PHILADELPHIA BI-CENTENNIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Dear Sir—Accompanying I send you a copy of the Official Programme as adopted by the Executive Committee of the Bi-Centennial Association.

In reply to inquiries from all parts of Pennsylvania and adjacent States, and also that your readers may be correctly informed of the progress of the Bi-Centennial Celebration in Philadelphia I send you this communication.

A pecuniary market as though by Providence, is that our natal year began on a Sunday and it will end on a Sunday—a sacred hebdomadal year long—turning the mind constantly to William Penn's immortal principles, of right, justice and absolute civil and religious liberty.

What more appropriate than to inaugurate our programme on Sunday, October 22d, with religious services in every church in Pennsylvania, to begin our feast with devout grace to God for His mercy and goodness.

By the by, the suggestion has been made, and it is an excellent one, that every sermon should write out the sermon, the delivers on that Sunday and send it to some designated institution for preservation.

Such a mass of manuscript would doubtless, in times to come, afford rich food for the searcher after thoughts and ideas.

On Monday, October 23d, Chester, where Penn first landed, will commemorate the event with a landing and other ceremonies of an imposing and appropriate character.

Astronomers, that have access to powerful glasses talk eloquently about the comet that a few days ago passed around the sun. But their talk is almost as good as lost on the people, who have not the means with which to see the comet, and some people have been naughty enough to express their disbelief that a comet has appeared.

A horse thief under sentence to the Eastern Penitentiary in the Fulton county jail, took a dose of morphine for the purpose of committing suicide. The sheriff came in on him just as he swallowed the poison, and before the thief was put to an ever lasting sleep in this world, the sheriff had a doctor brought, and an emetic was given the scamp, which saved his life. Society would have been better off if the sheriff had not given the thief the emetic.

Mormons are at work in Franklin county, preaching and securing converts. The Chambersburg Public Opinion of last week published the following with regard to them: Five more conversions to Mormonism are announced as the fruit of the labors of the missionaries at Tontown, and two were baptized on Sunday. It is a reflection on Franklin county intelligence that such a thing could take place in its borders.

James Williams, a boss miner, living in Fermanagh township created quite a sensation on Main Street, one evening last week, by leading his black horse on the pavement, from the post office to Hinkle's store, and there without a word led the beast straight into the store room, as far as to the store, where the animal was turned, without disturbing a thing, and led out by its owner to the maling in front of the building and there tied.

Quite a number of people, from Fayette township attended the re-union, last Friday, and came to town as a delegation, headed by the McAlisterville band. At East Point the band stepped out of their wagon and took the middle of the muddy street and stepped off as if it had been put in the finest order. It looked like business. What is a blackened boot, and a band box uniform, to a set of men that desire to make a parade a success whether it rains or shines. Fayette boys go head.

The following local item from the Philadelphia Times of last Thursday will be read with interest everywhere; John Cunningham, residing on Gray's Ferry road, is charged with stealing two horses, valued at $150, belonging to William Gaul, from the pasture at Sixty-seventh street and Elm avenue and disposing of them for $7 at the Zoological Garden to be fed to the wild beasts. Before the lions, tigers and hyenas had a chance to feed upon the toothsome steaks the horses were recovered. Cunningham was arrested yesterday and held for trial by Magistrate Randall.

Tar Hollow, a ravine through which the road from Johnstown to Academia leads, has recently been the scene of no common commotion occasioned by the finding of a dead infant, child in the barn yard of Adam Paton. On Sunday a week, Robert and Clem Leach, citizens of Tuscarora Valley, chanced to cross the barn yard just mentioned, when one of them, as they passed along noticed a peculiar shaped object projecting from a bunch of straw; he passed some remark about it, which caused them both to stop and look. They were shocked almost beyond expression, to see a dead child. They hastened to find Squire Brown, who was attending preaching at Academia. The Squire held an inquest upon the body of the dead infant, and steps were taken to find the mother. She was found. She is a Miss Paton, and lives with her father, a mulatto living not far from Academia. She is an unmarried woman, and says that the child was still born. She gave the name of the father of the child. He is a married man, and is said to be a overseer of the poor in the township in which he lives.

The boy lecturer, Word H. Mills, delivered a lecture in the Court House, on Friday, and Saturday evenings, devoting one hour and a quarter of time, each evening to the subject, which was "Light and Science of Life and Nature." He is a boy not out of his teens and how one so young in years, as he should have the desire to investigate the laws of nature to the degree required to produce such a lecture is a wonder to all that listened to him during the two evenings just mentioned. As an investigator after truth as revealed in the laws of nature, the lecture stamps him as far beyond the average youth. He would make a preacher with the natural quality of earnestness, and application to delve into the laws of nature, for truth to confound and overthrow the doubts that infidels of this time are awakening in the minds of the people. His manner of delivery and speech is good, and not without standing the fact that the acoustic construction of the Court room renders the finer intonation of the human voice inaudible, he was plainly heard in a tone of voice that is pleasant to the ear. The audience that was to hear him was as large as could be expected and contained a number of the best people in the place.

A Perry county boy aged 14 years attempted to ride a mule through a culvert under the canal at Baley's. The Newport News, gives the following account of it. He had advanced only a short distance, when the mule became too small to admit of his further entrance, but before the mule was halted he had been wedged in between the roof of the culvert and the beast's back as to make his position extremely critical. The lad was powerless to relieve himself from his dangerous predicament. In the meantime the mule grew tired of his cramped condition and began backing out of the culvert, regardless of consequences. He kindly lowered his head, however, and the first step backward let young Fisher hanging by his neck for a moment and then the scalp of the back part of his head was scraped off, when he fell in the shallow stream of water and lost consciousness temporarily. His subsequent cries from pain and for assistance brought him rescuers, who helped him out of danger and kindly cared for him.

Washington D.C. Sep. 25 1892. To the People of Pennsylvania.

By a resolution of Congress, adopted August 5, 1882 the use of the Rotunda and adjacent rooms of the Capitol was granted to the Society of the Army of the Cumberland, for a Bazaar and Reception, to be held from November 25 to December 3rd, for the purpose of raising funds to erect a monument in the National Capital, to the memory of the late President Garfield.

To carry out the purposes of Congress in this resolution, a Board of Direction has been instituted, and under their authority a Board of Commissioners appointed from Pennsylvania to solicit contributions from our State, to attend to their exhibition and sale, and in other respects which the wisdom of the State in an effort in which the Commissioners earnestly solicit contributions from manufacturers, merchants, and from all others interested in the cause. These may consist of money, of articles for sale and of articles for exhibition only. All contributions will be promptly acknowledged. If for sale or exhibition they will be displayed to the best advantage, bearing the name and address of the contributor, until the close of the Bazaar, when all gifts will be sold for the benefit of the fund, and other articles restored to their owners.

The object being only to raise funds, it is desired that gifts may be as liberal as possible. These may include products of every branch of art and industry, whether adapted for display in the rotunda or not, since for the display of coarser and bulkier articles room elsewhere is provided. In an exhibition of this character in which nearly all the States will be represented, the commissioners are ambitious to secure an exhibit from Pennsylvania which, while second to none in attractiveness, shall have no superior as a contribution to the end in view.

From what her people can do in any way of degree, from the products of her homes, her mills, her manufactories, her mines, from the warehouses of her merchants, stocked with the products of every land, we bespeak the best and choicest for this cause.

The memory of our great and good man is the richest heritage we can hand down to posterity. No casket is too rare or costly to enshrine such memories, no monument too proud or lofty. Will not the people of Pennsylvania show their appreciation of the goodness and worth and heroism of James A. Garfield by liberal contributions to this object?

Persons desiring to contribute in any way may obtain full details by addressing the Board of Direction at No. 96 Ebbitt House, Washington, D. C.

It is a custom of the Putes when a mother is delivered of twins to kill one of the infants, to give the other and the mother a chance. Recently, says the Winnemucca, Nev., Silver State, the Pute camp there was thrown into a state of excitement by the birth of twins, one of the three wives of Naches being the mother. The Indians decided not to club one of the infants to death, as the mother is big and strong, being known as "Naches' big squaw."

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer. It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any way affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead, and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. SMITH, KLINE & CO., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and C. N. CRITCHELTON, New York.

BALTIMORE, September 27.—Captain Richard Smith, of the steamer Avon, which arrived in Baltimore yesterday, reports that on Friday night a woman and her five children, named Bush, were drowned near Heathsville, Northumberland county, Virginia. Mr. Bush owned a mill and dwelling, the dwelling being located below the mill dam. Owing to the heavy rains the mill stream rose rapidly and finally swept away the dam. The volume of water then swept down upon the dwelling, carrying everything before it. Mrs. Bush and all the children were in the house and were swept away with the dwelling, which was soon broken in pieces. The bodies of three of the children were recovered before the Avon left for Baltimore, the bodies of Mrs. Bush and two of the children still being missing.

EMPLOYMENT FOR LADIES—The Queen City Suspenders Company, of Cincinnati, are now manufacturing and introducing their new Stocking Supporters for Ladies and children, and their unequal Skirt Suspenders for Ladies. None should be without them; our leading physicians recommend them, and are loud in their praise. These goods are manufactured by ladies who have made the wants of ladies and children a study, and they ask us to refer them to some reliable and energetic lady to introduce them in this country, and we certainly think that an earnest solicitation in every household would meet with a ready response, and that a determined woman could make a handsome salary and have the exclusive agency for this country. We address some lady who is in need of employment in so doing to the Company her name and address, and mention in this paper. Address Queen City Suspenders Company, No. 175 Main Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. July 30, 1892.
