A Hebrew Drowned.
On Saturday about noon, three Hebrew boys, named Rosentone, on a tramp from Chicago went into the river a short distance below this place, from the opposite shore to bathe. One of the boys, a youth aged seventeen years was drowned. Railroaders, Jacob Wise and James Casner dove down into the clear stream for the body which was within plain sight, lying on the bottom of the river. None of the boys could swim and when their comrade was drawn by a current into water seven feet deep he was beyond the reach of brother help. The remains were taken charge of by Schott and Meyers, Hebrews, in this place and sent for interment to Harrisburg on Saturday evening by the 9:45 passenger train.

Consumption Cured.
An exchange says: "I have discovered a remedy for consumption. It has cured a number of cases after they have commenced bleeding at the lungs and the hectic flush was already on the cheek. After trying this remedy to my satisfaction, I have thought philanthropy required that I should let it be known to the world. It is common mullein steeped strongly and sweetened with coffee sugar, and drank freely. The herb should be gathered before the end of July, if convenient. Young or old plants are good, dried in the shade and kept in clean bags. The medicine must be continued from three to six months, according to the nature of the disease. It is very good for the blood vessels also. It strengthens and builds up the system instead of taking away the strength. It makes good blood and takes inflammation away from the lungs. It is the wish of the writer that every periodical in the United States, Canada and Europe, should publish this recipe for the benefit of the human family. Lay this up and keep it in the house ready for use."

Stolen Horse and Buggy.
One night last week a horse was stolen from Seth Yoder, of the Big Valley, in the vicinity of Barrille, and a good buggy and harness taken from a neighbor, John Harkness. Mr. Harkness came to Lewistown yesterday morning to get the assistance of our officers in following the thief, as he had information that led him to think the party were over in Centre county. Word was received here, however, that a horse had been found dead on the mountain between McVeytown and Kishacoquillas Valley, and Mr. Harkness accompanied our officers up there. They found that the buggy and harness belonged to Mr. Harkness, but the horse was not Mr. Yoder's. Mr. Yoder's horse was lame, and the thief had traded it somewhere for an older horse, which he drove to death. The team passed D. C. Ruppert's Sunday evening. There were two men in the buggy, and although the horse showed signs of distress they were plying the whip and urging it forward. This they do not doubt continued to do until the poor horse dropped dead in the mountain from exhaustion. One shaft of the buggy was broken by the horse when it fell, and the men had cut the harness considerably to get it away from the horse. Mr. Harkness returned with his property, and no attempt was made to follow the thieves. Lewistown Sentinel, July 16.

A few nights ago, a thief made an effort to pry open a lower story window in Levi Goshen's house in this town. Goshen as a building contractor has received a good deal of money this summer and it is probable that the thief thought there might be some of the funds lying around loose and that he would just step inside and get some. While the contractor has other use for his money than having it lying about the house. He has a gun and it was well for the thief that the gun and ammunition was lying about the house. By the time Goshen had the blunder-buss geared up for action the thief got wind of the mess that was being cooked inside the house, and fled precipitately. Goshen was drawing a bead on him with his gun from an upstairs window just as he dropped down on the far side of the fence back of the house.

"The druggist wasn't afraid of twelve cents. He clipped out the advertisement, pasted it on a sheet of letter paper, wrote the name of the paper from which it was clipped out, wrote his own address, pasted a ten-cent piece on the letter-paper by means of two cent stamps, and mailed the whole seventy-four hours from that time he got an answer to his letter. It came in a manila envelope. It was printed on a slip of white paper, and read:
DEAR SIR: In reply to your esteemed favor of recent date, asking us to teach you
HOW TO DOUBLE YOUR MONEY.
We will tell you a plan for gaining wealth. Better than banking, trading, or leases; a new greenback and fold it up.
And then you will find your wealth increases.
This wonderful plan, without danger or loss,
Keeps your cash in your hands and with nothing to trouble it,
And every time that you fold it across,
The plain as the light of the day that you double it.

Cape May Belles.
AN ENCHANTING GALAXY OF YOUNG, BEAUTIFUL, AND GRACEFUL WOMEN.
VENUS IN THE BRETCHING GUESS OF THE SEA AND THE DARTING GAZE OF THE BOARD-WALK, ACCOMPANIED BY HER SISTERS.
"CAPE MAY, July 10th.—At Cape May beauty is like poverty and beauty like the poor—ye have them always with you. It is a long stretch from seventy-five years ago till now, but Cape May has bridged the chasm with an increasing succession of beauty. The belles of the olden time might not recognize their successors of the present, but the latter are the direct descendants of the former, and as honestly deserve as as did the famous old beauties the right handed down from summer to summer without a break, of defending against all comers Cape May's claim of supremacy as the resort of lovely women.
Everybody goes to see the trains come in at Cape May, and the effect of aggregation upon the casual traveler alighting from the cars not with his eyes full of cinders and his clothes full of dust as in years gone by) is very demoralizing. The shock of a cold surf bath is nothing to it. It is healthy, beautiful all around, but narry a beauty for him. After a few trips to the Cape the casual stranger generally can stand the strain of arrival with more equanimity. He finds that all the beauty is not inspecting him, after all, and generally if he's any sort of a man he manages to have a drop of beauty all for himself in the ocean of it that surges around the station.
BRETCHING CAPE MAY BEAUTIES.
Whether it is that Cape May air develops beauty, or that the beauty of the country has taken upon itself to develop Cape May, nobody knows, but certain it is that the worshiper of the ugly can find no sanctuary for his ignominious offering at the Cape. Beauty, attired in clinging white flannel, walks along the beach under big red umbrellas; beauty, in bretching black with red ribbons and straw bonnets, goes shopping around the town; beauty, in costumes above the waist chiefly of lace—black lace some times—drives up and down Beach avenue in fancy dog carts; beauty in dreams of dresses, through the hotel ball-rooms two or three nights every week, watching the dancing and occasionally, very occasionally dancing itself.
Beauty also bathes. So do men and everybody else at Cape May. Bathing at Cape is as delicious as eating a good dinner anywhere else. The beach is as broad as the preacher's estimate of the road. In general all traveling as level as the head of the fence about the time the Administration changes, and so firm and easy and warm that lying on it and watching the sky and the waves is like going to paradise by the parlor-car route.
The surf at Cape May is like the surf at no other place in the world—worse luck for the other places. Plunging in it is the perfection of seaside enjoyment. It has all of the bracing stimulus of the salt, without the disagreeable chill. Its long, even swell makes swimming as easy as in lake, and the breakers break just enough to give a pleasant tingle, like the sparkle in soda water. So safe is the Cape May surf that the little children stand in it without deep, and play "bring-around-a-rock" and "Copenhagen," without the necessity of having old folks watch them.
PICTURESQUE BATHING SCENES.
Custom makes from eleven to one the bathing hours at the cape, and during that time the scene on the beach is one of rare life and beauty—a veritable fairy land, with naughtiness left out! Not everybody bathes every day, and the hundreds who do not "going in to-day," dressed in their gayest, walk up and down and watch the hundreds who are in. The good clothes on the beach and the gayety in the water make a delightful combination.
In years past Cape May has, justly or unjustly, borne the reputation of being somewhat in advance of the age in the matter of bathing suits for the ladies. A careful and conscientious inspection of the shore shows that this year, at any rate, there is no foundation for any such charge against the modesty of the Cape May ladies, perhaps because they are of a style that needs no adventurous setting off in the way of excessive abbreviation of attire. A man looking for information on this subject to-day would find the rise and fall of the bathers in the inviting bays. A bit of wreckage floated ashore near him. It had black eyes, dark hair streaming to the waist, and too heavy to hang in strings, and plump cheeks softly browned. A big breaker had tumbled it somewhat, but it didn't look right, and the man ventured to introduce himself as a meek and lowly seeker after knowledge.
"Are—that is, do they wear—I mean—well—are bathing suits shorter than usual this year?"
"Sparking teeth flaminated the reply to "Why, I don't know; I think there have been enough to go around so far."
"Desperation-nerved, the man tried again. "You didn't understand; I meant to ask, that is, I wanted to know, you know, if I mean whether, that is, if it is true, that the ladies' skirts are shorter than usual this season."
A little, neatly slipped foot stole from under the braided edge of a skirt. A slender hand, tipping a long white arm, pulled the skirt until it almost covered a red-streaked knee. The foot gleamed again at the bottom of the skirt. The man cleared again at the thief got wind of the mess that was being cooked inside the house, and fled precipitately. Goshen was drawing a bead on him with his gun from an upstairs window just as he dropped down on the far side of the fence back of the house.

day twenty-three different ladies came to the beach by way of past that hotel, and all wore cardinal stockings. The men couldn't tell which was the which.
Fishing excursions are very popular with the summer visitors. A party of three ladies on one the other day came back with a story of having caught four hundred and seventeen fish. The oldest and best developed fish-story teller of the native population shivered as he heard this tale, and, going out, wept quietly for half an hour.

Some one wants to know, whether the owner of a hunting dog is responsible for every rabbit that it is known the dog kills out of hunting season. The inquirer says that for every rabbit that a man kills out of the hunting season he may be fined five dollars. Hunting dogs go out without the company of their owner and kill rabbits, now, can a man be compelled to pay for every rabbit that his dog has killed?
