PROGRAMME - The Democratic hosts of Juniata county will assemble at Mifflintown, on Thursday, November 20, 1884, to participate in a jubilee, parade and ox roast and feast in honof Cleveland's election to the Presidency of the Republic. Our special artist furnishes an illustrated representation of the chief features of the parade up to the kindling of the fire on which of of Clerk the ox which Wm. Banks brought from Pittsburgh for the occasion. If our artist be in town on the day of the feast he will, in the next issue of The Sentinel and Republican, give picto ross the chief events of the occasion. The present pictures are pertinent to the impending feast. The marshals on horseback, with one of the dudish brethren reclining on the thre indexed the noble ox in the hands of leaders of the party, and dudes and others of the party in procession are features which cannot help attract the attention of spectators on the day of feast-

Hundreds of the long expectant and now jubilant members of the erring brothren have pictured to their minds a huge fat ox lying on the ground ready for the spit. In the eye of imaginanon they have seen the faithful assembled around the body of the ox-ule ready to kindle the fire, and prepare the feast for the thousands that will be on hand on the eventful day.
