

GREAT VICTORY.

The election of last week is a great victory for the Republican party, and proves that the people distrust the Democracy more than they did two, three and four years ago.

The President's indirect influence in favor of the single standard coin men, and the inclination of the Democratic Congress to break the tariff laws, has indeed the people to forsake the Democratic party in great numbers.

Incapacity never fails in breaking men and parties. The incapacity of the Democracy destroyed them. Hence the sweeping away of the Patterson administration, and the reduction of the forty of a majority of the untried in Congress to a mere handful of five of a majority.

An earthquake shock was severe enough at Augusta, Georgia, last Friday, at 12:30 P. M., to scare people out of their houses. The shock was severe from Georgia to Richmond Virginia.

President Cleveland's edict that he will not see office seekers from this time on till the time of the meeting of Congress does not meet with the approval of the members of the Democracy of Jeffersonian simplicity.

A Chicago Socialist was elected a Senator to the Legislature of Illinois. It is a man of ability the country will hear something of the purposes of the order. Seven Socialists were elected to the Lower House.

Frank Hurd, the Toledo, Ohio Free Trader, is among the defeated Congressional candidates. He will move to New York City, and become a candidate for Congress under the lead of the British Free Trade Cobden Club.

Mr. Powderly, Grand Master Workman of the Knights of Labor went to New York City and delivered a number of speeches in favor of Henry George for Mayor, and named him as a candidate for the Presidency in 1888.

The Democracy thought to elect their ticket in Massachusetts, by placing at its head, for Governor, a son of the war-Governor Andrews, but Oliver Ames, the regular Republican nominee carried the State by 10,000 majority.

Cleveland's year-and-a-half in the Presidential chair has not improved the business of the country or the power of the Democratic party. The business has been wrecked, and so has the Democratic party according to the late election.

The army of Democratic office-holders were solid for Cleveland and Pattison and Jefferson Democracy, but the people who are not seeking office were not for the army of office-holders. They voted against the champions of Free Trade.

Henry George, the socialist candidate for Mayor of New York received 68,000 votes. His followers counted on elevating Horst Mott and the red flag in the event of his election. It was feared that Roosevelt-republican-and-Hewitt-democrat-in the field he would be elected.

The Knights of Labor did not vote for Black. Why should they?

Henry George, the New York Socialist, who was run for Mayor, is said to be a Free Trader, in his views.

Curtis is succeeded in the Center Congressional district by John Patton. Patton's majority is between two and three hundred.

The late election has increased the Republican membership in Congress about thirty. The House when Cleveland was inaugurated had a Democratic majority of forty-one.

Among the members of the next Congress are two ministers, both Democrats. Rev. L. F. McKinney, a Universalist, has been elected by Daniel Webster's old New Hampshire District, and Rev. Myron W. Reid, elected by the Colorado District that sent red-headed Jim Belford, formerly of Lewistown, Pa., to Congress for several terms.

The New York Herald says: There are no less than three hundred and fifty concerns in New York city engaged in selling what they term counter-feit money. The inspectors of the Post Office, it says, know very well the men engaged in the swindle, but owing to defects in the law covering the case are hardly able to get sufficient evidence to convict them in the courts.

The parties concerned in the business get the names of people in the interior of the country who they learn and then point out the young masher and her horse-whipped him.

open negotiations with them. Frequently they will send a good bill as a sample of their proposed work, and that bill is able to stand the test of bank official scrutiny the victim falls into the snare and sends good money for a lot of the goods. He is then apt to receive a package by mail containing a swadlow or other worthless material.

Wolves had two strings to his bow. The Governorship string broke off short and left him down hard, and the Legislative string that he was pulling in his county—Union—broke off about as unexpectedly and left him down fearfully hard among his home friends. It is not every man that has the audacity to run for the Legislature and the Governorship at one and the same election.

Miss Alice J. Sanborn, who took up a land claim on the Rose Creek Indian Reservation in Dakota, in March, 1885, having moved from Illinois, was chosen Superintendent of Schools in Brule county, Dakota, last Tuesday. Of the 1600 votes polled she received about 1000. She was the regular nominee of the Democratic and Farmers' Alliance party.

Late Miss Kate Kane was engaged in conducting a suit in Chicago Court last Saturday, when Attorney Barrett indulged in some bar room wit at her expense, he did not resort to the law to resent the insult. But she appealed to her parol and rapped Barrett over the nose with such force that the parol was broken, and Barrett had to take his nose to a doctor and have it sewed up.

T. B. Terry, of Summit county, O., in an article contributed to the Centinel & Republican, strongly commends the practice of alternatively rolling and harrowing ground that is to be seeded, which practice, he claims, in common with many other progressive farmers, will produce much heavier crops of grain than the old-fashioned method of "just moving the lumps around a little." Mr. Terry says: "That is just what we have been doing for ten years, without any regard to the theory that lumps on the surface protect the wheat, and our reward has been such that we intend to keep it up. When I wrote you some two weeks ago, we had been over our wheat ground four times with the disk harrow and twice with the Thomas, and were then waiting for rain, as it was so dry we were afraid to sow. After waiting a few days we harrowed it and followed with the roller, and then harrowed again. The next day we had a gentle rain that moistened the surface down about four inches. As soon as it was dry enough we rolled again and drilled in the wheat. The land was then as fine and firm as Mr. Crane could ask for. There were almost no lumps, but as deep as it had been worked, say five to six inches, it was simply mellow soil firmly packed. When drilling, the horses would not sink in more than one inch. We tried to do a little better job than ever before. From such preparation we had for a term of years thirty three to thirty-eight bushels per acre of No. 1 wheat. We fell a little below this year, on account of our wheat being partly on land with a northwest exposure, and the winds killed some of it, as they did most of the pieces in this vicinity, more or less. And this has been done without any manure, commercial or home-made, being directly to the crop, except clover sod plowed under. I am perfectly sure that I have averaged ten bushels per acre more wheat, for the past eight years, than I would have had if I had simply plowed the ground and harrowed it once or twice with an old-fashioned harrow (just moving the lumps around a little), and then put in the wheat. It is this $600 to $1000 in my pocket that makes me preach good tillage so strongly. Of course your readers have sense enough to know that tillage does not actually create fertility (this for Brother Chamberlain), but in very many cases it will add five to ten bushels per acre to the wheat crop. But there is a risk to run when land is worked down as fine as mine was this year. I ran it and got caught this year, and also once before, but shall continue taking the risk just the same. It is this: A heavy rain coming within a week or two after sowing plows the mischief with such mellow, fine soil."

The Philadelphia Times tells the following: The people who congregated on the sunny side of Market street, above second, in Camden, a morning or two ago, were amused at the actions of a man and woman that had alighted from a broncho and had repeatedly asked for a place where they could get married. The pair were conducted to the office of Justice Schmitz, No. 209 Market street. When they stood up before the Magistrate and he began the ceremony the young woman showed a disposition to leave. The young man to the usual question gave his name as John Preslin, of Northumberland county, Pa. When the young woman was asked her name she fled from the room and entered the carriage and ordered the driver to cross the river, as she had changed her mind and was not willing that the ceremony should proceed. The young man hastened after the vehicle and overtook it before it got a square away, and he immediately began his endeavors to get the woman to have the ceremony completed. Failing to get her consent, he returned to the Justice's office and offered to pay him for his trouble, remarking that the next time he visited Jersey he got spiced he would be certain that the woman was willing to the transaction.

Walker Township News. A great deal of the milk that formerly went to Thompsonstown now goes to the creamery at Mifflintown. Mr. John McEen extends his thanks to the Republicans for their support. Does every Democrat do that? P. A. Smith and G. B. M. Kepler, were home from New York City last Tuesday a week to cast their votes. Some of our Democrats are looking very serious over the results of the election. One of our township sons, last Friday a week came home intoxicated and attempted to kill his father. Two men lately killed 1,000 and dried the meat for winter use, and it is not unusual for the local hunters to bag 50 and 100 in a day's shooting. They are laughing in Lewistown, Me., at the boy who, when the teacher asked if any one could tell what the word "gender" meant, snatched his fingers to the question: "Well, what is it, John?" answered: "Please mum, it's what goes with geese."

The Salvation Army in Portland, Oregon, held service in the jail on present Sunday, and the leader told a bold and a startling story of his wickedness before he joined the Army, that, after the performance was over, one of the convicts said: "The lamp can now be extinguished; the vilest sinner has returned."

A farmer of Delaware county, Pa., much troubled by crows, stacked a peck of corn in whicker and scattered it near a fence much frequented by the birds. They ate it and got decidedly drunk, and the farmer was so amused by the exhibition that he forbore to shoot them, and after a time they flew unsteadily away. The result was good. The crows never came back. The heads they had the next morning must have been all that they desired.

"Yes," said a Kentuckian who had been in the far west, "Indians are powerful fond of whiskey. Let 'em once get the taste of whiskey and they will give up everything for it. An old chief out in western Dakota offered me a pony, saddle, bridle, blanket and a starting story of his wickedness before he joined the Army, that, after the performance was over, one of the convicts said: "The lamp can now be extinguished; the vilest sinner has returned."
