Midnight Wings.

A writer from Worcester, Mass., says: One of the phenomena which has been noticed in connection with the cold and stormy weather of the past few weeks is the scarcity of some species of birds which usually make their appearance in numbers throughout the country from the first to the fifteenth of this month. Although in the milder weather of the last month the early birds came thick and fast, passing on their way to the north, the tide of migration has apparently been stayed by the unfavorable weather, which has retarded as well the growth of vegetation in some ways. We were prepared on the rise of the mercury to note a flight of birds during the night and were not disappointed. The early hours of the evening passed without much having been heard of the birds exfrom the darkness Occasionally a flock twenty-four bushe's f bones. of warblers or sparrows would pass, flying so low that the rustling of their wings could be heard. It is suggested, with a view of avoiding the bursting of water-pipes by freezing, to make them eliptical is sections. As the water expands to form ice, it will alter the shape of the pipe, causing it to become circular in section, and therefore giving more room for the ice. It is proposed to aqueeze the pipes into their original shape, when, by a succession of frosts, they have been rounded.

Novel Plan for Wintering Bers.—
Choose any soil that is a little descending and not under water in the spring. Plow with a corn plow furrows the width of the hives, as long rows as you need. Throw out the earth on both sides, making the ditch or trench four or five inches deep, except the lower end, which will be nearly on the surface. Put any kind of boards in the bottom of the trench, then fill the trench with long type straw. Place it as you would to thatch, commencing at the A young fellow who is pretty smart on general principles, and who is always in a good humor, went into a Chicago store the other morning lumping and seemed to be broke up generally. The proprietor asked out the earth on both sides, making the lame. He seemed discouraged and the proprietor asked him what was the matter. "Well," said he, as he put his hand on his pistol pecket and groaned, "There is no encouragement for a boy to have any fun nowadays. If a boy tries to play an innocent joke he gets kicked all over the house." The store-keeper asked him what had happened to disturb his hisrity. He said he played a joke on his father and had been limping ever since.

Roses.—Any good garden soil will grow roses. A rich loam well enriched with well decomposed manure is to be preferred. Do not use fresh stable manure. Pruning may be done during the growing season to get the plants into fine form. This for heavy forts is desirable; their shape can be easily controlled by pinching off the young growth after the plant has attained the heighth desired. When protection is removed in the spring, all the dead branches should be cut out.
