The deficiency in the English wheat crop is said to be 8 1/2 per cent.

The Georgia Legislature has passed a general local option law for the state.

A blight, has blighted the prospect of a large potato crop in Wayne county.

The European wheat crop is reported to be 10 per cent below the average yield.

I took the Legislature of New Hampshire seven weeks to elect a United States Senator.

Old Orchard Beach, Maine, is the place where a professor cures people of diseases by prayer.

The removal of the tax on national banks will cause more of such institutions to be organized.

The Texas fever has broken out among native cattle in Kansas, and they are dying off in great numbers.

The $10 a day, constitution striking Legislature still meets at a cost of $3,000 a day.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers have refused to have anything to do with the striking telegraph operators.

The Philadelphia Times remarks that the $10 a month farm hand helps to pay the $10 a day extra session member of the Legislature.

The circle of domestic relationship in Blair county is evidently disturbed, or there would not be 30 applications in the courts for divorce.

A common school temper rages in Cameron county, because of the appointment of a county superintendent by State Superintendent Higbee.

The Legislature gave an installment of the constitution apportionment requirement by passing the judicial bill, but it still takes it $10 a day for each member, and sits over the Congressional, Representative and Senatorial apportionment bills.

The latest report from Mount—well, it makes no difference about the name, but the report from across the sea is that Noah Ark has been found imbedded in ice on top of a mountain in Asia. The report is either a frozen fact or a frozen lie.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Gloucester, a colored woman of New York city, who was freed from slavery in Virginia in 1817, died in New York a few days ago, worth $500,000. She saved her earnings, or wages after she became free and invested in real estate in the city, and speculated till she had amassed the fortune stated above.

President Arthur is not traveling through the Yellowstone country in a coach and 4 horses, but in a buck board wagon and 4 mules. He keeps things moving at the rate of 100 miles a day. He is no "tender foot," who comes from the government city of the Republic and dashes through the solitude, and wilds of the public lands at such a rate. It will be a task for the Indians of that region swift as they are to keep up with their "great pale face father."

The past history of the Democracy does not place them as among debt reducers. They were debt makers. When the Republic came into power in this state the Democracy had crowned their work with a debt of $40,000,000 and still a growing, and when the Republicans came into power in the nation, the national papers could not be sold at less discount than 12 1/2 cents on the dollar. Such are the frozen facts, and they are worthy of the consideration of men that know that the finance of a nation or state as well as that of an individual must be solid to insure success. The expenditures must not continually exceed the receipts or bankrupts must be a necessity follow.

Jefferson Davis is trying to make it appear that Judge Jeremiah Black when in President Buchanan's cabinet gave such advice, as that which led to a line of action on the part of government that civil war was brought about. If the rebel chief keeps on writing on the subject, he will get the country to believe that Judge Black never was in sympathy with the rebel movement. The movements that brought on the civil war was the secession of the southern states and their attempt to force the General government to give up to them such property of government as was within the limits of rebellion. The country will be pleased to know that Judge Black was not in sympathy with such a division of public property. Much obliged for the information Mr. Davis. Write again.

Jefferson Davis, President of the defunct Southern Confederacy, had a long article in the Philadelphia Times in regard to something that Judge Jeremiah Black wrote and had published concerning the question as to who provoked the civil war, or rebellion. The rebel chief makes out a better case for Judge Black as a champion of national interests when threatened by armed interference by a state than ever had been made out for him before. By the time Davis writes another letter or two he will have the Judge to appear in the light of a strong national union man, which he has not been credited with. Davis labors to have it appear that if for Sumpter had been surrendered there would have been no war. Judge Black will probably take care of the question, meanwhile, during the pendency of the discussion of the subject between the Judge and the delinquent chief Davis, the nation understands that the question of who occupied fort Sumpter or any other fort was a secondary matter. The question at issue was the question of slavery, and the south cared for Sumpter only so far as it was a help for that cause.

The Legislature passed and the Governor signed a judicial apportionment bill.

The national debt was reduced the past month $8,000,000 and still the Democracy keep up the shout. "The Republicans must go."

In traveling to the west President Arthur rested over Sabbath. The President is gradually growing into the good graces of the people of the country.

There were 800 Grand Army men in procession at the celebration of the 120th anniversary of the battle of Bushy Run in Westmoreland county, last week.

SULLIVAN, of Boston, is the champion footballist. He runs a saloon in the city named when not knocking some other man out of time, or when not practicing to do so.

The latest reports from President Arthur, is that he has been traveling about in Washington Territory, in a buck board wagon, drawn by 4 mules, at the rate of 100 miles a day.

A MEMBER of the Legislature named Horne, from Johnston, Cambria county, took two much of horn and became "how came you so," and was expelled from the Methodist church.

The cashier of an Elmira, N. Y., bank was successful in speculation in land that the bank is short two hundred thousand dollars. The bank is broke, and the depositors are talking about lynching the cashier.

The Legislature is the law making body of the State. What a spectacle the present legislature presents to the world by sitting day after day, violating the constitutional law, not passing an apportionment bill.

The Democrats are highly pleased that they carried Kentucky by 40,000 majority. They should have carried it by a larger majority for it is one of the Democratic strongholds.

What's got the matter with the unterrified in the Bine Grass state?

L. L. CONRAD, a Baltimore lawyer was shot in the head, dead, by his insane wife a few days ago. They had retired for the night, and she shot him as he lay in bed. The friends would not arrest the wife. The probability is that she will be sent to an asylum.

WESTMORELAND county people held the 120th anniversary of the battle of Bushy Run, on August 6. It was the celebration of an important victory won over the French and Indians by Colonel Henry Bouquet. Alexander Robison, ancestor of one of the Robison families in Juniata was in the fight.

The North American remarks that the Democratic papers complain that the government at Washington is now run by clerks. Suppose it is, what have they to say about the government at Harrisburg being run by a clerk? Pot may as well refrain from abusing kettie any way. Talking about kettie does not whiton pot.

GEN. GRANT does not like to travel on Sunday if he can help it. The other day Gen. Porter telegraphed to him in the Catskill Mountains that a director's car was at his disposal for a trip to Long Branch on Sunday. Gen. Grant politely declined it, saying: "I always tried not to travel on Sunday when I held office, and there does not seem to be any reasonable excuse for it now."—New York Tribune.

JAMES O. PARKER, aged about 38 years, a lawyer doing business in Williamsport, Pa., but a Massachusetts man by birth, left a few days ago, with over $6,000, of money that belongs to clients of the law firm of which he was a member. He was a pious sort of a man, a splendid Sunday school worker. He left a wife and son behind, and by an unexplained way, he is believed to have secured to himself twelve or fourteen thousand dollars more that belonged to clients.

SCHMIDTKE held a camp meeting near Philadelphia last week, and had fine weather for their spook manifestations. The attendance ran up to as high as 15,000 people a day. The spirit of an Altoona lawyer was conjured up and announced that he had changed his religion. The Muddy Run school house spook was not heard from. The boys that ran the spook business so successfully in Muddy Run might learn something in the art of spook playing from the Philadelphia camp meeting spook performers. Of course the spooks were not in the business at the camp, they being too innocent for such artful performance. If the Register's Johnnie Bull was there he has not sent in his report.

Forty thousand people turned out at a Confederate reunion at Galveston, Texas, last Wednesday, Aug. 8. Of course there was a time where so many had assembled, and when the "late war" was talked about it wasn't much of a surprise that an old Confederate general said in a speech, "he would never admit that the 'bloody chasm' had been bridged over. He was glad that Butler had not been invited. Butler was not a Democrat. The name of Jefferson Davis, General Lee said, was the grandest in American history. The speaker would never make peace with Butler. He might be an unrecruited rebel, but if called upon to defend national honor or rights he would respond."

Last Thursday a statement that N. L. Dukes made after he was acquitted by the Fayette county jury, was published. Dukes wrote the statement for publication in case of his death which he thought might take place at any time at the hands of some one of the friends of the Nutt family. The statement is an attempt to justify the shooting of Captain Nutt under the plea of self defense. He alleges that he believed that Nutt came there to kill him. The letter that he wrote to Nutt he calls an appalling blunder. He certifies the preachers and editors for writing so severely about him. There is nothing new in the statement, and his denunciation of people that condemned him for the shooting of Nutt after having provoked him to commit an assault does not in the least lessen the crimes that he was guilty of.

The New York Independent of a recent date produced the following plain and interesting article on the unit of value:

The unit of value is a specific quantity of that commodity which is used as money, generally determined by its weight, that is taken as the standard of all other measures of value. This unit in the United States is called a dollar, whose standard weight is twenty-five and eight-tenths grains of gold, consisting of nine hundred parts by weight of pure gold to one hundred parts of alloy. A piece of gold having this weight, with the proportions of its constituents, and bearing the stamp of the United States Mint, is a gold dollar. The legal equivalent of this piece is a silver dollar, weighing four hundred and twelve and a half grains, and consisting of nine hundred parts by weight of pure silver to one hundred parts of alloy. All the other coins of the United States, with the exception of the minor coins composed of certain proportions of copper and nickel, are graded in their weight and fineness to the gold or the silver dollar. The eagle or ten dollar gold piece, for example, weighs ten times as much as the gold dollar. The different coins are graded to each other and to the unit of value according to the decimal principle. The object of having a variety of coins of different weights is simply one of convenience in their use. Their relative value is fixed by their relative weight.

The fundamental principle that underlies all these coins is one of quantity as determined by weight. The fineness or purity being the same, each coin has value in proportion to its weight. The stamping is nothing but a sign and guaranty of this weight. A load of wheat containing forty bushels is by the same rule worth just as much as a bushel, only a few rods to pick blackberries. During her absence a thief broke a piece of glass in one of the windows, put his hands in through the broken aperture, unbolted the window, which he then hoisted and lifted his thieving carcass into the toiling widow's domain. He first helped himself to something to eat and then stole a revolver and a pair of boots, the latter belonging to her son, when he decamped without hindrance.

Nearly all of the fish eaten in America are sardines come from Maine. They are small herring. Sometimes only a herring or two are taken at a time, and at others so many as to endanger the net. The degree of dexterity with which they are cleaned is astonishing, especially as it is done by very young children. After this they are placed on large grids and suspended over a hot fire to boil. The boxes are prepared with attractive French labels indicating olive oil, but this is false, as the oil is cottonseed. The packing is another operation at which the people here are expert. A fish is seized in each hand and laid lengthwise in the box, first a head at the outer end and then a tail. After the boxes are full a small quantity of oil is poured in, and then they are passed to men who solder them tightly. They are next thrown into an immense cistern, where they are boiled two hours, thus completing the cooking process and dissolving the bones of the fish. One of the establishments in Lubec prepares about 4000 boxes daily, and there are 19 such places in Eastport, besides many others at seaport towns. The actual cost per box, including all expenses, is said to be 5 cents.—New York Sun.

The wife of Jesse Oren, who resides on Dr. Whitmer's farm, in Juniata twp., had one of her feet badly cut by a mower. Her son was mowing some grass, when a hen with a brood of chickens got in the way, and he called his mother to come and drive them away. In doing so she used her apron to "shoo" them along, the fluttering of which caused the horses to turn aside suddenly, and the knife of the mower to catch her foot. Her injuries are painful though not serious.

Frank Lightner, in helping to haul logs on the farm of S. M. Lightner, of Sheffer's Valley, was thrown over a steep embankment, and into a stream of water, with a part of the load of logs on top of him. The accident occurred by the wagon upsetting over the embankment. Frank escaped with slight bruises.

On the 4th of August last dinner was served at the home of Mr. Samuel Roth, of Toboyew twp., about a mile north of New Germantown, was destroyed by fire, together with his crop of grain and hay. A wagon and drill were also consumed, and a valuable horse burned to death.—Mr. Roth was working in the field when the fire was discovered. It is not known how the fire originated. The barn was a new one. There was an insurance of $700 on the barn and $200 on the crops.

The Newport News says a few mornings ago, Mrs. John English, a widow, who lives about 1 1/2 miles below this place, along the railroad, locked up her house, bolted the windows and went away from her home, only a few rods to pick blackberries.

During her absence a thief broke a piece of glass in one of the windows, put his hands in through the broken aperture, unbolted the window, which he then hoisted and lifted his thieving carcass into the toiling widow's domain.
