It is said, that the doctors requested the preachers of Washington City when they called on Garfield, to refrain from talk and prolonged service.

Samuel Joseph of Philadelphia, was shot in the foot, while in the cars, on his way from the Williamsport Democratic State Convention.

An evil spirit seems to be brooding over the Republic and influencing the minds of the people when they can complacently talk about the assassination of the head of government, as is being done in public.

In the Philadelphia Times of the September 30, John Blair Linn, of Bellefonte, points out a number of the descendants of Pennsylvania that were at Yorktown, Virginia, in October, 1781, when Lord Cornwallis surrendered.

People seem to listen complacently to talk about assassination of the President of the Republic just as they listen to the talk about some common event to take place in the future. It were better for the freedom of the Republic to have to meet the armies of Europe on the battle field than for the people to cherish the spirit of assassination.

On Saturday night a prisoner in the county jail at Bloomington, Ill., killed the keeper of the jail. The prisoner was a horse thief. A crowd of five thousand people assembled. The Sheriff and police force were overpowered. All promises of a speedy legal punishment were unheeded. The crowd shouted back, "We have seen too much of court quibbling. The murderer was lynched."

STATE ITEMS.
Wild ducks are plentiful on the Susquehanna, near John Miller, of Everett, Blair county, aged ten months, swallowed a pin, and a few days ago it worked itself out of his neck.

A State Detectives' Association was organized at a meeting in Allentown on Wednesday at which thirty-two counties were represented.

Richard Wellington, a small child of Allentown Washington county, was so badly scalded on Wednesday that he died in a few hours.

A boy named John Duffy, aged twelve years, was putting small stones on the Lehigh Valley Railroad track at South Easton yesterday, when a train came along and cut his hand off.

A terrier was locked in a millinery store in Easton Thursday night, and to his efforts to escape destroyed over two hundred dollars' worth of lace, feathers, plumes and hats in the show window.

William Riddle a hotel keeper of Tyrone, closed his bar when the President died and kept it closed until the funeral was over.

A spiritual medium named Walkers, was arrested at Erie for showing without a license. After hearing about fifty witnesses, among many of high standing, a magistrate decided that spiritualism is a religion, and therefore entitled to all the privileges enjoyed by other sects.

Jacob Guyer, of North Woodbury township, was nearly drowned by a narrow last Saturday. He had finished preparing the ground for seeding when he raised the barrow up on its edge, holding it with his hand, and started the horse. In passing along the barrow struck a post and fell down one of the teeth catching Mr. Guyer and tearing a line almost across his abdomen and then downward into the membrane of the bowels, in the shape of the letter T, the flaps hanging down and exposing the greater portion of the membranous lining. A physician sewed up the wound, and Mr. Guyer is doing right well.—Allentown Sun.

Jefferson Adams in Ohio.

On the 2nd of last June a man named Jefferson Adams, a resident of Millin county, broke out of jail in this place, in which he had been lodged on a charge of stealing a horse from Samuel Rickenbach, of Fayette township. He is now in the Richmond county jail, as the Sheriff from that county informs Sheriff Kelly, on a charge of assault with intent to rape. The Sheriff of Richmond county, Ohio, writes to the Sheriff of Juniata county that Adams will be put upon trial next December unless wanted here in Juniata.

The bad work of Adams, in Ohio, is related as follows: On the afternoon of the 5th, of September a middle aged man appeared at the residence of Mr. Robert Moorehead, whose farm is situated about six miles northeast of the city near the line between Weller and Franklin townships, and addressing himself to Mr. Moorehead inquired if her husband was at home. Receiving a reply in the negative, he said he was in need of a horse and called to look at Mr. Moorehead's with the intention of purchasing. He was directed to the barn, and after inspecting the animals returned to the house, and entering uninvited, found Mrs. Moorehead seated at the sewing machine. Having made some remarks about the fine condition of the horses, he approached Mrs. Moorehead and placed his hands on the machine, remarking as he did so that the machine was an excellent one. The next moment he caught her by the shoulders and dragged her almost superhuman efforts to free herself from his clutches, dragged her toward the bed room with the evident intention of ravishing her person. The lady horror-stricken shrieked long and loudly for assistance, and finally, to stop the outcry the brute pushed his left hand over her mouth. Fortunately for her the villain accidentally inserted his thumb between her teeth, which were closed upon the member with a pressure that produced a deep wound and caused such pain that the fellow relinquished his hold upon his victim. Taking advantage of this circumstance she rushed by him out of the house and gave the alarm, which attracted the attention of Mr. James Moorehead and others, who ran to the house, but too late to apprehend the villain, who had disappeared. Scouting parties composed of neighboring farmers were formed as soon as possible and the whole country searched for the villain, but their efforts were unsuccessful.

About the time of the occurrence above mentioned, a ten year old daughter of Fred Long, target keeper at the crossing of the B. & O. and P. E. W. & A. roads, and a comely young girl, ten months old, fifteen years of age, were walking on the track of the Pittsburgh road, when they met a man who addressed them in language the most indecent. On Saturday morning last Mr. Long's daughter passed the same man on the street and lost no time in informing her father of the fact.

Hurrying up to the Union depot Mr. Long secured the services of policeman Hoover and the two started in pursuit of the man, whom they finally found after an extended search, in the Savings Bank, where he had gone to have a $20 bill changed. The fellow was forthwith arrested and locked up in the cooler on the charge of insulting the children.

When Marshal Lemon visited the man he detected a sore spot on the thumb of the left hand, and suspecting that the prisoner was the same party who had attacked the assault upon Mrs. Moorehead he had a doctor called and driving to the Moorehead farm made known his suspicions to Mrs. Moorehead and requested her to appear during the day at the cooler for the identification of the prisoner. She arrived here in the afternoon, and when brought into the presence of the man, who gave his name as Jefferson Adams, recognized him at once, although since the attempted outrage he had shaved off his whiskers except a tuft on his chin and his mustache and wore a different sort of clothing. On Saturday evening a preliminary examination was held before Mayor Stough, by whom the prisoner was bound over to court in bonds of $100, for his assault upon Mrs. Moorehead. At the examination the prisoner testified in his own defense as follows: "My name is Jefferson Adams; my age is 45 years; went from Juniata county, Pa., to Dayton, Ohio, in 1874, and arrived at Dayton on the 7th day and night and on the 7th came to Mansfield; on the 8th went to John Myers, a relative, near Windsor; on Saturday worked at Ubrich's; on Monday went to work for John Wolf and worked three weeks; and also at Numekers; went back to Pennsylvania on Wednesday, September 7th, and on the 16th came to Mansfield with my wife and five children and our household goods. I got the cut on my thumb by driving a hoop on a barrel when I was packing up. I wore my whiskers full on the 5th and 6th of September, but on the 14th of September shaved them off, leaving my mustache and goatee."

The gentlemen to whom Adams refers and by whom he was employed live in the same neighborhood with the Moorehead family, and yet when the prisoner was interrogated by the Marshal in the presence of a HERALD reporter on Saturday afternoon, he denied all knowledge of the Mooreheads, and a matter of course, that he assaulted Mrs. Moorehead.

Adams wife and children were taken in charge by the township trustees, who will send them back to Pennsylvania.—Mansfield (Ohio) Herald, Sept. 22, 1881.
