OLD TIMES.

There's a beautiful song on the slumbrons air That trills through the valley of strams; It comes from a clime where the roses were, And a tuneful neart, and bright brown hair

Soft eyes of azure, and eyes of brown, And snow-white foreheads are there, A glimmering cross and a glittering crown, A thorny bed and a couch of down

A rosy leaf and a dimpled hand, A ring and a plighted vow; Three guiden rings on a broken hand, A tiny track on the snow white sand.

There's a tincture of grief in the beautiful song That sols on the summer air, And loueliness felt in the lestive throng Sinks down in the soni as it trembles along

And it mingles with matin chimes; But years have distanced the beautiful lay, And its includy floweth so swiftly away,

WHOSE PAULT.

Fred Dayton assisted his wife's consin. Jenry Searles, into the carriage that was waiting for her at the station. She had been his wife's bridesmaid and he sighed as he looked in her smiling face. It was three years since that so-called happy event occurred, but though she was a trifle more staid and dignified, she had the same happy smile, neat, trim appearance that he so well remema fault somewhere. The house, as the carriage stopped in front of it, looked as if it was all shut up. If Jenny had expected to see her cousin in the hall she was disappointed. Fred looked slightly disconcerted as he glanced around. "Fanny's in her room, I suppose ; I'll hunt her up." "Ah ! there you are, Fan," Here a dowdily-dressed woman made her appearance at the other end of the hall, whom Jenny would have failed to recognize had it not been for the warm embrace and eager greeting. After leading the way to the dark and rather untidy sitting-room, Fanny's animation all at once forsook her, and, throwing herself upon the sofa, she burst into tears, much to Jenny's surprise and consternation, the happy past?" sighed Fanny, as she wiped away her tears, 'And the present is not less happy, I

Before your marriage you would have been terrified at the idea of his catching a glimpse of you in the attire in which you now allow him to see you all day. Why should you seek to look less pleasing in his eyes now than then ?"
