham instead of Conkling and Platt.

Egypt has taken a step in the direction of the abolition of slavery. There is to be no more importation of slaves, and all people now in a state of slavery are to remain so to the end of their days, but their children are to be free and take care of themselves.

A summer of wheat dealers have been broken up within the past week in the west and east. They had contracted to deliver wheat at a certain price, and the grain having gone above the stipulated price, they failed in their efforts to make good their contract.

The conflicting reports as to the crop yield, both in this and the old country, is sufficient to dust the eyes of the people of the whole country. A few speculators in each of the chief grain markets can manufacture reports to suit themselves, which they do, or there are two sets of men operating, the one to advance the price, the other to decrease the price of grain. How is it?

With a very few individual exceptions all the people of the nation prayed for the recovery of President Garfield from the effect of the murderous assault upon him. A few men profess to believe that a mental desire expressed in words through a prayer cannot possibly affect gross material matter such as that of which a human body is composed. They forget that all laws for the organization of physical matter are brought into active being by the mental decrees of Deity. The being that can by a mental degree so organize gross matter that life is produced holds all nature in complete control, subject to his pleasure. Man has a mind capable of mental, spiritual, desires, which may be expressed in words, prayer. That his earnest spiritual or mental desire prevails with Deity to the extent of putting out of operation physical laws is the belief of the Christian. Christ's mental or spiritual power suspended or rendered inoperative well known physical laws when he raised the dead and healed the sick, and opened the eyes of the blind. Prayer enters the domain of the spiritual law, and the spiritual law governs all gross, or physical matter.

The telegraph from Russia informs the world that a party of nineteen Nihilists have been captured. The party originally numbered twenty. They chose by lot who should assassinate the Czar. The one that was thus chosen for the murderous work concluded that he would not murder the Czar. The band was sworn to to kill the member that should be chosen and then refuse to perform the murder. When he came to consider the enormity of the crime that he had engaged to commit, he preferred to die himself, and he committed suicide. He first run himself through with his sword without injuring a vital part, and having then lodged a bullet with his revolver in his left temple and finding himself still alive fired a ball into his other temple and into the gapping wound made by the sword. He confessed the criminal purpose of Nihilism, and gave the names of the nineteen confederates, and that is the way they came to be arrested.

The history of the blooded aristocracy of Europe presents many cases of morganatic marriages, but with all that, they have not been given to morganatic marriage among pronounced free love people, such as the Victoria Woodhull Blood school. It was reported that a daughter of the free love woman just named had married the son of an English nobleman last Thursday, but later dispatches corrected the report. The Miss Blood that was married on that day is a Scotch girl.

President Garfield's Case.

The New York Times says: There is a certain uniformity of method about the Star Route swindles, in which three elements constantly reappear. First, there was the straw bidder with his straw bondsmen; next, there was the ring, that stood ready to take advantage of the failure of the dummy contractor to do the work undertaken at a ridiculously low price, and, lastly, there was the Assistant Postmaster General, who took care to award the forfeited contract where its proceeds would do most good. It is clear that in most cases the game would not have yielded profit enough to pay for carrying it on had the securities of the original contractor been capable of forfeiture. To the presentation of contracts at impossibly low figures by way of shutting out honest competition, the acceptance of bogus securities was a necessary adjunct. Whoever may be to blame for the scant scrutiny of such bonds as those offered to secure the contracts awarded to B. B. Wiley, the necessity of prosecuting the persons who gave such bonds on the basis of property which they did not own is sufficiently apparent.

All people were so shocked on hearing of the shooting of President Garfield, and, when reaction came, so aroused that wherever a person lived that was bad enough to rejoice in the deed he was completely silenced by the public expressions against both him and the murderer. Since the recovery of the President is pretty well assured, there are signs of an under-current of feeling that would have rejoiced if the bullet of the assassin had taken the life of the President, and certain men are hostile to the appointment of a day of thanksgiving for the recovery of the President. An Independent-Democratic paper at Hazleton, this State, denounced the thanksgiving movement, which so aroused the people of that town that they hung him in effigy in front of his office. A dispatch from Hazleton, relative to the affair, says: The feeling of indignation which prompted the act was caused by an article published in that paper treating the proposed national thanksgiving as a "grand blow out," and containing the following sentence: "The death of a dozen Garfields would not be of such consequence to the nation that the salvation of one should be made an occasion of gushing thanksgiving."

The North American of July 21st published the following:

One of the subjects before the Hebrew Convention—a national gathering recently in session in Chicago—is of considerable importance as indicating the unity of peoples which the progress of civilization is gradually creating, and the practical enforcing of the seventh day abstention from labor, which is alike enjoined by Biblical precept and the teachings of hygienic experience. The point to be discussed is the advisability of changing the Hebrew Sabbath from Saturday to Sunday, so that the devotional, restful period of Jew and Gentile may be in accord with the observances of all faiths. It is a small matter in one sense, but it is of deep import in another. It will be strange if, after centuries of antagonism, the graceful yielding of "the chosen people" shall succeed in preserving to Christianity the reverent observance of the Sabbath day, alike for the benefit of the physical and the moral constitution of the community. It will be remembered that Mahomet was shrewd enough to discover that as the mountain would not come to him, for the purposes of a necessary interview. The philosophy of the man Mahomet appears to have outlived the vigor of his religious scheme.

Mercury is still repeating itself one of the pleasant plays in Shakespeare's to the "Comedy of Errors," mistakes that were continually arising because of the fact that two brothers in one place or town looked so much alike that the one was constantly mistook for the other; even their wives sometimes mistook the one for the other. How the play of Shakespeare repeats itself in the every day life of two brothers in a western State, is told as follows, by an exchange paper: There is hardly any difference in the looks of the twin Bowsers, of Janesville, Wis., but one is a drunken loafer, while the other is an exemplary Christian. The loafer kissed a woman unbidden in the street, and her husband by mistake knocked the Christian down. Her very muscular brother, when the mistake was explained, went out with the avowed purpose of righting the matter by whipping the real offender tremendously, but he met the Christian, refused to believe his protestations that a second blunder was being made, and thrashed him so that he almost died.

In speaking of the recent attempt to assassinate President Garfield the Christian Advocate says: "The situation requires the utmost moderation. Those newspapers and those ministers who have tried to connect this event with the contest of faction, show themselves unfit to lead the public in an emergency; and to attack the Vice President at such a time is little less than infamous. Do not such men know that there are thousands of men just as likely to brood over dark thoughts and to become possessed by them as Charles J. Guiteau, and that intimations that General Arthur would not be a safe President stimulate such thoughts? It would seem that some public teachers are in the same abnormal state which, in others, leads to monstrous outbreaks of fanaticism or crime."

STATE ITEMS.

James Black, a notorious counterfeiter, has been arrested at Erie.

The Lancaster Examiner says that thousands of cigars manufactured in that county are sold as importations from Key West.

Henry Moyer, of Allentown, while grinding a scythe, cut three fingers off his right hand.

In parts of Westmoreland county the people are prosecuting railroaders who run trains on Sunday.

An Indian tomahawk, pipe, beads and arrows in great profusion were dug up near Cresson the other day.

A fight occurred at Pottsville on Tuesday evening a week between employes of a circus and roughs.

Captain George W. Skinner, of Fulton, has domesticated a flock of young wild turkeys.

James Maxwell, a miner employed at the Washington mines in Plymouth, Luzerne county, was run over on Thursday a week by cars and killed.

Corson McCobley, of Norristown, has a four-legged duck.

Over one hundred and fifty murders have been committed in Allegheny county during the last ten years and only four persons have been hung for the offense during the same time. Thirteen persons charged with murder are now in prison in that county awaiting trail.

A hoop snake was killed in Westmoreland county recently, measuring eleven feet and three inches.

Titusville is excited over the discovery of oil within its limits and all around it at a depth of five feet from the surface.

William Hall, a prisoner confined in the Lancaster County Jail, made his escape in broad daylight on Tuesday a week. He made a rope by tearing some bags in strips, which he tied together, and with a hook made from a poker, succeeded in making it fast on top of the wall. He then climbed to the top, and reached the ground on the outside by the same means.

Some Pittsburg capitalists offered a Pleasant Unity farmer $200 an acre for his farm, containing coal and limestone, if he would give them possession immediately. He accepted the offer for a certain number of acres, telling them to make their own selection. They took land all around the house, so that he can't get from his own land that he has left to farm on to his house, without their permission, and now he is in a fix.

A Horrible Tragedy.

A tragedy, in good order, of Johnstown, Cambria Co., Pa. Her melting repetition has not been exchanged and made as good as when new. The story is terse and crisp. All of the natural appointments are exact and real. The Foundry has the best run of custom in the county. In connection with the Foundry there is 6 acres of land for sale, having thereon erected a large Frame Dwelling House, nearly new, and a good Stable, Good Orchard, Apples, Grapes, &c. Everything convenient about the premises. Will sell all or part. For further particulars call on or address
