During the honeymoon a man can come home from a lodge at a late hour, fall down, roll under the bed, and tell his wife that he is looking for his collar button, but after that period the explanation wears an extremely glib appearance.

It was at Wilkes Tenn., court, when a prominent citizen of that county was foreman of the jury. The Judge had gone through the remarks which usually precede his calling attention to special laws and had commenced that part when the foreman, in a very distinct voice, remarked: Judge, you have heard it so often that I am perfectly familiar with it. History don't say whether or his Honor abbreviated the charge or not, but the court room was full of laughter for the next minute, in which the Judge was constrained to join.

There are more instruments used in the choir in the brick church, than in any other choir in the county; a bass viol, and two horns give such volume to the music that the house is caused to tremble during the time of the songs of praise. Fine music.

"Wake me up, darling, to night and give me a toddy," said an Austin inebriate to his wife as they were about to retire for the night. "But how shall I know when you want one?" "You can't make a mistake. I am always thirsty when I am woke up." - Texas Sittings.

The Italians have a peculiar belief: "I pray that I may never be married. But if I marry, I pray that I may not be divorced. But if I am divorced, I pray that I may not marry again. But if I do marry, I pray that I may be able to laugh at the whole affair."

A Cambria county paper says. John H. Fisher, a Cambria county justice of the peace, has been fined $100 for marrying a minor without the parent's consent. The law is an old one, having been passed in January 1729. The penalty for its violation is a fine of $50.

"Ah! George, isn't it delightful that we are not rich in this world's goods, but with such love as ours we can almost live on bread and water. Can't we, dear?" "Easily," said George, with great emotion. "You furnish the bread, love, and I will skim around and find the water."

The following recipe remedy for diphtheria is given upon authority of the Christian Standard of the 20th ult.; Put the person suffering from diphtheria into a warm bed. Take a shovel of red hot coals from the fire, sprinkle a tablespoonful or two of flour of sulphur on the hot coals and place under the bed. Remove the shovel out of the room when the affected person begins to cough. Let this be done for two or three nights, and it will be found that the fumes from the sulphur will kill the throat fungus called diphtheria.

A United States officer, from Washington was sent to Carlisle to summons James Bosler as a witness. He called at Mr. Bosler's home late at night and against the protest of Mrs. Bosler forced his way to the bed chamber where Mr. Bosler was in bed, and there in a rough manner forced the summons. It was an unreasonable hour to go to a man's home to serve a summons. An impediment in this county had been his head badly hurt, for attempting to enter his home late at night to make an arrest for a trivial offence. Officers, when in the discharge of their duties should not be resisted, but then on the other hand, officers should do their work at a reasonable time, and not come prowling about a man's castle at an unreasonable hour at night. Officers are appointed to protect private rights, but they seem to be getting above their business and to be taking to violating private rights.

A Hollidaysburg paper says: In the year 1733, just thirty years ago James Irwin, the grandfather of Hon. Joseph Irwin, Dr. Crawford Irwin and David C. Irwin purchased from Robert Morris, the great American financier and land speculator, the farm now owned and on which Mr. David C. Irwin now resides, near the Presbyterian cemetery. The land was purchased on the installment plan and when a payment became due Mr. Irwin put the gold in a little bag and walked to Philadelphia, a distance of 245 miles, paid his money and walked back to his home. The last and final payment was made in the city jail. Mr. Morris, although one of the signers of the declaration of independence, a member of the convention that framed the federal constitution, a member of the first United States senate, superintendent of finances, sent out the first American trading vessel, and done his old age, another man's fortune was cast in his old age, yet he was not to die on the 8th day of May, 1806, at the age of 72 years.
