We closed our report of the trial of the murderer Guiteau last week with Dr. Spitzha on the witness stand on the question of insanity. The doctor's testimony was a long and interesting testimony, but is easily summed up. It is all found in the nut-shell that when a man is urged to commit a crime by an impulse, and he yields to the impulse, he is lectared in favor of a high tariff.

The sum of the divorced wife's testimony is anytone.

The sum of the divorced wife's testimony is satisfactorily that the sum of the plea of insanity is found in one sentence, in which she said: "I never saw any sign of insanity in the prisoner while I lived with him as his wife." When she retired from the witness stand Guiteau said: "I have not seen this lady for eight years. So far as I know she is a high-toned Christian lady, and I have nothing against her. I wish her well in whatever station she may be."
