

B. F. SCHWEIER, Editor and Proprietor.

MIFFLINTOWN, JUNIATA COUNTY, PENNA., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1885.

The World would be better for it. If you were a man...

FIVE YEARS AFTER.

You are sure to like him, George; he is the best fellow I ever knew...

tea-table, chattering blithely all the time. "Well, this is my sister! Doctor Dymock—Miss Jeffrey, Bob introduced them to each other with laughing pride...

"Don't you like him, George?" Bob Jeffrey asked his sister, with a radiant face. He had just seen his friend up to his eyes in the wide open window...

"Well, I cannot help it," George replied dejectedly, though her cheeks reddened at the thought. "It is all your fault, Bob; you added to it."

"It was ten days later—a blazing afternoon at the end of June. The doctor's garden was a perfect bowery of roses, and the old red brick wall were ripe."

"Do you like that?" asked Georgia, as she looked at him. "Like it?" the young man looked at her with that old gleam in his eyes...

"I am glad if you are happy old fellow," interposed Bob, in his cheery way. Will Dymock started; he had almost forgotten his friend's presence.

"I thought you were asleep," he said. "So I was, almost; but I think it is high time that I woke up; you find such a tremendous lot to say to each other if you are left to yourselves."

"Well, so long as you are happy it is all right. By Jove, I don't know how any one can like town better than country! A hot summer day, nothing to do but sit on the porch and dream—that's the life for me!"

"That is because you are so lazy. It is very nice here," George said, with a little sigh; "but I like town best."

"I don't know about it," cried Bob, with a laugh. "George likes starting in at the shop-windows and looking at the things that are for sale..."

"I know you will think me a fool Miss Jeffrey—perhaps you will laugh at me for not being able to help it."

"Oh, no, no," cried Georgia. "I am sure you will not be so foolish. Never! Not if I waited?"

"And to me of you," said the girl, her courage coming back to her. "Miss Jeffrey, will you forgive me if I ask again? You are very young; do you think you could not quite care for me?"

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

here; I would not have had it happen for anything. "And I wish you never had," sobbed George. "He has spoiled all my summer. I told you I should hate him."

"A charming room in a fashionable London square, the firelight sparkling over pictures and china and every-day trinkets that money could buy or taste suggest."

"I don't know about it," cried Bob, with a laugh. "George likes starting in at the shop-windows and looking at the things that are for sale..."

"I know you will think me a fool Miss Jeffrey—perhaps you will laugh at me for not being able to help it."

"Oh, no, no," cried Georgia. "I am sure you will not be so foolish. Never! Not if I waited?"

"And to me of you," said the girl, her courage coming back to her. "Miss Jeffrey, will you forgive me if I ask again? You are very young; do you think you could not quite care for me?"

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

You were Bob's friend she added, hastily. "But not yours, Miss Jeffrey. I came here to day to ask you something and that I asked you five years ago. If you could give me the same answer now, you gave me then, I must know it at once. I could not bear to see you and know there was no hope for me."

"I don't know about it," cried Bob, with a laugh. "George likes starting in at the shop-windows and looking at the things that are for sale..."

"I know you will think me a fool Miss Jeffrey—perhaps you will laugh at me for not being able to help it."

"Oh, no, no," cried Georgia. "I am sure you will not be so foolish. Never! Not if I waited?"

"And to me of you," said the girl, her courage coming back to her. "Miss Jeffrey, will you forgive me if I ask again? You are very young; do you think you could not quite care for me?"

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

He Gessed he'd Fight. "Politeness was born in him, and he couldn't help it. He drifted into a prominent town in the South soon after Johnston's surrender, and before anybody's temper had cooled down. He was after cotton, and he let the fact be known. He was from Connecticut, and he did not try to conceal it. He hadn't been in the town two hours before "an unregenerate" pulled his nose."

"I don't know about it," cried Bob, with a laugh. "George likes starting in at the shop-windows and looking at the things that are for sale..."

"I know you will think me a fool Miss Jeffrey—perhaps you will laugh at me for not being able to help it."

"Oh, no, no," cried Georgia. "I am sure you will not be so foolish. Never! Not if I waited?"

"And to me of you," said the girl, her courage coming back to her. "Miss Jeffrey, will you forgive me if I ask again? You are very young; do you think you could not quite care for me?"

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

He Caught A Tartar. "A couple of young folks who bore an unmistakable evidence of being from the country, and who were mistaken by a would-be smart clerk for greenhorns, called at a well-known house-furnishing store in Market street, Philadelphia, and admiring a show of paper labels and a man's arm, began buying a large number of articles, the names of which they scratched from the paper as soon as the goods were put aside."

"I don't know about it," cried Bob, with a laugh. "George likes starting in at the shop-windows and looking at the things that are for sale..."

"I know you will think me a fool Miss Jeffrey—perhaps you will laugh at me for not being able to help it."

"Oh, no, no," cried Georgia. "I am sure you will not be so foolish. Never! Not if I waited?"

"And to me of you," said the girl, her courage coming back to her. "Miss Jeffrey, will you forgive me if I ask again? You are very young; do you think you could not quite care for me?"

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

"I am sure, quite sure, that I could never love you," she replied. "Then there is nothing more to be said," she remarked dejectedly.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

-19,350 more emigrants left Irish ports in 1885 than in 1884. -There are nearly 10,000 directors of companies in Great Britain. -Seventy-two papers are published in Mexico. -Four churches in Montreal now use the electric light. -The United States half dime of 1882 is a valuable coin. It is worth $23. -The farmers of Arkansas have a secret order called "The Agricultural Wheel." -Eighteen colored teachers are employed in the Nashville, Tenn., public schools. -The loss of property by the recent Ohio floods, is now estimated at some $2,000,000. -Michigan is reported to produce about two-thirds of the peppermint crop of the world. -Some of the parts of California gold is extracted from the ore by electricity. It is a French idea. -Two canoe voyagers are on their way from the mouth of the Yellowstone to the Gulf of Mexico. -A single chandler in the mountains of that splendidly, the King of Bavaria, cost $4,800. -In 1882 the emigrants from England to the Australasian colonies were 37,000; in 1883, 71,000. -Ireland had 22.32 per cent of the population of Great Britain in 1882. She now has 18.81 per cent. -A colony of wine-producers will leave France about the 1st of January to settle in Greenville county, S. C. -A Victoria (Columbia) Chinaman, worth $200,000, is to marry a white girl, with the consent of her parents. -"Cascaida" is suggested as the name of Washington Territory in the event of her being admitted as a State. -Sausages was the trouble of which a man on board the coastwise steamer San Antonio died a few days ago. -In a roller skating contest at New York recently, Mr. Hoffman, of Columbia College, skated 3 miles in 11:24 minutes. -Mrs. Lawrence, of Chicago, mother of the late T. G. Lawrence, class of '84, has given Yale College $50,000 for a dormitory. -Eleven thousand dollars' worth of ink was used by the Post-office Department last year in stamping and cancelling letters. -Beatrice King, a 13-year-old girl, has just been sentenced to one month's imprisonment in London for stealing a pint of milk. -The oldest man in Indiana died suddenly at Vincennes. His name was Pierre Colter, and his reputed age was 113 years. -During the last ten years the French speaking population of Canada has increased as a much greater ratio than the English speaking. -From 1834 to 1831, 150,000 emigrants as to dress were issued at Berlin. The last fortnight women without a tank to wear silk dresses. -A white peddle, formerly owned by Mrs. Scott-Solomon, but lately a pet of Miss Janss, died recently. It was 17 years old. -Pittsburg claims more rich men, in proportion to population, than any city in the Union. Seventy residents aggregate $38,000,000. -The October term of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts was opened with prayer, the only instance of the kind in that State on record. -Col. William P. Armstrong, formerly Prime Minister to King Kakuana, is now in New Haven, and is studying Connecticut oyster culture. -The Lockdowns are promised exhibition of the "Old American" by Buffalo Bill, with all his mustangs, buffaloes, cowboys and other live stock. -Pine Valley, near Woodford, Va., which has been a busy place for fourteen years past, is now deserted, the last family moving away a few days ago. -Washington fashioning allows ladies to use perfume about their persons concealed in sachets, etc., but forbids them to saturate their handkerchiefs with it. -The report of the New Jersey State Board of Health shows the total number of deaths for the year ending July 1, 1885, to be 25,310, a death rate of 19.45. -A scientific journal in England estimates that it would take a capital of $2,000,000 to successfully divert the vast power of Niagara Falls to useful purposes. -Easter of next year falls on St. Mark's Day, April 25, its latest possible date. The last time this occurred was in 1736 (old style), and it will not so fall again until 1943. -Female conductors are employed now on the Valparaiso (Chil) street cars. In Santiago female conductors are stated to have been a success for some time past. -According to late reports, Fort Ross, Sonoma county, Cal., with a population averaging from fifty to one hundred persons, has not had a death since its settlement, thirty years ago. -By the census of 1850 there were 49,000 working oxen in Vermont. The last census shows only 19,000—a loss of 30,000. This loss is more than balanced by the gain in the number of other cattle. -Over 200 wild ducks were trapped in a warehouse near Chico, Cal., recently, one of the ducks having been left open long enough for the ducks to go inside for grain. The warehouse owners make a big haul of game in this manner every year. -England imported 50,000 gallons less of sherry and claret last year than during the preceding year, but of port, during the same time, she imported 65,785 pipes—the largest single year's importation on record. -In the Church of St. Helen's, Bishopsgate, London, a stained-glass window to the memory of Shakespeare has been unveiled. The poet was the one time an inhabitant of the parish, and there brought out several of his plays. The window is the gift of some person unknown. -Three thousand food inspectors in Glasgow last year resulted in the destruction of 16,000 pounds of fish, 8,000 pounds of pork, 600 pounds of beef, and other considerable quantities of food. Among the better class of houses 205 drains had been inspected, and only seven of them found to be in good order. -