

B. F. SCHWEIER, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

Politics has more life in it than ten days ago.

Four hundred bankers held a convention at Chicago, last week.

Snow fell in many places in the New England states on the 23rd of this month.

Masked armed men have been burning houses of Chinamen in Washington Territory.

The Democrats in Ohio are working the liquor dodge, in hope of carrying a number of Republicans.

Wanted the swindler of Grant and his friends, is living in luxury in the New York jail. He should be in irons.

The Greenbacker is still in the field. A Greenback meeting will be held at Huntingdon, on the 23rd of October.

The Turk must pack his grip sack and get out of Potomac. Good, the Slav should have hurried him out long ago.

A mass fuel charter, with a capital of $5,000,000, has been applied for at Harrisburg. The company proposes to operate in the west.

Negroes of the South are forming military companies and drill every week, for the purpose, it is said of securing the right to vote in 1888.

Last week, Presidents of trunk line railroads met and increased the freight rates between Chicago and New York. It is great power that Presidents have.

IRA DAVENPORT was nominated last week by the New York Republicans, for Governor. He is a respectable man and a man of ability, and the outlook for Republican success is promising.

How can a railroad that is not finished be a competing line? The company that propose it, and organize it and work on it for a time may be only blackmailers in the guise of a proposed railroad organization.

ROMELIA has rebelled against Turkish authority. Score one for Romania. It numbers about 2,000,000 in a territory of 24,000 square miles, not as large as Pennsylvania. The majority of the people are of Slavonic origin.

The cars killed Barnum's Jumbo, and a storm the other night destroyed $8,000 worth of property for him by tearing down the show. A large number of people were severely wounded by falling poles and so forth. There were 10,000 people under the canvas at the time.

The Catholic church in St. Louis and other western towns have declared against sending their children to the common schools. They propose to expel all such of the membership from the "Holy Communion," who send their children to the common schools. There isn't much in that, for this is a free country.

The Democracy in this State seem to be exercised over the manner in which Ohio Republicans are talking of the enfranchisement of the rights of the colored people in the South. Perhaps it would be just as well for the untried to think of home affairs, here, where Quay will win the Day by a large majority, notwithstanding the false issue of the corporation question.

The school furniture frauds in the State of Indiana still grow larger, under the light of investigation. School furniture men and school board trustees find it convenient to take French leave for Canada, with the intention of never returning. How the methods of the common school furniture fiend of Indiana, and the common school fiend himself, been introduced into this state?

CANDIDATE DAY with a friend who had one hundred and thirty-seven thousand dollars in his pocket, were despatched to arrive at March Chunk, a few days ago. The despatch called in the leaders of the untried from far and near, but when it was learned that the $137,000 was to pass on and be distributed among the hands of the Lehigh Navigation Company, the enthusiasm wilted as if a wet sheet had been spread over the brethren. By the way, if Day is to travel around with a corporation official with a bulging purse what is to become of the anti-corporation resolutions of the late Democratic State Convention.

Frank A. Robins' circus was a very creditable affair, being one of the best ever given here, and the manager was well gotten up and showed off in good style. The exhibition of equestrianism by Mr. Charles W. Fish, who is allowed to be the most agile and finished horseman in the profession, was truly wonderful and elicited much applause.

"Pet," the elephant, showed to what a degree of proficiency these creatures can be trained. Immense audiences were present.—Queens County, N. Y. Sentinel.

This information in regard to the destruction of the Canada thistle that may be beneficial to some of our farmer readers. He says that on his brother's place, near where he lives, there was a patch of thistles it seemed impossible to get rid of. Last fall after making either he spread the sour apple plumage over the ground where they had been growing, which so completely rotted the obnoxious weeds, roots and tops, that comparatively few sprouted up this year. This is a simple and easy method of getting rid of the Canada thistle, and as it is unlawful to allow it to grow all who can should dispose of their apple plumage as Mr. Byler has done for your protection as well as their neighbors.—Lewistown Gazette.

The Re-Union.

The veterans' eighth annual reunion, held last Thursday, was attended by a large number of people. It seems to have been the occasion for a reunion of hundreds of citizens, male and female, who were children when the veterans were in the army. The old soldiers in line, including the living artillery were one hundred and ninety-seven. The first department of Patterson had a good looking company of firemen in line. Three bands and a company of drummers enlivened the march with appropriate music. E. D. Parker and Chill W. Hazard, were the chief speakers for the occasion. The campfire that was held in the evening, is reported to have been a pleasant affair. People who were present both day and evening, report the noise and confusion among the audience so deafening that speakers were not heard clear of the distance of an eye.

The obituary committee reported Jacob Beiler, Laird McMon, D. E. P. Fink, Eli Campbell and David Naylor, as having died during the year just past.

L. E. Atkinson, J. N. Grubb and L. S. McClellan were appointed obituary committee for the coming year.

It was resolved to hold a re-ception on the evening of the 15th day of October, in honor of the reunion of the 16th Pa. cavalry.

Secretary, John T. Nourse.

In Ohio.

When night closes in on a man in a railroad car running through the mountains of this goodly old Commonwealth, and the next morning when daylight reveals the fact that he has, as the soldier says, been debauched upon a level plain, such as the far famed Pickaway plains of Pickaway county, Ohio, his impressions must be experienced to be fully realized. So we exclaimed the other morning when we stepped from a car at the railroad station at Circleville, Ohio.

This is not the only Circleville within the limits of the Republic, but there is no other Circleville like this. It is situated on the banks of the Scioto river, on a ten mile square, plain piece of land that has no hills, excepting a mound, here and there, that exist, "as it were," as so many monuments to a prehistoric age.

The fertile lands of the plain causes the country to rank among the richest in the Buckeye State. Every pound of the land is a deposit of sandy, pebbly, loamy soil through which the rain water readily finds its way, but leaves a sufficient amount of moisture to produce first rate crops.

The wheat this season was so poor that in the spring time many of the wheat fields were not sowed and planted to corn. It is not necessary to cut down the stalks of corn with an axe to get the ears but the crop is estimated at five million bushels. It is a section of this vast country that lies so far south of the Juniata Valley that the preparation for wheat sowing had scarcely been commenced. The corn is to be shocked, and where it stood what is to be sown with umbrellas.

The town is named from a vast pre-historic circular fortification that the Indians had such a traditional dread of, that they never entered the large enclosure that was surrounded by a circular wall of earth, from twenty feet high, measuring from the bottom of the ditch outside of the outer circle. Gateways or cuts opened through the bank of the circle and before each gate was a mound, where a guard, in all probability overlooked the great circle. The men of a generation ago, dug the circle into the ditch, cut streets through the great mound and the water works they had had placed in the ditch and several fine churches within what was the limits of the base of the mound, but now, the present generation deplore the destroying hand of the fathers, and declare that if they had sufficient foresight, they would have preserved the mound as a place on which to erect a reservoir for water for the present handsome little city of seven thousand people.

There is wealth enough there in the present generation to erect a fine city, and to have a place for a reservoir. They indulge in both gas, and electric light. It is a beautiful place—as of magnificent distance. The streets cross each other at right angles, and are twice as wide as the streets of Mifflintown, and most of them as level as a floor. It is the best paved town we have ever been in excepting this little mountain place in the valley of the Juniata. There are many stately houses, but it is above all places, a place of cozy cottages. It is the county seat of Pickaway county, and twenty stately western lawyers satisfy the wants of litigants and know the law as well as the client.

The same number of doctors down the diseased and host the sick. Thirteen preachers accommodate the parishioners of as many white congregations, and two colored preachers discourse to two colored congregations of their own race in their own church buildings every Sunday. Twenty-eight common school rooms for white children and two rooms for colored children give ample room for school purposes. Three national banks with a capital of a half million, and a pile of deposits keep the finance easy. Three newspapers give intellectual and political vigor to the place. Miles upon miles of broom corn are cultivated, gathered and brought to town in the manufactured into brooms, and hundreds of logs are brought to town, slaughtered and packed, and that is the reason that the richest men in the city are the pork packers and the broom corn men. The largest paper mill in the United States for the manufacture of heavy paper, is located in the place, with over two hundred hands to run it night and day. Men are there from all parts of this great country. The women are pretty, vivacious, and lovely. It is a place where a man of means can live pleasantly in a place where a man needing employment every working hour, may find work among respectable working people. Living is cheap but rents are high. The taxes laid is as a rule worked on the share, but is rented at so much per acre. Good farms rent at six dollars per acre.

THE POLITICS of Circleville and Pickaway county, is of the latest approved, most untried, red hot Democracy. The erring brethren have a large majority in the county, and now, that the national politics have given the post offices and such other crumbs as may be dropped from the Washington crib, they have more political love making than has been known among them within a past quarter of a century. Just at this time however, the Republicans are clouing their county prospects, somewhat, by the charge and declaration, that they will prove the charge, that there is an uncompromising ring in the county, that favored the order of giving contracts to the lowest bidder, and have adopted that of giving to the highest bidder among the faithful. They charge that the Commissioners have misappropriated over four thousand dollars of the Soldiers' Monument Fund for some pet bridge money making scheme to enrich the pockets of ring members. Hard shelled as the Pickaway county Democracy are, such schemes to fish money from the taxpayers makes them red like precipitating a great defeat on the spoils managers of the ring. Like in Juniata, the great bulk of the taxable population under the lead of Governor Hoody, are bidding for the liquor vote, thinking that by advocating a temperate franchise, the liquor men will vote with them, and that the temperate franchise, and practice temperate franchise, but who do not believe that it is a natural sin to take a drink, will join hands with them. Hoody is also the only perfect and reliable medicine for the purification of the blood.
