FUNDS IN CHANCERY. The Will o' the Wisp Which Befools

Irregularly at first, and now at intervals of three years, there is published a list of funds under accounts which have not been touched (except to ad i or invest dividends) for fifteen years before the publication of the list, This publication is one of ball fact, but it embodies much of romance and quaintness. It is issued in the form of a sup plement and the latest one occupies 138 pages. It records simply 'the titles of the account," the year in which it was opened, and the "date and value of last transaction." For instance, here is a brief record, not without its interest: "Black versus Straphan, 1749 10th August, 1773. Payment out." But that short record tells the story of a case in chancery, begun in 1749, when money was there placed in custody. I'wenty-four years later there was a remnant was left which in all these years has been untouched, except by brief and more pathetic: "Mary King, a lunatic, 1742, Not dealt with." Poor Mary has passed away from her "case," alike of interest to the medical and legal professions, but the account opened 145 years ago has remained untouched in the safe grasp of the court which Dickens terribly satirized. There is an entry 'ex-parte the unknown person or persons interested in the freehold estate" known as "Nos. 19, 20 and 21 in the Great Bell alley, and No. 14 in White's alley, in the city of London."
