

WEST CHESTER is to have an other national bank.

GOVERNOR-elect Pattison is enveloped in the shadow of the office seeker.

Mrs. Best, a Pittsburg woman became insane through attendance upon a revival meeting.

DEMOCRATIC civil service reform, means, put out the Republicans that's the whole of it.

GENERAL BUTLER, it is said has taken to praying, but how do they know that he has not been praying all his life.

An unkind exchange says, that the young lady that made speeches for Ben Butler during the late campaign was spoozy. Naughty exchange.

Democrats say, that the count was the fore-runner of Republican defeat. Don't forget it. Mr. Democrat that there are two sides to all things.

The Democracy are pleased with Ben Butler, few years ago they thought that he should be hung. The probability is that he is to be their next candidate for the Presidency.

Bad appointments, and reckless appropriation, and party mismanagement in the hands of unworthy men is what caused the defeat. The party turned suicide rather than submit to such evils.

SINCE the Democracy have come down out of Salt River they have been feeling themselves all over to see whether it is so; they can scarcely keep from breaking out into a general jollification.

THE Northern Lights, last Friday night so disturbed the telegraph wires that it was almost impossible to send dispatches. In some of the western offices the switch boards were set on fire.

A GEORGIA editor says: "Gold is found in thirty six counties in this State, silver in three, copper in thirteen, iron in forty three, diamonds in twenty six, whiskey in all of them, and the last gets away with all the rest."

GOVERNOR-elect Pattison has appointed a Methodist preacher as his private secretary. The office is worth about $3,000. The politics of the preacher is said to be Republican. He is known to Philadelphia as Rev. Thomas T. Everett.

BENJAMIN BUTLER, Democratic Governor-elect of Mass., in a newspaper interview said a few days ago that he attributes the Democratic victory to a protest against Republican extravagance. His excellency forgets that the every day life of Democratic citizens is as extravagant as that of the Republicans.

MESSRS. FORD & Co., of New York have brought suit against Mr. Beecher, for not finishing his "Life of Christ," so that they could go on with the publishing of it. He agreed to write it, and they agreed to publish it and prepared accordingly, but he never finished the writing thereof and hence the suit for damages.

What would one of the old time prophets say of New York city?

Tax report reveals that there will be many contested Congressional election cases. It has become almost a common thing to contest before Congress for a seat. The majority of Congressional candidates at best are only tricksters, and just so long as Congress is allowed to pay both sides in the contest, there will be contests for seats. To a trickster it makes no difference whether he has a just claim or not, if he can get a handsome sum out of the Treasury, for expenses in a contested case.

No little excitement was created in Harrisburg, last week when suit was brought against an election board of the 6th ward on a charge of having made a false return against the Greenback nominee for Assembly.

Three votes were returned for him. It is said 20 men are ready to be qualified that they each cast a vote for him at the poles. The board should be sent to jail if they intentionally falsified the returns. They waived a hearing and each gave 500 bail for appearance at court.

THE new Legislature will have at least two members that believe in settling personal grievances between the parties among whom they arise.

The one is Mr. Sponser, of Perry county, the other is Mr. Adams, from the 6th Senatorial district. Sponser knocked a citizen down for standing up and intentionally insulting him, and Adams sent a challenge to a man who intentionally insulted him. There is a talk of contesting the seat of Adams in the Senate on the ground that the State Constitution forbids the sending of a challenge to fight a duel.

THESE are men and women now living in Juniata county, that remember the days before matches were used to start fire with; they remember the times when fire had to be carefully covered every evening, to keep it till the succeeding day; they remember what trouble families were put to when by mismanagement the fire was allowed to die out. The man who first made friction matches in America died at Norristown this State on Sabbath evening, November 12, 1882, aged 78 years. He commenced the business in New York in 1831.

A church congregation in Mass., is helped financially by the recent election. The particulars of which are set forth in the following which was sent from Boston: The Congregational church at Easton, Massachusetts, wins $5,000 as the result of Tuesday's voting. The house of worship was burned not long ago, and in response to an appeal for aid in rebuilding, Oliver Ames jokingly replied that if elected, Lieutenant Governor he would contribute a like sum. A local paper says that General Butler heard of it and promptly agreed to cover the conditions as far as he might be concerned. The General was elected on the Democratic ticket and Mr. Ames on the Republican. The church members are non-partisan enough to be thoroughly satisfied with both results.

Washington Letter.

By our Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON D. C. Nov 17, 1882.

It does not take people here long to recover from surprises. It is the rising, not the setting sun that has charms for them. When Garfield came to the chief magistracy amidst the blizzards of a million torches, and the wild huzzing shouts of the nation we too rejoiced and jubilated as never before, and when he kissed both his mother and wife, as the first public act after the oath of office was administered, we were all thrilled, and pronounced it, as the grandest act ever enacted in Washington. Bright were our anticipations of his administration. We looked forward to the coming of much of the wealth, culture, and intellect of the country during the 4 years, that seemed to stretch out so auspiciously before him. By the crack of a pistol all is changed, and Washington while it mourned turned smilingly to the man, next in succession. Just as soon as the dead are buried, we are on the qui vive, as if no moonbeam circumstance had taken place. We are politically commercial, and dependent on the reigning dynasty, and that is the whole of it, in a nutshell.

Though he came "amidst clouds and darkness" we turned to President Arthur, with a greeting known only to people accustomed to change of administration.

President Arthur, has been a good President so far. His face has been in flexibly turned against reckless jobbery and extravagance, but he has never yet received the credit due him. The country condemned the River and Harbor bill, but it never gave the credit that he merited for voting that measure down.

The crack of Quitman's pistol was scarcely more of a surprise than the late political deluge that overtook the states of the Republic, but as we got over the surprise of the former, so we have passed through the surprise of the late election, and now we are only looking forward to the meeting of CONGRESS, which will take place only two weeks hence. Already a number of members are here. The few Democrats that are here are not shy in declaring their purpose to adopt such a line of policy for Congressional action that will compel the repeal of the internal revenue laws, and if such laws are not repealed, they say that it will be the Republicans and Arthur that will stand in the way, but perhaps after the Democrats have their caucus their policy may be different. On the other hand there are Republican members here that are as advanced on the question of the repeal of most of the rebel war taxes, and from present appearance it looks as if the new Republican member from the 18th district for Pennsylvania—I believe lives in your town—will not have a chance to vote for the repeal of the internal revenue tax. All this however is conjecture. The Congress man who is for party and spoils will be loath to repeal laws that give place to 4000 office holders and party henchmen. If the late elections are taken as straws to show which way the popular mind blows, it will not take Congress long after it meets to know what to do. On the question of

THE TARIFF, it is believed that the Tariff Commission is almost ready to report to Congress. There is a general distrust of the Democrats on that question; all their past proclivities have favored free traders and the question may go over beyond the 4th of March and become a question for the next Congress, and in that event your new member will get a chance at it. The tariff question is a more complicated question than that of internal revenue, but it is not so hated by the Democratic leaders as the war taxes. A great deal may be written on the jury phase of the Star Route cases, but as the evidence is not all in, I refrain this time from more than a mere mention of the ugly features, that have revealed themselves, in the temple of Justice at Washington. The people have great need for their own good to look at the management of the machinery of the courts, not only here, but in every county in the Republic. Suppose that you take your glasses off the Washington Court and direct it to Juniata, and see whether, among the Court House rats, you may not find the jury fixer. There is a

SQUABLE brewing in the case of the admission of Dakota, which may break out soon after the assembling of Congress. It is believed that the Democrats will vigorously oppose her admission, because the Senate will gain two Republican Senators, when she becomes a state member of the Republic. Generally speaking the Republicans are anxious that Dakota shall be admitted immediately, but a member or two are interested in a railroad enterprise or enterprises in that territory, the railroad bonds of which have been repudiated by county authority, in one or two counties, and for that reason, there is not a united support. It has been a favorite method of men that are unscrupulous in business transaction to form a ring of their kind and project a railroad, and by hook or crook get county, or state, or national endorsement on bonds, and then sell the bonds, on the ground floor would realize handsome money, but the last buyers would be parties fleeing. Certain county authorities in Dakota endorsed railroad bonds, and afterwards repudiated them, and because of that repudiation, certain Congressmen oppose Dakota's admission. Were they in the railroad ring? Many investigations have grown out of smaller circumstances than that. The Democrats broke the heart of Oakes Ames with a merciful

INVESTIGATION, to help their party. Their bounding of Oakes Ames had not even the merit of an honest impulse; it was gotten up entirely for party purposes. He built the railroad. He came in and took the place where a scheming corporation failed of its purpose. If he had been the corrupt man they desired to make him appear, he would have disposed of the bonds as speedily as he could and left the road to its fate, or to other hands to complete; so now when the Democrats are sitting to hatch up investigation, after investigation, don't let yourself be carried away by every fresh cry; let us be certain that the cry is a just one before we join in.

GENERAL ITEMS.

Four Michigan lads are nursing broken arms received at Hollowen.

Mr. Comfort, of Teumash, Mich., got 40,000 cabbages of his acres.

A man named Madden, an employe on the Lewisburg railroad was robbed of $500 by a fellow-workman the other day, and the loss bore so heavily upon him that he died.

William Masakoy, Erie, has gone crazy over his disappointment at the result of the election. He belonged to the labor party.

Mrs. Maxwell, of Allentown, and her two small children have been seriously poisoned by eating sausage.

A prairie fire raged on the Mongolian frontier in October, covering seventy square miles and consuming numbers of Cosack outposts and villages.

James Holm, aged 18 years, residing near Myerstown, Lebanon county, was fatally injured in the head on Monday by the explosion of his gun while out hunting.

All ladies know their faces are most attractive when free from pimples. Parker's Glyceric Tonic is popular among them because it banishes impurities from blood and skin and makes the face glow with health.

Miss Thompson of Indianopolis was forbidden by her parents to encourage Van Horn as a suitor, as he was a drunkard. She would not give him up and eloped with him. He got drunk on the night of their marriage, at a Columbus hotel, and she took a train for home, convinced that the old folks were right.

A young man went into a sawmill at West Lawrence, Tigua county on All Hallows' Eve and built a fire in the engine and set the mill running. But for the timely arrival of a man who lived in the neighborhood the mill would have been blown to atoms.

John Hardeen, said to be the oldest man in Cumberland county, and probably the oldest man in the valley, died at Big Spring recently. Papers in his possession verify his claim that he was 120 years of age.

Wm. A. Weishons, of Westmoreland county, on September 3, sowed three-fourths of an acre of buckwheat and in less than two months the grain was harvested and threshed, yielding eighteen bushels.

A cow belonging to Calvin Cooper, of Smoketown, Lancaster Co. was walking about in the yard when she tripped on a rolling stone which threw her to the ground and broke her neck. Mr. Cooper valued the cow at $75.

Why suffer from a state of ill health? Why be troubled with dyspepsia? Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you.

A Lebanon dispatch says: A horse rode to pieces, a coffin lying on the roadside, mourners fainting and confusion among pall-bearers, ministers and friends were features of a most distressing accident on the Cornwall pike here last Friday. The funeral procession of Mrs. Newmaster was proceeding from the Ore Banks to the Methodist church when the horses attached to the hearse took fright at a terrible rate of speed. The hearse was overturned, the glass sides were broken, the coffin thrown out and split and the hearse broken to pieces. The mourners carried stopped, and when the other carriages beheld the wreck many fainted away and dropped in the road. The undertaker was obliged to send to town for another hearse before the funeral could go on.

For the brain and nerve is what we need in these days of rush and worry. Parker's Glyceric Tonic restores the vital energies and brings good health and joyous spirits quick, or than anything you can use.—Tribune.

On the night of the 10th inst., near Stateville, Lehigh county, the horse of Daniel Peter was broken into about the manner roughly handled. The robbers demanded money and valuables and threatened to shoot anyone who resisted or made an outcry. While the robbers in another part of the house searching for money Mr. Peter got his revolver and fired at one of them, when he came back into his room. At the same time the robbers threw a trunk at Mr. Peter and hit him on the head. Mr. Peter thinks he hit the robber, as marks of blood were found in the house and outside. The only money that was secured by the robbers was $15 belonging to the hired girl, when they struck a violent blow in the face when she offered resistance. Several characters are suspected and arrests are expected to follow shortly.

The purity and elegant perfume of Parker's Hair Balsam explains the popularity of this reliable restorative.

A Memphis magistrate had before him one morning last week a young man who at a masked ball the night before had figured as George Washington, to whom, however, his resemblance was so entirely superficial that he became drunk and abusive before the night was over. The magistrate pronounced sentence in the following homely but emphatic language: "Now if you had got drunk as a private citizen and cussed and ripped around as such a fellow as you appeared at the masked ball, you would have committed a crime while perpetrating the character of George Washington, the revered father of his country, I will have you fined for twenty dollars. I won't have this patriotic business brought into disrepute."

Two railroad hands fought a duel near Easton recently with pistols that had been charged with black cartridges by the seconds. Finding that they could not shoot each other the difficulty was settled by a fist fight.

Of the 11,000 grain mills in Holland 10,000 are driven by wind, the proportion being about the same as with our congressmen.

health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of BROWN IRON BITTERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.

Manufact, Ohio, Nov. 26, 1882. Gentlemen.—I have suffered with pain in my side and back, and great nervousness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, and a feeling of weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several courses of medicine, and was treated by prominent physicians, but I have not improved, and am now in a very bad way. I should have fined you five dollars, but inasmuch as you appeared at the masked ball, you would have committed a crime while perpetrating the character of George Washington, the revered father of his country, I will have you fined for twenty dollars.
