The following is a synopsis of a sermon preached last Sabbath by Rev. Geo. Benaugh, from the 2nd. Epistle of John, 4th chap. 19th verse, which reads:

'WE LOVE HIM, BECAUSE HE FIRST LOVED US.'

It was an interesting sermon that Mr. Benaugh developed from the text.

The speaker was impressed with the sublime truth of the text, and he made that point the introductory to the sermon. The sublime truth of the text teaches

FIRST GOD'S LOVE FOR US.

The sacred penman reveales to us God's love for man. The love of God for man is the grandest subject for man or angels to consider.

A second grand truth of the text.

IS OUR LOVE TO GOD.

There is nothing so unsearchable as the supreme love of God for man. It is difficult to understand for no human being can see God. He is invisible to us. The sacred writings tell of his love for us, and in the material things around us we can see the love of God; it is visible on the face of nature; in the sunshine in the waters of the rivers; in the blades of grass.

But there are beings that cannot see God in this light.

God loves those that love him. That is the greatest subject of theology.

WHAT CAUSED GOD TO LOVE ME?

You can trace human love; you can trace it from cause to effect; there is reason for man to love his fellow, but what was it that caused God to love us.

The blessed truth of the text teaches,

1st. THE ANCIENTNESS OF GOD'S LOVE.

How long since God loved the soul? He loved from the councils of eternity. Go back in this world as far as you can, to the garden of Eden, for a glimpse of its ancientness, go back beyond the time when Eve plucked the forbidden fruit, millions of years before Eden, for the love of God. In contemplating the ancientness of the love we are lost in the ocean of antiquity. The ancientness, and antiquity adds dignity to the Divine love which we cannot conceive of, even if we get to heaven we will not be able to conceive of the dignity of the love of God.

2nd. A SECOND CONDITION OF GOD'S LOVE IS ITS SOVEREIGNTY.

Which implies the independence of Jehovah; remember that God is independent of you; that God is under no vow, under no obligation to love you. Think of the sovereignty of that love, so far from, and yet so near. He is not bound to love us. There is an intensity stamped upon the love of God that we cannot conceive of.

3rd. A THIRD CONDITION OF GOD'S LOVE, IS ITS EXHIBITION.

The exhibition of the love in Jesus Christ The atonement of God's Son. What is the Gospel without this? What is death without this? What is a risen Redeemer without this? The story of all stories is that Jesus Christ is the exhibition of God's love.

4th. A FOURTH CONDITION OF GOD'S LOVE IS THE DIVINE SATISFACTION.

God has his delight because he loved his son. The love of God is made known no where except in Christ. The church has been organized; the ordinances have been instituted because God loves Jesus.

5th. A FIFTH CONDITION IS THAT GOD'S LOVE IS ANTI-DISCRIMINATE.

It matters not how poor, it matters not how rich, people may be, God loves his church because of his son, and because of that he loves all that love him.

6th. A SIXTH CONDITION IS, THAT THE LOVE OF GOD IS IMMUTABLE.

God's love never changes. All things earthly change. Human love may change. Society may change. Empires may rise and fall, but God's love never changes.

WE LOVE GOD BECAUSE HE FIRST LOVED US.

There is a reason why the saint loves God, there is no reason why God loves the saint. The saint's love is not reached by human love, for man cannot love God if he has not God's spirit in him. You cannot be qualified to love God by a course of study; no amount of study will make the saint love God. No refinement will make man love God. The love of God cannot be acquired by learning, or study, or by association in society; richness cannot inspire love.

God looks upon his son and because of that he loves man.

God did not love the rich man who left Lazarus laying at his gate. Our love must be impartial. It must not be love of earth.

The foundation of the Saints' love is found in God's love for me. God had first to love man. Take the first man and his acts to see what he can do by himself. But he like God and serve him? In the acts of disobedience of the first man see where man lies to day.

The foundation of the saints' love is in God's care for us. To prove this we have the love of Christ constraining us. This love is essential. This love is powerful as a transforming principle. It matters not what one does, it matters not what one gives, it is not worth a straw unless you love Christ. Those that have the transforming principle in them are the saints.

A personal examination will reveal the foundation on which we stand.

Do we love God because he loved us? Do we love God because of his son? Let us examine ourselves. Let us ask ourselves personally. Do I love God?

He had not intimated to any one that he was not well and it is presumed heart disease was the cause of his sudden death. He was about sixty-two years of age.—Valley Spirit.

On the morning of the 3rd inst, Ira Cramer, a youth aged 18 years, a son of Daniel Cramer had the misfortune to have his right foot crushed by a car wheel. He was in the act of stepping on the shifting locomotive but his foot missed the step on the engine and came down on the rail, and was there run over by the driving wheel. The foot was amputated about two inches above the ankle joint, by Drs. Crawford and Banks. The accident took place in the Patterson yard.

Two bank officers—one a teller, in St. Louis, and the other a cashier, in Washington, Pa.,—were convicted and sentenced to State Prison for embezzling the money of their respective institutions. The Washington cashier literally wrecked his bank by plundering it of $100,000, while the extent of the St. Louis teller's theft was over $200,000. In each case it was "the same old story"—appropriating the bank's funds for the purpose of private speculation, and of course losing it. The story is such an old one, and has been so often repeated, and the lesson is so impressive, that it is marvelous that in this day and generation any man who is not absolutely an idiot should be guilty of so criminal an experiment, which invariably proves fatal.

Last Thursday was quite a day for boys that play at marbles. A Patterson lad came over with a new game that revolutionized the old, slow, process of accumulation by the "knuckle down" system. The boy had a cigar box with a hole through the lid. His game was to have a boy stand up straight with his head held out on a line with his breast, and while in such a position to drop a marble so that it should fall through the hole in the lid into the box; the boy that could do that was to have three marbles from the marble banker or the owner of the box, but if the boy failed to drop a marble into the box through the hole in the lid the owner of the box, or the banker becomes the owner of the marble. The new system took like hot cakes on a cold morning: it was so much easier done than the old way of crouching on the ground and casting the marble with the thumb, and besides that it was a speedier way of loosing and gaining, which stimulated the natural propensity that humanity has to gamble or engage in games of chance. With the new system of marble play, it did not take the Patterson youth long to break nearly all the boys on this side of the river. The boys took their loss as indifferently as if they had been playing at jines and gain for the period of half a century. The Mifflin lads learned the new game thoroughly, and before the sun went down on Thursday, they had a number of boxes or marble banks in full operation.

George Diven, of Lack township, was brought to town by deputy sheriff Lapp, and constable Rollman, and lodged in jail on the 3rd inst, on the information of his brother Samuel Diven, on a charge that he threatened to shoot Samuel. The officers had quite a time of it in making the arrest. They reached Diven's house about noon on the day mentioned above, Diven came to the door in answer to their call. Officer Lapp stated his business and proceeded to read the warrant and tapped his prisoner. Diven refused to go, and invited the officers off the porch to the yard where he would show them that he would not go with them. The three then walked off the porch into the yard. Diven proposed resistance, Lapp told him to present his hands to be hand-cuffed, Diven was gesticulating with his arms, and Lapp swinging the hand-cuffs. The talk and the movements of the men excited a large dog to such a degree that the animal sprang at Lapp's leg; the officer kicked at the brute, but all the while kept up remonstrating with Diven to surrender. Officer Rollman drew his revolver and fired at the dog, the shot did not intimidate the ferocious brute for it sprang at the back of Lapp's neck but Rollman's revolver was too quick, and the second shot from it brought the dog to a summer-sault before it reached the back of the deputy. The animal turned over and over and left the scene as best it could. While Rollman was settling with the dog, Lapp had drawn his revolver, and that, and the shots fired at the dog from the constable's pistol brought Diven to terms. He gladly surrendered and was brought to this place without trouble.

This is calculated to deceive parties contemplating a trip West, as by the Pennsylvania Railroad you can go any day in the week on Fast Express Trains and at just as low rate as by any other route on Tuesday. It is a well known fact that the Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route between the East and Great West. The Miners' Journal relates the following, an explosion of gas occurred at Packer No. 2 Colleriy, Lost Creek, on Tuesday last. Among the men who were terribly burnet were James Lishman and his son William. The latter was a fine young fellow and was engaged to be married. The marriage was to have been solemnized on Thursday evening. When his bruised and blackened body was brought home only a few hours before the time set for his wedding the feelings of all concerned may be better imagined than expressed. The injured man's friends supposed of course that the wedding would be postponed. Many of them thought it would never take place. But the girl to whom Lishman was engaged said no, the marriage shouldn't be postponed. She wanted to see him recover, and no one, averred, could take such care of him as his wife. In compliance with her wishes the marriage ceremony was celebrated. The groom lay on his bed unable to move without suffering torture. His father was similarly situated. Soon after the pair was made man and wife the groom's father died. On Saturday the young wife was left a widow. Both father and son had been injured to greatly to recover.

The Rugby club, gave an entertainment in the Academy building on Saturday evening. The room was crowded. Your correspondent having no love for the sardine pressure of an over-crowded room left before the performance began. Billy of the Herald, and Tues. of the Tribune were there in the dress circle, each looking as radiant as a big aesthetic sun flower. They would have been as much at home in the gallery cracking peanuts with the boys. How happy they appeared, to be with note book in hand ready to give a two or three dollar notice for a fifteen cent complimentary ticket. Perhaps they were trying to live up to the Divine precept, "that it is more blessed to give than receive."

A Boston housewife: They were a Boston couple, who had been married but a few weeks and had just gone to housekeeping. As the husband stood at the door one morning, with the market basket in his hand, his wife threw her arms around him and said: Do you indeed love me so very much, Bradford? Bunker Hill Monument may fall, he said with enthusiasm but my love will always stand." "Well, then" she exclaimed, kissing him, "don't forget the basket." —Brooklin Eagle.

MANHOOD

How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of DR. The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.
