From the Hamington Journal: On Tuesday afternoon business called Sheriff Isenberg to Barre, and thinking that perhaps he might come across a wild turkey or a cotton tail in his travels, accompanied to take with him his double barreled shot gun, which he did after loading the weapon with an ordinary charge of small shot. After concluding his business at Barre he took Noah's gun, for Spruce Creek, walking on the Railroad. Soon after leaving Barre his attention was attracted by a moving object in the distance, which, as it approached, he discovered to be a deer. Without suffering from an attack of the "buck fever," and as cool as Daniel Boone ever was in his palm tree days, the Sheriff pulled back both barrels on the gun, determined to give the deer the "heat in the shop" as soon as it came within shooting distance. He had not long to wait; he drew a lead and let go both barrels, the charge from them striking the animal in the head and killing it stone dead. He returned home on the afternoon train, as proud as any boy ever was who had just downed his first pair of hoofs. This is Joe's first deer and it is all probably will be his last.

Of Rev. Mr. Stock's power as a lecturer the following clippings from papers in localities where he has lectured are pointers to the estimate placed upon his efforts: "Such papers are rarely combined in one man."—Lewistown Daily News.
