An exchange remarks: The movement to form a new county out of parts of Blair, Huntingdon, Centre, Cambria and Clearfield, with Tyrone as the county seat, agitated some years ago, has been revived. One interested gentleman offers to contribute $10,000, conditionally, towards the erection of public buildings in case the project proves a success.

Abe Buzzard, the infamous outlaw of Lancaster county, professes to have been converted from a lawless life to a life of honesty. No, that is not it, he claims to be a religious convert, and desires to be pardoned out of jail, so that he may show to the world that he has reformed. If he has reformed and is religiously inclined the jail is a quiet place in which to stay and engage in meditation and prayer.

The Holiday Register of last week says: A new oats fraud has taken the place of that operated under the name of Bohemian seed and is, sold in small packages, at five dollars per box. Farmers are pronounced fabulous prices for all the oats they grow from the previous parcel, and are secured from imposition by bank deposits or other apparently safe obligations. Many farmers in the State are being at the hitting.

Last Saturday evening three young men named McKissey, Henry Sarver and son, attempted to cross the Juniata river near the rope ferry, in a skiff that had been lying on the river bank all winter. After launching the boat they discovered that it leaked, but hoped to be able to get across before it sunk by bailing out the water. Alas, they reckoned without their host, and the water came in too fast, sinking their frail craft and dropping the young men into the water up to their necks. By swimming they succeeded in reaching shore, wiser and wetter men.—Newport Ledger.

On Wednesday last, a terrible accident which resulted fatally, occurred at Sharpburg, a small village between Roaring Spring and Martinsburg, this county, in the evening Mrs. Rhodes sent her four children, the eldest of whom is a girl aged fourteen years, to bed, and she then sat down by the table in her kitchen to finish knitting a pair of stockings. A Unique Cyclopaedia. An extremely valuable Cyclopaedia, and of very great interest is Alden's Cyclopaedia of Universal Literature, Volume II, of which is just published. Novel in plan, and novel in form, at once beautiful and convenient, and at a price so low even compared with Mr. Alden's always low prices, this volume gives nearly five hundred pages biographical sketches of one hundred and eleven prominent authors, with characteristic selections from their writings. The following authors, among others, appear in this volume: Addison, St. Augustine, D'Auvergne, Bacon, Balzac, Bancroft, Bannin, Barbodil, Beaumont, Beecher, (several of that name), Bentham, Bion, Bjornson, Black (William), Blackstone, Blesington (Countess), and Boccaccio; thus representing nearly all ages and all nations even in this volume—American, English, French, German, Italian, Greek, Latin, Swedish, Portuguese, Scotch, Dutch, Irish, Norwegian, and Danish authors—from the period 280 B. C. to A. D. 1886. The literary and mechanical workmanship are both of a high order. The work is really one that ought to find a place in every home library; it offers a fund of entertainment and instruction that will prove well-nigh inexhaustible. The price only 40 cents a volume, makes its possession possible even to nearly every school-boy. The work is published also in parts of one hundred and sixty pages each (exchangeable at any time for bound volumes), which are sent prepaid for 15 cents each. Every reader of this notice ought to get at least a specimen part for examination. JOHN B. ALDEN, Publisher, New York.—Agents in this city.

Waiting wife.—"Now you just thought you'd sneak up stairs with your shoes on your hand so I wouldn't know what time you got home, but—"

Surprised husband (interrupting)—"No, no, my dear; you see the car men all struck and the whole home blistered my feet so I had to take 'em off."—Judge.

Colony From Huntingdon County. A colony of one hundred and fifty persons, organized by T. Speer Dickinson, in Huntingdon county and Fickon, will start in a few days for Napoleon, Dakota, where they will locate. They will take with them nine carloads of cattle, furniture and other supplies. Mr. Dickinson will open a law office and establish a weekly newspaper there. The colony will be accompanied by J. Nelson Sipes, of McConnellsville, who was recently in Dakota, and while there was appointed District Attorney of Logan county.

Rev. Philip Graff's Third Lecture. Rev. Philip Graff on the evening of the 17th, delivered the last of the three lectures that he delivered for the two congregations that comprise his charge here and in the valley. The last lecture of the course was devoted to Rome. A column and more of space would be necessary to give an outline of the lecture. It was a lecture of solid information presented in language that was wonderfully descriptive. The large room was filled with people. The number of people who attended the lectures was so large that the aisles were the only spaces not occupied. The lectures were all of high grade.

Victimized. Another Bedford county man has been inveigled into signing a note for $100 for a $40 feed-mill manufactured by the Standard Machine Company. We do not know whether there is such a company or not, but if there is they had better call in their scoundrels before they get into the penitentiary. The swindlers this time got it on our old friend Benjamin Hall, of Yellow Creek. Mr. Hall is a farmer and owns a grist-mill power and what he wanted with his horse-power feed-mill is more than he knows himself. But these oily-tongued choppers, by persuasions and threats, succeeded in making a victim of him. It was done in the same manner that they got Mr. Bowser, of King Township, into it, an account of which we published a few weeks ago. We say once for all, buy no machinery from and sign no papers for strangers.—Bedford Inquirer.

Communication. McALISTERVILLE, March 15, 1886. MR. EDITOR.—By your permission I will inform the readers of the SENTINEL that the "Granger" who wrote the article on Oleomargarine, last week, has made a few misrepresentations. In the first place he stated that I told him I sold it last year, which is not correct. I did not tell him when I sold it. He also stated, I told him, I sold two hundred pounds in one week, which is not correct. He also stated, I told him in the presence of Henry Stober, who was not present and knew nothing of it until he saw it in the paper. I will now give a true statement of my selling oleomargarine.

In the spring of 1884, butter was scarce. I could not get enough for my customers and on the 17th of May, of same year, I bought fifty pounds of oleomargarine, and sold it for just what it was and that was all I ever had, so that this will not help to make up the 6000 pounds which he claims there were shipped to Millintown last year. The gentleman says something about an item he has forgotten, and I think he has forgotten part of our conversation which will make it necessary for him to take notes as he goes along before he writes.

JOSEPH PAGE. An exchange gives the following as an easy way to wash clothes: Among the many ways of easy washing I have not seen any method as good as mine—that is, where soft soap is used. Perhaps some, like myself, prefer, from motives of economy, to use the old-fashioned hot soap. I do my washing in this way: soak the clothes for ten or fifteen minutes in a strong suds, then enough to cover the clothes. After washing put all the white clothes, with the finer on top, into another tub. Pour over them enough boiling water to cover them well. Cover the tub to keep the steam in. In ten minutes you can unscour them, take the washboard by the legs and with the top press and suds the clothes, turning them over to get at them all. Wring out, and blue as usual. Clothes washed in this way will be whiter than when boiled. I keep the suds warm for the whole of my clothes. Calicoes will not fade if put in dirty suds—that is, dark calicoes. Light calicoes I wash with the white clothes.

Methodist Episcopal Conference. The following is a list of appointments of Methodist ministers for the Juniata District, appointed at Harrisburg, last week, at the meeting of the Methodist Annual Conference: M. K. Our merchant C. G. Winay intends putting up a new store house this summer. He has nearly all the building material ready. Go ahead, Christ!

The widow King has moved with her son John to Tuscarora, where she intends to make her future home. She will be missed in our community.

William Liddick, who keeps the Temperance house is kept busy by the call of agents and others. Will be an accommodating man. Stop and try him.

Dr. Hanzing has returned from Philadelphia where he has been attending lectures for the past four months, and has again commenced to practice. We bid him welcome.

A number of our young men left for Illinois, to seek for employment, namely: H. Y. Shaffer, Ira Wolf, Clai. Hiser, Lucian Fry and Hiram Dunn. Boys, we wish you success. March 19, 1886. M.

Temperance. CONTRIBUED BY THE W. O. T. U. DRINKING AND APOPLEXY. It is the essential nature of all wines and spirits to send an increased amount of blood to the brain. The first effect of taking a glass of wine or stronger term of alcohol, is to send the blood there faster than common. Hence the circulation that gives the red face. It increases the activity of the brain and it works faster, and so does the tongue, but as the blood goes faster than common to the brain, it returns faster, and no immediate harm may result. But suppose a man keep on drinking; the blood is sent to the brain so fast in large quantities, that in order to make room for it, the arteries have to charge themselves. They increase in size and, in doing so, press against the more yielding blood vessels, which carry the blood out of the brain and diminish the sizes of the pores—the result being that the blood is not only carried to the arteries of the brain faster than is natural or healthful, but is prevented from leaving it as fast as usual. Hence a double set of causes of death are in operation. Hence a man may drink enough of brandy or spirits in a few hours or even minutes to bring on a fatal attack of apoplexy. This is being literally dead drunk.—Irish World.

An international conference has been held at Antwerp against the abuse of alcoholic drink. Important statements were made by French, English, and German doctors, who proved that alcohol is more destructive than chloroform or a fever. A resolution was to be formed to diffuse information on the subject.

East Salem Items. School closed on Friday. Movings appear to be the topic of the day. John Burris can wear that hat now, it's a boy. By all appearance the belfry on Delaware Hill is a head. Saw's new egg cases are filling up at ten cents a dozen. A few children in this vicinity are suffering with diphtheria. Amos Kirsch drives the fastest horse in this part of the country. Calvin Smith is the boss clerk at Schlegel. Oh! where is Milton? Annie Shaffer has gone to Millersburg where she intends spending the summer.

Burned to Death by an Explosion of a Coal Oil Lamp. On Wednesday last, a terrible accident which resulted fatally, occurred at Sharpburg, a small village between Roaring Spring and Martinsburg, this county, in the evening Mrs. Rhodes sent her four children, the eldest of whom is a girl aged fourteen years, to bed, and she then sat down by the table in her kitchen to finish knitting a pair of stockings. She sat by the table working by the aid of the light of a glass coal oil lamp. The ball of yarn was placed upon the table at her side and became twisted and tangled around the lamp. She did not notice the condition of the lamp, and about ten o'clock, when she arose to prepare to retire for the night, she dragged the lamp from the table, and in its descent it struck on the cooking stove, exploding and throwing the burning oil over her person. In an instant she was wrapped in flames, and she ran screaming from the house into the yard. Her shrieks and heart-rending cries were heard by neighbors, who hastened to her assistance. They found her down on her knees in the yard with her clothing all burned and charred and hanging in shreds from her body. It was an appalling and sickening sight.

Although suffering excruciating agony, Mrs. Rhodes was conscious when found, and was able to tell how the accident happened. The flames in the house were extinguished before they did much damage. Mrs. Rhodes was tenderly carried into the house by sympathizing friends, who did all in their power to ease her terrible pain, and at once dispatched messengers for Dr. A. S. Strayer, at Roaring Spring, who came speedily and gave the sufferer all the medical relief he could. The wounds were dressed and the patient made as comfortable as possible. She lingered in great agony until 3 o'clock Thursday, when death came to her relief.—Hollidaysburg Register March 17, 1886.

The New Mikado. A poet at night in his cold attic room, Sang willow, titwillow, titwillow! And I said to him why do you sit in the gloom Singing willow, titwillow, titwillow? Oh! tell, has Estere grown cruel, I cried, Or is there a vacuum in your inside? He rolled up his eyes and he groaned and he sighed, Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow! He hove a fresh sigh and he dropped a salt tear, Singing willow, titwillow, titwillow! And I said you indeed there's a vacuum here. Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow, My locks plainly show I'm by hunger distressed; Then clasping his hands on his gaunt, hollow chest, He drew in the slack of his loose-fitting vest, Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow, I'm a poet that writes of the season, you know, Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow! And I've rung all the changes on beautiful snow, Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow! Of the plumber and ice-man no more I can sing, The muses no longer enliven my brain, And I fear I will straggle ere the coming of spring, Oh, willow, titwillow, titwillow. —Boston Courier.
