having a sufficiency of the "B." The latest theory in regard to the origen of coal oil is brought forward by a young man as follows: at the time of the deluge the whales of the world gathered in great schools and on the subsidence of the waters were locked in pools in the mountain gorz ges. He intimates that one hundred billions of whales had time to develop to maturity before the cyclone struck the earth. These whales subsisted oot for a time, but soon succumbed to 006 the sun's heat and relapsed into a liquid state, becoming so many barrels of oil. A large number of those antedeluvian whales were stranded in 005 Pennsylvania and are now floating around in a liquid state beneath the crust which now forms the States's surface. The result of all this has been that every now and then some lucky individual punctures the crust, strikes a whale and is rewarded by a
