

FIVE of the Chicago anarchists have been indicted for murder.

SIXTEEN more New York Aldermen are to be put on trial for bribery.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND is too much of a man of affairs to be annoyed about the talk of his getting married.

It is now reported that Wolf will not be the prohibition candidate for governor. Beaver is a temperance man.

New Yorkers are about to move on Jake Sharp, the city railroad corruptionist. Just where Sharp will land is a problem.

The Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad company last week, declared a semi-annual dividend of four per cent.

The Middle Pennsylvania railroad, the old S. & N. B. railroad, held an election some days ago, and elected a President and a board of directors. "All aboard."

SPEAKER of the House, Carlisle claims that he is not a Free Trader, but that he is a Revenue Reformer, but he does not state what the difference is between a Free Trader and a Revenue Reformer.

It now looks as if Congress will pass an act, to withdraw from foreign vessels certain commercial privileges when those privileges have been denied to American vessels in the country to which those foreign vessels belong.

The employees of Featherstone's foundry in Chicago, recently gained a concession of eight hours as a day's work. Last Tuesday they again struck, demanding that they should be allowed to work ten hours a day. It is doubtful if they know what they do want.

A NUMBER of manufacturing establishments will not employ a man who is known to belong to the Knights of Labor, which is in perfect accord with the spirit and letter of the law of this free government, which can neither compel a man to work against his will, or compel a man to employ others to work for him when he does not desire their labor.

One New York Alderman was removed from temptation by a woman. He proposed marriage to a woman with whom he was desperately in love. She said she would marry him provided that he resign the position of Alderman. He resigned, and is out of the way of the briber. The young woman knows how dangerous it is to be in the way of the "gift bearing Greeks."

Eight hours a day is a good thing but it is like poetry, the very fewest number can live on it, as thousands have found out in Chicago and other places where the eight hour a day system has been adopted. Three thousand men who but a short time ago clamored that their employer, Sidney A. Kent should reduce their time to eight hours work, are now as loudly asking for a return to the ten hour system. Kent, who is a pork packer, is one of the few men who can run his business on eight hours has not yet agreed to go back to the ten hour system.

DETROIT the past week the fish question between Canada and certain of the New England states has been intensified by the seizure of the British fish schooner, "Sisters," in Portland, Maine, harbor, for the violation of the Custom House laws. Captain Ellis of the fishing schooner should have had a manifest, or bill of goods when he came in Portland harbor with his cargo of 20,000 mackerel. He had no manifest, and for that reason was seized upon by the officers of the Custom House. He was fined, under the law $500. He declared that the schooner will not sell for $500. He says he did not know that he was violating the fish law.

The telephone man, Mr. Bell, claims to have discovered that a falling jet of water in a room reproduces every word spoken and every sound uttered within a given space, also that a flame of gas burning in a room reproduces every word spoken and sound uttered within a given distance. The world will marvel at his statement that falling water and burning gas do accurately report every word said in their presence. It is the sound vibration that records itself through the agency of water and flame. Doubtless that is the way Deity who is enthroned at the center of the Universe hears all that takes place on the planets. Perhaps, by and by, it will be discovered that every thought produces a vibration that reproduces itself just as the words are reproduced by vibration through falling water and flames of fire. The next thing for Bell to do is to find out whether a thought produces a vibration and if it does the next thing to do is to find the substance that will reproduce the vibration into words so that the thoughts can be recorded and read. After all of these discoveries have been made, people will begin to realize what a finely attuned piece of machinery the Universe is, how every word and thought is sent out into space throughout the universe by an infallible system of vibration. They will begin to realize how it is that God is all seeing and all hearing, and they will understand how the rich man in the far off regions of hell could express the desire, and be understood that Lazarus should be sent with a drop of water to cool his tongue.

The Knights of Labor held their General Assembly at Cleveland, Ohio, last week. Everything was done in secret, and all proceedings that came to the press had to pass through the hands of a committee of five Knights of Labor. So that readers of the proceedings of the convention of Knights of Labor, will understand that they are not getting an account of the doings of the Knights from the pens of editors and reporters for newspapers, but from the Knights themselves. That is the way King William, of Prussia, and other kings do when they meet, they give what they please of their proceedings, and the balance they do not allow to see the light of day.

The President and Social Science.

This Wednesday, President Cleveland and Miss Folsom will be married in the White House, in the presence of a few of the relatives of the respective families. This marriage is destined to become a focal point in the history of the Social Science of the Republic. A thousand years after this, students will turn to it to learn, if possible, something of the social habits and family relationship of the people of this day and generation, just as the student of to-day steps to study the same subject of people of thousands of years ago from the lives of David and Solomon. Taking the lives of David and Solomon as they are recorded in the sacred volume, the student finds himself asking, "were the Jews of those days a Polygamous people? So students of a thousand years after this will read of a President of the American Republic having occupied a peculiar relationship in family matters, -having been married, while at the same time there lived a woman who bore him a son, but neither mother or son shared with him the honors and wealth of his position as the chief ruler of the nation because their relationship to each other was irregular and outside of the bonds of wedlock. A thousand years after this, students of history will be puzzled to know whether the habits of President Cleveland were the commonly recognized habits among the people over which he ruled, just as students of to-day are puzzled to know whether Abraham and Jacob in their intercourse with the fair sex represented the commonly recognized or regular relationship of man and woman to each other in those days. We all wonder at the habits of the people of the past, and wonder whether the people to come will wonder at our habits as represented in the life of President Cleveland, and wonder whether we all will be understood, but amidst all the wondering let us not forget to congratulate President Cleveland and Mrs. Cleveland and wish them happiness in the relationship of man and wife.

A Fatal Water-Spout.

LYNCHBURG, Va., May 25.—A despatch to the Daily Advance, from Abingdon, Va., says: "Yesterday evening, at five o'clock, a water-spout struck the residence of David Whitaker, on Gasper creek, this county, destroying the dwelling and tobacco barn and drowning Miss Jennie Moore, who had just stepped in out of the rain. Whitaker had his jawbone broken by falling timbers. The horse and three mules were drowned. The body of the young lady was found half a mile below the house to-day."

Evolution of Man.

DECISION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SOUTH. ACOSTA, Ga., May 26.—To-day's session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church South was devoted to the discussion of the question of evolution. The majority report was adopted by an overwhelming vote—137 to 31. To the several overtures on the subject of the evolution of man, sent up by the presbytery, the General Assembly returns answer as follows: The Church remains at this time sincerely convinced that the Scriptures as truly and authoritatively expounded in our "Confession of Faith" and catechism teach that Adam and Eve were created, body and soul, by acts of Almighty God, without any natural parental age of any kind, out of matter previously created of nothing; and that any doctrine at variance therewith is dangerous error, inasmuch as, by methods of interpreting Scripture which it must demand, and by the consequences which fair implication it will involve, it will lead to a denial of doctrines fundamental to the faith.

How Senator Coke Receives.

Senator Coke lives down on Sixth street, Washington, in strict retirement. Nobody is allowed to visit him without first sending up his card. When the recent spell of warm weather was at its height the front door was left open one evening. It happened that two of his political friends from Galveston were in the city and seeking his residence. Seeing Judge Coke through the lighted window, they ascended and knocked at his room door. Being asked to enter, the visitors stepped into the room, and were about to greet the Senator joyfully, when he said: "Gentlemen, I regret to say that it is a rule of this house that the cards of visitors must always be sent up to me. I have to request that you will observe this rule, and send up your cards to my secretary. I will be glad to receive the cards of the gentlemen who are with you, and will be glad to greet the gentlemen who are with you, and will be glad to greet the gentlemen who are with you."

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

At Hillsboro, Missouri, the grand jury found bills against fifty-nine railroad strikers for conspiracy to defraud property. Many of the strikers, capes and only four have been arrested.

An Indiana woman, who took offense at a newspaper article, addressed the publicity and scandal of a libel suit. She lay in wait for the editor and tendered him an ovation of eggs whose health was sadly broken down. As several of the eggs hit the editor, it is inferred that the woman aimed at something in her rear. The editor says he would have preferred a libel suit with the usual six-cent damages.

Reports from Texas state that a terrible drought is prevalent in that State. Hundreds of streams have dried up and the country is bare of vegetation. Cattle and sheep on the ranches are dying in immense numbers. On the Meyer Half ranch, out of six thousand cattle, three thousand have died within the past month, and the prairie is literally strewn with carcasses, surrounded by myriads of huge buzzards. On another ranch, 3,000 heifers have died, while on one of the largest the flockmaster was compelled to kill 5,000 lambs, and a neighboring herder killed 3,000 lambs because their mothers were too weak from starvation to afford them nourishment.

A letter from Genesee, New York, says: "Some fifteen years ago Ferdinand Ward had a printing press, one of the amateur kind, which was purchased by his father, Dr. Ward, who is now a retired Presbyterian minister of that village. Your correspondent recently saw one of the circulars which Ferdinand printed and sent about the town acquainting the people with the fact that he had a printing outfit and was prepared to fill orders for card printing. Young Ward was for a time an apprentice in one of the local newspaper offices, but the business was not congenial to his tastes. He took his leave of the office one day when requested to wash the rollers of the press. He looked at the ink and then at his own white hands, and told the proprietor he did not believe he was ever created for a trade of that kind."

There are not nearly as many secrets in hand treatment as people imagine. A little ammonia or borax in the water you wash your hands with, and that water just lukewarm, will keep the skin clean and soft. A little oatmeal mixed with the water will whiten the hands. Many people use glycerine on their hands when they go to bed, wearing gloves to keep the bedding clean; but glycerine does not agree with every one. It makes some skins harsh and red. These people should rub their hands with dry oatmeal and wear gloves in bed. The best preparation for the hands at night is white of egg with a grain of alum dissolved in it. Oatmeal has a fancy name for it, but it will make it spread it over their hands, and the job is done. They also make the Roman toilet paste. It is merely white of egg, barley flour and honey. They say it was used by the Romans in olden time. Any way, it is a first rate thing, but it is a sticky sort of stuff to use, and does not do the work any better than oatmeal. The roughest and hardest hands can be made soft and white in a month's time by doctoring them a little at bed time, and a little oatmeal mixed with the water, and a bottle of ammonia, a box of powder or borax and a little fine white sand, rub the stains off, or a cent of lemon-juice, which will do even better, for the acid of the lemon will clean anything.

Swindling in Horses.

THE TRICKS RESORTED TO BY "GYP" TO CATCH GREENHORNS. From Philadelphia Times, May 27. An advertisement in a morning paper yesterday read: FOR SALE: AT A BARGAIN, THE entire driving outfit of a gentleman, compelled to give driving: Jet black horse, 7 years old, 154 hands, a perfect broken animal, both in harness and under saddle; teams of steam; drives without blinde; very stylish; long mane and tail; cannot be surpassed as a pet, safe family horse; also a Surrey, with top, to carry two persons; perfect order; by W. D. Rodgers; harness by M. Gallagher; also a beautiful blood bay pony, 134 hands, very stylish, 6 years old; been used by the lady members of a family pony club; made to order by Gregg & Bove, in perfect order, harness, etc. Call at my private stable, directly in rear of residence, 1518 Arch street. Coachman will be in attendance. EDWIN HAMILTON.

The advertisement was read by a Times reporter, who went to look at the contents of the "gentlemen's" "private stable." The entire driving outfit is a boarding house. There is no sign outside to show the public that it is a boarding house. One of the boarders told the reporter yesterday morning that he had lived there a good while and knew all of the boarders. The young man said that he was positive that Edwin Hamilton was

Letter From Memphis.

EDITOR OF SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN.— You are apparently surprised that his "eccellency," Jefferson Davis, should have been granted such a magnificent triumph in connection with the recent ceremonies at Montgomery and Atlanta, dedicating those monuments. True, he was not a conqueror like the Roman Pompey, who, returning "from his fame, fresh and gay," had but to await the decree of the Senate, opening the streets of the city for the victor's procession, in which at his chariot wheel, he might lead "many captives brought to Rome." But our modern hero was acting well his part. There are some historical societies whose aim will not be accomplished until the slaveholders' rebellion shall have been rescued from a deserved ignominy. The statue of "Old Hickory," Calhoun's evil genius, is not means that of Robert E. Lee. And do they not agree (the Southern historians) in denying that the perpetration of slavery was the object of Confederacy, and the sole cause of the war? They surely do. It is not strange that they were once devoted to slavery as an institution? Their money was in it, and a large part of their religion also. The Federal constitution and laws sheltered it. They claimed their rights. But when the war, as a Provisional instrument, had destroyed slavery, we, the American people, have been learning more and more to look back with surprise, if not shame, upon those times when both races themselves have tested its merits, and their heavy and unrequited endorsement. We need only to ask it a pamphlet containing much of such testimony. And why do you have Reubenham, why suffer one day longer than is necessary. It costs only $2.00 to be cured, and while you are making up your mind to it you might as well die.

THE WOMAN CONFEDERATE.

The woman wore a gray dress of light homespun cloth, tightly fitting bodice and a turban to match. She carried a cute little market basket filled with some dainties from market. A black horse and a pony were mounted on the carriage. She spoke with the accent of a Boston girl. "Did that lady who was here yesterday buy the horse?" she asked the coachman. "No, miss; she didn't." "Why, how is that?" "I dunno, miss." "Well, the gentleman promised to let me know if that lady didn't buy the horse. Let me see the horse." The horse was taken out of the stall and the reporter watched the woman as she sat down her little market basket and lifted the horse's left forefoot, picked the straw out of his hoof with her gloved fingers, ran her hand down his back to see if he had any sores, said "Whoa, Beauty," and then began talking to the colored man again.

"Why is the gentleman going to sell this horse?" "Well, I dunno, miss." "How long has he had this horse?" "Bout three years." "Well, I want a horse for the saddle. Will this horse go well in the saddle?" "Yes, miss, 'deed he will." "Afraid of the steam cars?" "No, 'deed he ain't." "Well, here is the man?" "Why, he just stepped out a minute. 'I'll go and hunt him." "How much does he want for that pony?" asked the reporter. The well-bred woman looked the reporter over from his boots to his hat. "I dunno, sir; I'll fetch the gentleman right away," and the bogus coachman went out to Cuthbert street and returned to Fifteenth and Filbert streets, to Dougherty's saloon, where he found Mr. Edwin Hamilton.

THE REPORTER "GYPPIED."

The woman stood by the black horse's stall, admiring the animal. The reporter thought she was going to buy the horse, which has been doing top for the past two weeks, and thinking she didn't know that she was in a "gyp" stable, the reporter said: "I beg pardon, but don't buy that horse. This is a 'gyp' stable. The colored man has gone after is a bogus gentleman. This horse was bought at the bazaar, at auction." The woman never lost her presence of mind for an instant. She smiled faintly and said: "It is a horse, and I'm sure you're mistaken; I have known this horse for the past three years. Oh! I'm sure you're mistaken." The reporter remembered having heard her ask the colored man how long the gentleman had the horse and that the colored man had said three years. It was better to leave before the gentleman and the coachman returned. The reporter left. He met the gentleman near the corner of Fifteenth and Cuthbert streets. Mr. Hamilton, as he calls himself, is a handsome man, six feet in height and weighs about two hundred pounds. He was well dressed. "I was looking at that pony," said the reporter; "how much do you want for him? I see by the advertisement that he has been driven by the ladies of the family."

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Hamilton. "I haven't fixed any price. Two years ago I paid $200 for the pony. But I tell you what I'll do. I will let you have him for $135, cash, and give you a veterinary's certificate." The reporter didn't want to go over $100 and Mr. Hamilton dismissed the subject with a wave of his hand. It was learned afterward that the woman was a confederate. Whenever anybody entered the stable she was close at hand.

WHO EDWIN HAMILTON IS.

Edwin Hamilton is in reality E. H. Thomas, a well-known "gyp" and partner of Frank Dickson, a brother of Wash Dickson, prince of the "gypps." Mr. Hamilton's full name is Edwin Hamilton Thomas. He goes by the name of Edwin Hamilton. Hamilton Thomas and E. H. Thomas. He does not live at 1518 Arch street, but resides at 258 North Eleventh street, and in the directory he is known as Edward Thomas, a salesman. The pony he said he paid $200 for two years ago was sent from Smyrna, Del., two weeks ago. Thomas looks like a man who might have been a successful business man. He is a forty and is a good talker and dresses in good taste, has a pleasant voice and uses nice language. The boldness of the advertisement in using the address of boarding house 1518 Arch street shows that he understands his business. The colored waiter at the boarding house made his acquaintance and knows how to use the house as a thoroughfare to the "private stable," which isn't on the premises. Using the Arch street address gives tone to the advertisement. If the Cuthbert street address were given instead there would be less likelihood of persons answering the advertisement.
