SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN
MIFFLINTOWN.
Wednesday, October 25, 1882.
B. F. SCHWEIER,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

THERE are 7000 churches and 15,000 saloons in Ohio.

THE Republicans have gained two Congressmen in West Virginia.

PIPPS, is to be brought from Canada, to answer for the poor house robbery, in Philadelphia.

THE Prohibition vote, in the late Ohio election, is reported as 12,000 less than was cast, at a former election.

BEAVER, in a speech delivered at Pittsburg, last week says, that he was not slated at Chicago, for the Governorship.

PRESIDENT, F. B. Gowen of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, is reported as being in poor health. It is not age that is enfeebling Mr. Gowen for he is yet a young man.

THE Evangelical Lutheran Synod, of Pennsylvania, Ohio Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and New Jersey, met in Allegheny City, this State, last Wednesday.

A ST LOUIS editor, named Cockrill, shot a St. Louis lawyer, named Slayback, who entered the editor's office and provoked a fight. The lawyer died almost instantly. It was a most unfortunate transaction.

HONOR the memory of Wm. Penn. He did his best to found a Commonwealth on the peaceful doctrins of the "Prince of Peace." He founded a State that will perpetuate his name, and the history of his peaceful purposes.

A MISS PINNEO, committed suicide, at Lawrence, Kansas, before she did so, she had her photograph taken and sent to a number of her friends. She desired to leave this world, but was anxious to leave a shadow of herself with her friends.

WHILE it is not claimed that Doctor Atkinson, is a man of great talent, it is a plain fact, that he is a man above the average man, that seeks place in Congress. He will co-operate in Congress, with men that work for the best interests of the country. Vote for him.

FOR the Bi-Centennial celebration, now in progress, in Philadelphia has raised the price of window rent. Some windows on Market Street have been rented for $6 a day. People rent them as a place to occupy, from which to see the street parade, that take place from day to day.

THE tariff question may not enter into the question of the Governorship, farther than it is desirable that the tariff question be strengthened by the moral weight, that a friendly Governor could give. If Pattison be elected he will be compelled as it were to follow in the historic and traditional path of his party, which is free trade, and if that cannot be secured, the next thing to it, a tariff for revenue only.

A MAN named Westcott says that the history of the treaty of Wm. Penn and the Indians, under an Elm tree where Philadelphia now stands is not a true history. Westcott says that he cannot find an original paper of the treaty or any Penn papers on the subject, and therefore the history is not true. Who that is now living has seen an original paper of the writings of Matthew, Luke and John. Historian Westcott might with the same propriety reject their history, as that of Penn.

JOHN WANAMAKER, has secured the contract for refurnisher the house of representatives at Harrisburg. The next thing the Democrats will be blaming Wanamaker for stealing the old curtains, and carpet. If he would take the old stuff and heap it, and burn it, the Democracy would then say that it should have been given to some one. If it be given to some one they will blame the party that received it, as having stolen it. The average Democrat can never be satisfied in this world. When he gets into the next world he will know more about things.

ONE of the chief points that lawyer Scoville relies on to establish the insanity of his wife is her fondness for other men, than her husband. It seems a queer plea for a lawyer to set up. Some women will as long as they live, think more of some other men, than of their husbands: just as some men think more of other women than of their wives. There have been such cases in all times, and there will be such cases in all times to come, among men and women, but that fact does not in the least effect the husband and wife that love each other, as they should do. But such a plea to prove insanity could only come from Chicago or an insane lawyer, or a man that wants to get rid of a wife.

CONGRESSMEN, elected this fall will be called upon to meet the tariff question face to face, on the floor of Congress. When Judge Kimmel, who is the Democratic candidate for Congress spoke in the Court House, in this place, he dismissed the tariff question, by declaring that the man, that would attempt to discuss it in much less than an hour of time, must be an idiot. He would not discuss it, but he would declare himself in favor of Pennsylvania interests. That was a nice way of getting out of declaring himself a tariff man. We know the few indefinite remarks made by the Judge on the tariff question to be satisfactory to free trade men that were in the audience. There were free trade men in his audience—Democrats—that believe that the expenses of government should be paid by revenue raised by a direct tax, and that all the countries of the world should be allowed to send anything and everything here that they have to sell, if they can find buyers. There is no doubt, as to where Dr. Louis E. Atkinson stands on the tariff question. He does not consider it to the interests of the country, that free trade laws be passed by the country, and that a direct tax be imposed upon the people of the country, to pay the expenses of government. Your safe way is—unless you are a free trader, to vote for Atkinson for Congress.

A COLERED man, named Davis was acquitted, a few days ago in New York, by the General Sessions Court, from the charge of murder. On the 19th day, of last August, he knocked Patrick Hughes down, and so fractured his skull that he died. It was shown that Davies acted in self defense, when he dealt Hughes the blow, and on that ground, he was acquitted.

A DESPATCH, from Fairfield, Iowa, last Tuesday reads. On Monday night wild ducks gathered about the electric lights in such numbers that nearly 200 of them were picked up dead within 3 hours. All the lights but one were extinguished and several globes were broken. The duck despatch so inspired the editor of the Philadelphia Times that he dashed off the following editorial on the coming hunter. To the gunners who in years past have been accustomed to kill ducks with a shot-gun while lying face upward in a freezing muddy marsh, contracting rheumatism, colds and an unlimited number of other annoying diseases, this occurrence will have a peculiar significance. Instead of exposing himself to wind and rain and storm, the gunner of the future will plant his electric light poles in the marsh, start the electric battery and retire to the convivial seclusion of the nearest hotel. In the morning he will go out with a four-horse wagon and bring home the ducks, which will be found in heaps at the bottom of the poles. Should the trouble of picking up the dead water fowl become monotonous or in any way burdensome, the gunner can arrange rows of bags at the foot of the poles and the ducks will pack themselves ready for shipment. It is but natural to expect that in time this style of gunning will be extended to other species of game, and it will not be long before a man who now can hardly tell the differences between a ramrod and a mainspring will become a mighty hunter."

TRAGEDY IN TENNESSEE.

The following, which was despatched from Knoxville Ten., last Thursday to the Philadelphia Times explains itself

One of the most desperate and deadly shooting affrays that ever took place in the shot "gun" region of East Tennessee occured on the main street and in the heart of Knoxville this morning. Three prominent citizens were almost instantly killed, two were wounded and half a dozen had their clothing perforated by buckshot. The dead are General Joseph A. Mabry, his son, Joseph A Mabry Jr., and Major Thomas O'Conner. The Mabrys were a family of fighters, and a score of men have lost their lives at the hands of the male members of the clan. The triangular duel this morning however, ended the lives of the last two men of the Mabry line in this section. In August General Mabry quarreled with a neighbor named Moses Lusby about a horse. They separated each vowing vengeance. A day or two later General Mabry and his son Joseph, met Moses Lusby and his son Daniel. The elder Lusby asked the General if he was "fixed," which inquiry referred to the possession of fire arms. The General replied "Yes" and drew a navy revolver, an example which was followed by his. The Lusbys also drew and began firing first. A dozen or more shots were fired. Both the Mabrys were slightly wounded and the Lusbys were killed. The Mabrys were arrested, released on bail, tried last week and acquitted on the ground that they were acting in self-defense, when they removed old and young Lusby. While the fatal quarrel between the Mabry and Lusby families was said in court to have originated about a horse, it was generally believed that the Lusbys were killed out of revenge, Dan Lusby, having shot and killed General Mabry's son, William, at a merry-making last Christmas.

THE FEUD BETWEEN MABRY AND O'CONNER.

Some months ago Genaral Mabry and Major O'Conner, president of the Merchants' National Bank of this place, disagreed about the settlement of a claim which grew out of a transfer of a tract of land once owned by the General. Mutual friends prevented a duel and soothed the angry men into quietude. The time of the Mabrys was so taken up with the settlement of the Lusby affair, that they did not reopen the quarrel with Major O'Conner until Wednesday afternoon, when the General met the Major at the county fair. Mabry publicly upbraided O'Conner and declared that he had not treated him (the General) as one gentleman should treat another. Major O'Connor, replied that it was not a gentleman's place to settle private differences in public. The General then told O'Conner that he should not live. Mabry was armed, but O'Conner had no weapons. As Mabry was about drawing his revolver friends interfered and they were taken away from each other. An hour or so later Mabry sent word to O'Conner, who was at home with his family, that he intended to kill him on sight.

THE DEADLY DUEL.

Between nine and ten o'clock this morning Major O'Conner, stood in the Merchants' National Bank, on Gay St., smoking a cigar. Down the other side of the street walked General Mabry, arm-in-arm with a friend. O'Connor who was awaiting the coming of his enemy, stepped into the bank, picked up one of two double barreled shot guns that stood by the door and came out on the steps, at the moment General Mabry came up. Seeing O'Conner, General Mabry stopped and reached for his pistol as his companion stepped back. Before Mabry could draw his pistol O'Conner took deliberate aim and discharged one barrel into Mabry's left side. The General reeled, shook his fist at his murderer and fell dead upon the sidewalk. O'Conner fearing that the General might revive again, raised the gun and sent another charge of buckshot into the dead man's left thigh and body. In an instant after the firing the street was crowded with people running to the scene of the tragedy. O'Conner pushed his way through the first arrivals, entered the bank, picked up the other shotgun and came out bare-headed upon the street. About this time Joseph A. Mabry, the General's son, who had heard the shooting and suspected, who was doing it, came rushing up, revolver in hand.

YOUNG MABRY AND O'CONNER KILL EACH OTHER.

The crowd scattered right and left as young Mabry advanced, and O'Conner, who was greatly excited, did not catch sight of him until they were less than forty feet of each other. The major raised his gun, but young Mabry was quickest and the shot from his revolver entered O'Connor's right breast and came out of his back. O'Conner fired almost at the instant and young Mabry fell a corpse on the pavement. His side and breast were literally riddled with buckshot, no less that 20 wounds being found in a space but little larger than a man's hand. A second after young Mabry fell Major O'Conner dropped dead upon the steps of the bank. The whole tragedy occurred within two minutes and not one of the three principals spoke from the time the firing began. General Mabry, had more than thirty buckshots in his body and his son had a greater number still. One bystander was shot in the thigh, and another received 3 buckshot in the arm. The affair has caused more excitement than anything that has occurred here for years. The dead men were all wealthy and widely known throughout this section of the State. Major O'Connor was reputed to be the richest man in East Tennessee. Colonel E. J. Sanford the first vice president took charge of the Merchants National Bank immediately after the shooting.

Mrs. Samuelson will never admit that her husband has a single good quality. She never gives him credit for anything that he does. Not long since he attended a banquet, and he came home at an early hour and perfectly sober, but she flew at him all the same. "I was the very first one to come home; all the rest are there yet," he said. "Well," she growled "I don't see that you are entitled to any credit for the others staying there after you left."—Texas Siftings.

GENERAL ITEMS.

A Mississippi gentleman has offered two prizes for the State fair—A box of kid gloves to the handsomest unmarried lady, and a gallon of whisky to the man who writes the best essay on temperance.

An Illinois cow swallowed $600 in greenbacks. She was killed and the money recovered.

A young lad in West Chester has a domesticated snake, and amuses his companions by letting it coil about his neck, &c.

An art class of young women at Faribult, Minne., induced a man to let them experiment on him for a plaster cast. After they had covered his face the quills slipped from his nostrils, and he was so nearly suffocated to death that a physician with difficulty revived him. They forgot to oil the skin, too, and the plaster stuck fast, damaging him to an extent that necessitated his stay for a week in a hospital.

A couple of pretty young ladies in Williamsport the other day disguised themselves as mendicants and started out on a begging racket. They enjoyed their fun hugely, until some one more curious than the rest penetrated the disguise and gave the girls away.

Mr. Joseph Mock, of Frankstown, Cambria county, while digging a well unearthed at twenty-three feet from the surface, a piece of calico about four inches square. The woman hasn't turned up yet.

With a baby at breast nothing is so useful for quieting my own and baby's nerves as Parker's Ginger Tonic. It prevents bowel complaints, and is better than any stimulant to give strength and appitite—A Newark Mother.

DANVILLE, Va., October 17.—In Patrick county, this State, where the dearth of provisions recently excited public attention, there was on the 14th inst, sold at public auction a body of land containing 1132 acres and having on it several settlements and apple orchards at about $3 per acre. On the same day there were sold at auction eleven tracts of land in the same county, containing respectfully from 60 to 300 acres, on several of which there are settlements and orchards and indications of iron ore, the whole being about 1800 acres, at an average of about $1 per acre.

Dyspeptia, weak back, despondency and other troubles caused me fearful sufferings but Parker's Ginger Tonic makes me feel like a new being. A great remedy. Every woman should use it. Mrs Garlts, Pittsburg.

Some evenings ago between 7 and 8 o'clock two masked men rushed into the house of George Brill, three miles north of Elizabethtown, Chester county when the door was opened by Mrs. Brill to ascertain the cause of the dog's barking. The men caught Mr. and Mrs. Brill by the throat, bound them securely and under threats of instant death compelled them to indulge the whereabouts of their money. While one of the ruffians stood guard over Mr and Mrs. Brill and their 12 year-old daughter the other searched the house, securing only a small sum of money, a watch and some clothing. Before leaving they poured some vinegar into a loaded gun and threatened the inmates with instant death if they should attempt to leave the house before daylight, stating that parties were outside watching, and would harm them if they attempted to give an alarm.

While the usual Wednesday night services were going on in the Roxboro N. C., Baptist Church, which was crowded, the immense chandelier, holding twelve large kerosene lamps and suspended from the ceiling, broke and fell in the midst of the congregation. As the chandelier fell the lamps were overturned, and spread hissing sheets of fire in every direction and in an instant the church and many of the congregation were in flames and others were stifled by the black oil smoke, which quickly filled the building. Men women and children were soon crowded together in one huddling mass, all panic stricken. The minister was among the first to recover his presence of mind and he at once called to the deacons to preserve order and persuade the congregation to be calm. This had the desired effect and as soon as the minister, who fortunately had a stentorian voice, shouted the names of the different church officers present they began at once to break open the doors and windows and organized to remove the women and children. The church, which is a large frame building without galleries, had four doors and large windows on each side, and fortunately was not raised high above the ground. The congregation therefore, were enabled to get out without delay. Several ladies and an old gentleman were badly injured by the falling chandelier. Numbers of others were burned by the oil, but up to this hour no deaths are reported but it is feared that four of those present, all young ladies, will die from the effect of the flames.

GENERAL ITEMS.

Pleuro-pneumonia has made its appearance among a herd of cattle in East Lampeter township, Lancaster county. Several of the affected animals have died. The cattle were recently brought from the west.

Freddie Harpersberger, of Wilkesbarre, aged 6 years, got his clothing well saturated with coal oil on Saturday. Soon afterward he secured some matches, and setting himself on fire, was quickly burned to death.

Louis Brand, a young man residing in Allegheny, very nearly lost his life a few days ago through the error of a druggist in that city substituting morphia for quinine in a prescription. He showed symptoms of poisoning soon after having taken the medicine, and a physician was summoned at once, who succeeded in counteracting the effects of the drug.

From the Boomerang.

There is something peculiar about somnambulism, when considered from a scientific and philosophical standpoint. The sleep walker, it will be found, still retains a dim idea, even when he is asleep, of the condition of affairs when he went to sleep. For instance, if he leaves his clothes in a certain part of the room on retiring, he knows when he rises just where to find them even in the dark. This is a question which opens up a wonderful field for physiological and mental research.

While young and giddy we became a somnambulist, and excited a great deal of curiosity by our strange freaks during sleep, and this one question of the slumbering mind and its memory of facts existing prior to sleep was the most remarkable thing about it all to us. We puzzled over that a good deal. At night we would retire to rest, and the next thing we would know we would wake up in the raiddle of a contiguous melon patch, and there would be two or three other somnambulists there in the same patch, and as much surprised as we were. Still there is the same truth staring us in the face. Every somnambulist there had through his sleep retained in his semi-conscious state a perfect recollection of where every article of his clothing was and how to get out of the up-stairs window without waking the old people.

By and by the owner of the melon patch procured, at great expense, a large, humorous bulldog, who was also a somnambulist. He walked in his sleep a good deal. That is why we quit. We didn't propose to descend to the level of the brute creation. We just said, if a bulldog wants to somnam he can do so, and we will leave the field to him.

We made this resolution one night just after we had plugged a water melon. While stooping over in the act, we felt a pang of conscience and heard our suspenders break.

Perhaps the casual reader has never set down on a buzz saw and felt himself gradually fading away. If so, he does not know what it is to form the acquaintance of a somnambulist bulldog in the prime of life.

After that somnambulism didn't have such a run in our family for a while. We never slept so sound that we didn't remember places and objects that had made an impression on us prior to slumber, and that is why we say that there is something in this matter that scientists would do well to look into.

A party of young men, who gave Mr. John E. Hinnerdeer, of Dillersville Lancaster county, a serenade of the noisy kind upon his wedding night, recently, were arrested and paid fines and costs amounting in the aggregat to $180. They assaulted the groom' when he asked them to leave, and shot one of his dogs.

Allen Swartz, of Quakertown, Bucks Co., was instantly killed, on Wednesday, by the accidental discharge of his gun while hunting.

An ungallant act is mentioned by a western exchange as follows: A young man started for a drive of twenty miles with his sweetheart, through an uninhabited tract in Minnesota. At a point about midway of the lonely route the pair had a bitter quarrel. The fellow unhitched the horse, mounted it, and rode away, leaving the girl in the wagon, where she remained all night, and next day walked home.

No Whiskey!

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is guaranteed to be a non-intoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. RICE, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters:

Cin., O., Nov. 16, 1881.
Gents:—The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure, and vicious indulgence of our people, makes your preparation a necessity; and if applied, will save hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.
