

Storm Notes.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., August 26.—The correspondent of the Tribune at Rochester has compiled from the official reports of the relief committee and of the agents sent out by the County Commissioners estimate of the losses of different farmers in Olmstead county.

The agents report that the path of the cyclone was from west to east, and was about 18 miles long. They have examined the condition of 50 farms in the tract, and say that every house and barn on them was demolished, and that much valuable stock was killed, farming machinery wrecked, and thousands of bushels of grain destroyed. The loss to farmers in the county is not less than $200,000. In Rochester itself much relief work is being done, and $25,000 have been received, but the funds are still meagre. One hundred and fifty families are destitute and rely on neighbors to shelter them. One hundred and forty buildings will be erected on sites vacated for the purpose. A building association will be formed, in the fund of which the money appropriated for the erection of buildings will be placed, and will be distributed pro rata, each assisted person giving a note for the remainder of the cost of the improvement of his building. Two more deaths of injured persons occurred yesterday.

ITEMS.

Petrified snakes were found in a block of brownstone from a quarry near Hummelstown.

A piece of meat lodging in the throat of an 8 year old son of Dennis O'Brien, of Hollidaysburg, caused his death.

The stomach of a cow that died suddenly in Montgomery county was found to be full of blood. A ten penny nail, a carpet tack and a hair-pin had done the damage.

In a town in Litchfield county, Conn., the Sunday morning church service is postponed until 12:30 o'clock to enable the deacon and other members of the church to take their milk to the depot.

Into a barrel of whisky that happened to be drunk in Hazleton a little lad dropped a match. The barrel exploded, the boy was hurled a considerable distance and badly bruised and the whisky irrigated the soil.

Ayer's Ague Cure, when used according to directions, is warranted to eradicate from the system all forms of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, Intermittent, Remittent and Bilious Fevers, and disorders of the liver. Try it. The experience is a safe one, and will cost you nothing if a cure is not effected.

If a newspaper printed in Sylvania, Ga., says that there are three hundred inhabitants in that town, and that there has been a death of a man or boy from natural causes since the town was incorporated, thirty years ago. Two women have died in that period.

The gloomy fears, the despairing views, the weariness of soul that many complain of, would not disappear were the blood made pure and healthy before reaching the delicate vessels of the brain. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purifies and vitalizes the blood; and thus conduces to health of body and sanity of mind.

F. P. Clark, of Conesus, had a horse cured of stiff fore joints a couple of weeks ago in rather a novel way. He hired a man to work with the horse in a potato lot, and as a hard hail storm came up, he unhitched the animal, and with it made for the shelter of a big oak tree some rods distant. When 10 or 12 feet from the tree the horse was knocked by his knees by a thunderbolt, and the man was stunned and covered with dust and sawdust from the tree. He was also cut in the face and hurt on the body by the flying bark, and in no place seriously. The horse has not been stiff since.

OUR CORRESPONDENT IN THE QUAKER CITY.

EMILE ZOLA AND THE BOX MARCH.—A GREAT AMERICAN RIVAL.—A UNIVERSAL WANT SUPPLIED BY WAMANAKER'S—GOOD AND GOOD TO A MAN.

Rapid transit is an agent prolific of many things! Ninety minutes from New York to Philadelphia. Quick work! Half an hour later I was seated in the cosy drawing room of mine host and hostess of the Philadelphia Times. The Times by the bye, is a special institution of this time honored city. A perfect structure, nobly planned, a corps of editors who would do credit to any country—a corps of bright spirits, whose journalistic labors have rendered this independent organ a power in all circles.

Speaking from a literary Standpoint, reminds me to mention en passant, that Zola's commercial novel (Peterson, publishers) has struck the keynote of popular favor. Previous efforts of this powerful author, perhaps because of certain orthodox proclivities, have fallen flat, but this is a go! Yet it is an undoubted fact, his inimitable parodies of the Booker de Danvers might have been drawn from Wamanaker's grand opening of midsummer styles.

The triumph is the subtlest thing imaginable! A hundred feet of goods each and each section and department structurally efficient unto itself, yet a seemingly indispensable appendage to the wonderful perfect whole—a problematical result, which is like unto nothing else in heaven or earth, or the water under the earth," a towering splendor of fancies and fabrics indescribable.

One finds every thing in the line of materials from the softest wool to the richest silks and velvets.

CACHEMIRE MARGUERITE.

Genoa, always famous for its velvets, has produced a silk called the Cashmere Marguerite, which according to Demorest's Monthly Magazine, a standard authority on such points, is taking precedence of foreign brands. It is of medium weight, with beautiful finish and durable color and does not crack or grow gray with wear. It is immensely popular in Europe and cannot fail to supply a want long felt in this country, in securing a good and handsome grade of goods at a reasonable price.

The Nonpareil Velvets introduced last year have, according to the Bon Ton become a standard fabric of fashion in Paris as well as in America. They are being unanimously adopted by Mr. Wamanaker's buyers for seaside wear, made up stylishly, the quality at $2 per yard, is equal to the best imported fabrics at $10. The fibers, though soft and supple, is strong as iron.

The broche fabric of this brand is one of the season's novelties, and comes in all the fine and fashionable shades. The velvet figure is woven in, not stamped, and its beauty continues to the end. The ganon article has the word "Nonpareil" stamped on every yard, so that no mistake need occur in the ordering.—RETAIL TOILETTES.

RETAIL TOILETTES.

Concerning styles on display, I must say that irrespective of fabric or combination the modish symmetry of all garments is in a measure perfect. The imported designs are of course exquisite. No one will deny that Paris leads the fashions of the world; yet many of the rare toiles which grace the far-famed fates of Philadelphia, Washington and the watering places are worn by lovely patrons of the Grand Depot, and are especially designed and executed by Wamanaker's modistes.

With a view to convenience and economy they keep on hand hundreds of suits of every class for every possible occasion, and it would seem as if the prices asked barely cover the cost of material used in making, which is always excellent of its kind, and the sewing is neatly and tastefully executed, and all garments made by this house. Only an accurate measure is required in fitting out purchasers from a distance, and they are always ready to furnish estimates and sample fabrics, and give gratuitous information concerning styles, whether parties purchase or not.

Such consideration on the part of a dealer possessing the unlimited facilities of Mr. Wamanaker is a real benefaction.

A potent and powerful lever in the forces brought to bear, is the fact set forth in the preface of the comprehensive catalogue of goods and prices sent on application to out-of-town purchasers that goods will be exchanged, or money refunded if upon inspection they should prove unsatisfactory.

The obvious fairness of this proposition, and the conscientious scrupulousness with which it is adhered to in all cases, has taken the public en masse by storm. A path thus paved with palpable and undeviating justice becomes plain between dealer and purchaser. Patron and provisionaire inevitably become friends. It is the transaction re-acted over and over again under the vaulted archways of the great American rival. The romance of Murel and the fair Denise retold with some noteworthy additions, and a judicious seasoning of Quaker sentiments—a la mode.

What wonder that Mr. Wamanaker gathers his patrons from every town and hamlet throughout the country. His method of manipulating buyers has surely and steadily brought far-flung States and Territories into the arena of the home trade, and with satisfying results.

Other firms too are famous for their original conception and the meritorious emphasis with which certain mammoth enterprises are executed. Sharpless & Sons, an old and honored house—have, this year, instituted a novel method of advertising goods specially adapted to meet each season's necessities.

In the Spring they announced bargain sales, not only of the standard goods, but of novelties as well, in every department throughout the immense establishment. Millinery, Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Black and Colored Silks, Upholstery, and other inclusive lines, the list containing some fifty varieties of goods, at much lower prices than such articles were ever before offered.

They are now making preparations for a grand display of goods, and the announcement of the days set apart for these great sales will be made in conjunction with a complete and comprehensive price list of the articles to be exhibited.

Letters asking for or giving information regarding prices and styles in late fashion fancies, should be addressed to their Mail Order Department, cor. 5th and Chestnut Streets.

Those who live at a distance and wish to buy articles of dress or for household services, and desire to know the prices for such things are to be sold, can procure the paper containing the price list, by simply writing for it, and they can then send for any approved article mentioned in the mail order department, where competent hands execute such commissions carefully and promptly.

The Sportsman's Hand-Book Free.

Before starting on his autumn hunting or fishing expedition the wise sportsman will do well to consult the pages of "A Paradise for Gunners and Anglers," a neat and handy publication, recently issued by the Passenger Department of the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore R. R. This little pamphlet finds the sportsman's paradise in the Maryland and Delaware counties, and that section is exhaustively treated with regard to its hunting and fishing resources. Not only are all its birds and fishes discussed and described, but their habits are described upon and their haunts disclosed. Valuable hints are also given as to the time and manner when angler or gunner may work with the best success; and explicit directions as to routes and stopping places, accompanied by an excellent map of the section, renders the work a complete guide book. The book is handsomely illustrated with plates of the principal species of game, and is arranged so as to be carried in the pocket with convenience. Such a guide book to a district so rich in birds, water fowl, and fish must prove an invaluable prize to the sportsman.

Copies may be procured, free of charge, by addressing James R. Wood, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore R. R., Philadelphia, Pa.

Baltimore's Carnival.

September 11th, 12th and 13th have been set apart for the summer Night's Festival at Baltimore, and it is promised by the committee in charge that the illuminations, processions, and other features of the Orleone celebration will surpass all previous efforts in this line. On September 11th an association of gentlemen, representing Lord Baltimore, his courtiers, household and officers, will be escorted from the vessel landing to the City Hall by a great military procession.

September 12th, grand illumination of Baltimore.

September 13th, mystic procession of 40 great tableaux, on wheels, in which it is stated that thirteen hundred men and over two hundred horses will be employed. Grand ball at the Academy of Music will conclude the celebration.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from all principal ticket stations to Baltimore and return, particulars which may be had at ticket offices.
