Woman's Rights in Ohio.

The Legislature of Ohio has recently enacted a law in respect to the rights of married women which sweeps away the last vestige of the old common law doctrine in respect to these rights, and renders nugatory and inapplicable a vast mass of precedents that have hitherto in that state, the force of law.

Mistaken For The Devil.

Four Men Who Hide in Bags Left in Cornsheds By Thieves. From the Lancaster New Era.

Constable Bowman, of Salisbury township, effected the capture of two thieves in Paradise township, on Friday evening, in a manner that was as startling to the captured parties as to the captors.

For the past two years Mr. John Ely, of Paradise township, has been the victim of thieves, who at various times have stolen corn and other grain from his fields and bins, all efforts to capture them being fruitless.

His cornfield was situated about a half mile from his residence, and a few parties were abroad on Friday, the thief thought it a good opportunity to make another haul. Accordingly, in the afternoon two men were noticed taking corn from the shock and placing it in bags, which in turn were hidden in the shock.

It was correctly surmised that the thieves would return for their plunder in the evening. Constable Bowman was accordingly notified. Accompanied by his two sons, David and Milton, and a son of Mr. Ely, the constable repaired to the field at dusk and finding the corn, emptied the bags of their contents and substituted their persons in the place, occupying four shocks nearly opposite to each other. They had occupied the shocks for some time, when about 9 o'clock two men were seen to get over the fence from the road and approach the place where the corn was concealed. One was heard to remark, "We'll have to get this corn."

The other replied, "You get it." They approached a shock supposed to hold the hidden corn. They examined the shock wherein David Bowman was concealed, but as the latter had his back to them he remained quiet. A moment later one of them made his appearance on the other side of the shock and David Bowman seized him. Almost simultaneously Milton Bowman seized the other thief. When grabbed they jumped ten feet backwards and set up such a howling that could be heard a mile off. In all his experience Constable Bowman says he never saw two more thoroughly frightened men, one declaring that he thought the devil had him.
