B. F. SCHWEIER.

NO. 2.

An Invitation. When in the house the day is warm, And dogs lie stretched before the door, And only nor neglected farm And six upon the grassy floor.

Under the apple tree's green roof, insel with the yellow light of morn, re's lov without repress, There man who are to trouble born, ast his said for price of gold the ax deall how these leafy towers; he space shall trample in the mold This fragrant grass, these dowy flowers And when this pleasure house is waste, anshop boult for earthly care, varing days and tiresome haste, and but a stately front in air. Then came, before the day declines, And hear the been mrong the bought, Her cresent in my bleomy house.

Parkapa before the spade shall wound he turn to plant the cares of earth, ther plat of earth be found e green to tell our nobler birth.

Then basten, ere the day shall die, no learn, whatever joys may fly, To know the permanence of this.

THIRD CLASS,

A good many years have passed since, one latterly cold night—the last night in the old year—I was taking the 7 'click expr. ss from York to New-

The train stood ready to start, but either there were few passengers or they did not like leaving the cheerful warmth of waiting and refreshment come until the last moment, for I paced the platform in gloomy solicide, trying to decide the then moentous question, whether to travel apprehension. hard class and please the governor, or irst class and please myself.

My father was a large share-holder and took an active interest in the workg of the line. He was not satisfied with getting good interest for his money, but wanted to the very full pointing toward us. amount all the principal was capable of

Make the third-class carriage as comfortable as you can, and then far greater numbers will travel," was one

It is not the solitary firsts and seconds that will make the affair pay, lob, my lad," said he, addressing me, but the hundreds and thousands of all bands and mechanics. When you travel on our line never lose an oppornity of going third class, and then ou will be able to suggest improve-

And so I usually followed his advice; bet on this night I felt sorely tempted men. endowed with the gift of spending it, I walked up to the troot of the nearest | him by the guard-amounts of the carriage. "All but that," said the elder one, inting to the one opposite to her.

a strong note of the sacrifice I had from the sublime to the ridiculous!

will need one to-night," said the guard, case. as he was harrying away. "Thanks. Bring one for these ladies stood cauting to give the signal for our her heart would break.

The young fellow hid his face in his

"In the van," I replied,
"And your friends?" he asked, og a scheme that would make the in custody."

of the present to a livery.

ong lany's face. But I was him.

After this 1 sat in suiten stience oding over my ill-luck. Traveling grew worse. The old lady as evalently armateu. She slipped her hand into the young lady's muffevidently for sympathy,

"I'm afraid we shall not get to Newcastle to-night," I said, bending toward

"Surely!" burst from both their lips, as he was more frequently called among in such consternation as made me sorry o have imparted such disagrecable

"Oh, it is easily answered in my ing!" said Mrs. Spence. "Have you Detroit." old fellow?" I said. "But we must be in Newcastle tonight!" said the e'der lady, irrationally; case," he laughed. "I have my yacht traveled far, Mr. Randall? Mr. Lawand the tears stood in her eyes as she just down the water a little way, all son and we were snowbound last night, added, "Do you really think there is manned ready for starting on another and, had it not been so, we should all no possibility of our arriving to-night?" long cruise; and had it not been for my three of us have been enjoying the fes-"I am afraid not, madam," said I; rascally confidential man just at the tivities of Greystone lodge. Anyway, Wanted to Know the Yankee at the next station-that is if the wires are all right." plied the young lady, quickly. know, Bob, I am rather hard to please, "No, thank you," replied the elder I want a fellow I can make a companone. 'I was but reflecting on the un-pleasant position we should be placed

Of course I offered my protection, of "my daughter."

two or three hours later; but if not, we article you require." are doomed."

say, if such a luxury as a bed can be him, as I tipped him. party I want to find took this train at and Miss Spence are here. They are Both ladies trembled violently as we night. Don't say anything about my pussed the men. "Well, you see he is not here," replied the guard. "You have seen all the passengers,"

"I tell you again," cried the guard, "that is young Mr. Lawson." "Yes, yes," allowed the detective-those ladies?" "They are his friends. Came with him to the station at York, and-" "But I must and will know all about I on make an exception to the rule. I am really ashamed to trouble you, sir," answered the guard, "but this now here is Mr. Lawson." "Had it not been for Ted we should leman just now, if possible, those ladies are your friends," yours?" interrogated the detective. should be obliged again to appeal to his generality to free me from my liability in the fellow in the midst of his storm."

ties, and so, with the air of a martyr, apologies to follow the advice given elderly lady said, rising and taking the be delighted to come myself," said I, when I saw Paul Rivers standing be-Way not?" demanded hat and vell from off the head of the bowing to the ladies. younger one displayed to my sight, But I left that I was quite a self- the blande beauty I had been dream; denying young man, and should most about, but a pale, delicate youth. by, in my first letter home, make stood dumbfounded. What a descent "I don't understand," said I, slowly,

"I will get you a foot-warmer; you trying to take in all the facts of the fill need one to-night," said the guard, case. "Then you are really the people?" I went on, and then paused.

At length I gave up all efforts at lady, "we are in your hands. You and say, 'Here, ladies, is a policeman demanding an interview with one or owner to a fascinating kitten, who used demanding an interview with one or by letter-p stengers were, and devis- not been for you we should have been lay back with closed eyes vis- I felt I could not give these people up a fair-unired, blue-eyed, gentle to justice, and at once assured them of fellows will do. gut floated before me, and already I my protection, although in so doing I was more than half in love with her. I felt rather guilty, for on that very again, Ted."

"All right, felt the clause."

thought it was better for the present but I have quite unexpectedly met but I have quite unexpected and a least of the present and the outed my pland about the younger one. away. I felt terribly nervous, but At less we can into Darlangton Sta- thought it was better for the present negus to be brought to us as hot as it our real position. That we should deny myself the pleasure of your combuild be made I excited in the thought have a visit from the fellow I felt cer-

"There is a long cutting not far off," good to ask him. I give a liberal fremarked, presently. "If we get through that we shall reach Newcastle" "I think I can fit you with just the guard opened the carriage door.

"We shall be obliged to stay here for would be very glad to go to bed, I dare procured." "I am positively informed," said be off before you are awake in the some one, in a loud voice, "that the morning. Oh, by the by, Bob, Mrs.

York; and I have a warrant for his occupying number ten sitting-room.

"All but those," said the stranger, Paul of his danger and opportunity to the old lady. "I will give a full explanation afterward."

"So far so good," thought I, as I was ushered into number ten.
"Wonders will nater

I asked of two ladies who were the sole time before you begin insulting re- snow having drifted so as to render the ple, were startled by an announcement spectable ladies and gentlemen.

You are not going third on a night keep me waiting.

"We are in your hands, sir," the "I can't answer for him, but I shall Lawson. My surprise may be imagined."

"Yes," answered the old lady, finishing the sentence for me, "we really are Have you any luggage, sir?" the the people the detective is looking; but man monaired, a few moments later as, oh, sir, have pity and spare us?" And having fallified his commission, he here she broke down, sobbing as though

The young fellow hid his race in the lands and wept like a child. After a see them?"

I raised my eyebrows in surprise. I turned to the two ladies. The elder story. She had had misfortune and trouble, had experienced loss after loss -indeed, everything seemed to have "All right" the guard shouted, and gone against her. At last her only know the party for whom I am in daughter fell ill. Weeks passed on, vided with better nourishment, and My companions were not talkative, ordered expensive wines and various The old have indeed listened to what I delicacies. But the question was how,

It was no question of right or wrong;

We were detained several hours, which is the detailed several hours, which is the form me in the letter-writing way of showing remove for his former way of showing remove for his former way of showing remove for his former disrupted to look out, but instantly next day that we arrived at Newcastle, line." here was such a volley of fine snow As we alighted on the platform whom My heart beat fast as we entered of sympathy for his bereaved owner? that I was compelled to close it again should I see first but my friend, the detective. Luckily neither of the detective and I at other angreed my rug to the elder lady, others observed him. After seeing to then more carefully and tenderly the loggage we entered a cab and drove ease as I said:

"You had better keep down your veil, my dear; this wind will make your teothache worse," remarked the elder lady, quelly turning to her companion.

The ladies, on arriving at the hotel, pleaded fatigue, and were served with a cup of tea in their bedroom, whilst I had dinner, and afterward went into the billiard-room to smoke a cigar and "Any friend of air. Lawson's wind always be welcome; but you have forally used to be a cup of tea in their bedroom, whilst I had dinner, and afterward went into the billiard-room to smoke a cigar and "Dear me," said I, pretending to "Dear me," said I, pretending to The ladies, on arriving at the hotel, aly, quelly turning to her companion. the billiard-room to smoke a cigar and think over some way of escape for my laugh.

what if I ask you that question, "What dreadful weather we are hav"What dreadful weather we are hav"What dreadful weather we are hav-

MIFFLINTOWN, JUNIATA COUNTY, PENNA., WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4, 1888. "but if your business is very urgent 1 last moment taking it into his head to it is lucky we have him here as a pro-will try and get a telegram sent for you get married and settle down on land, tection. It is feelish, I know; but I I should have been no one knows do not like staying for a night in a "There is no need, thank you," re- I meet with one that suits me. You belonging to the party."

ion of at times. Of course I offered my protection, and secretly felt glad at the prospect of spending several hours in the company travels, and dine with me and take a should like to have a word with you in

"From your description of him I will As I finished speaking we came to a take him," said Ted, a few moments by the 9 a'clock train," he began, hurdeat stand. In a second or two the later, "especially as you think you can riedly. persuade him to come at once. Well" -taking out his watch-"I have a the night, Mr. Lawson? he said; few things to awange. It is now 7 fore you have had some tea?" Mrs. "there is a regular block. Lucky job o'clock; I should like to leave here a there are some cottages near." few minutes after S. You see I have such strange behavior. few minutes after 8. You see I have such strange behavior.

"Send to engage at least one room a long way to go, and not much time for me and my friends," requested 1. for it. I have a very heavy wager on few seconds," I assured her. "This young lady is not well, and would be very glad to go to bed, I dare would be very glad to go to bed, I dare will will do the best I can," I assured you," stammered John Dobson alias Mr. Arthur Randall, as soon as the "Well," said Ted, "we will meet in door closed. "All right, sir," said he, touching this room again in a quarter of an hour; his cap, and giving me a knowing wink and if this friend of yours will go with me we will sleep on board to-night, and

> Like you, they were snow-bound last starting off to-night, the old lady is such a fidgety dame." "Fortune favors the brave," muttured I to myself, as I went to inform escape. "I have told Mr. Vercoe nothing of your previous history, but that you are a gentleman who has been unfortunate, for it was no other-"I know him, but and is in trouble," I said. "Tell him just what you like yourself, and when you like. I shall give him the number of your room; he is sure to be punctual. shall see you no more," I added, them." broke in the detective.

"Mr. Lawson," shouted the guard please. Remember the past. I will impatiently, "will you please come look after your mother and sister for the present." the present."

"Well," said I, as I joined the two good Mrs. Spence, coming forward to greet me, "I was surprised at the "Perhaps he will take mine," I said. and knew nothing of each other's pres-"Then they really are friends of ence here," I remarked, perhaps have became my wife, and then I told her of yours?" interrogated the detective.

'Certainly, they are going with me to Newcastle," I replied.

I left the fellow in the midst of his

'I replied.

I left the fellow in the midst of his

I left the fellow in the midst of his

I tell area, perhaps have became my wife, and then I told her of my strenge rallway adventure.

We dren of a civilized and progressive race, in any strenge rallway adventure.

'Stop a mother:

'It is the only way.' replied Worm.'

roads impassible. And so you must When I had ushered the ladies into leave us now for a short time?" she who had robbed the N. B. Bank in to the one opposite to her.

The little sitting room that had been red a small satchel and some served for us, I looked from one to the dered tea for half-past 8; come and had embezzled, with interest. A few other for an explanation. They did not take a cup with us, and bring Mr. Ver-months later a gentlemanly little man

"Ten minutes late," growled Ted, you succeededy" friends room," said I, handing him a over and thank you for all your kind-slip of paper. "Now let us have a few ness to me and those at home," he strokes at billiards," I added. We played very listlessly, talking,

Ted," said I, feeling terribly unstrung. now. He often writes to Ted and me; "Sorry to trouble you, sir," observed and his letters are full of home and the detective to me, in a low voice; happiness, for he is blest with a clear

"but you have two ladies here. Can I "See my friends! What can you possibly mean, man?" "Now it is just this, Mr. Lawson. I search left York last night by the 7 both of you!"

"Excuse me, my dear Mrs. Spence: that at lest I should have a glumpse of tain, but could devise no plan to elude an old friend, and brought him with "Any friend of Mr. Lawson's will think over some way of escape for my new-formed friends.

"What a breach of et:quette!

"What, Bob, is that you?" shouted a familiar voice. "I should as soon have thought of meeting my great-grand-father here to-night as you. Where in the world have you sprung from?"

And there, to be sure, was wild. And there, to be sure, was wild. And there, to be sure, was wild. It is that moment—welcome have you sprung from?"

And there, to be sure, was wild. It is embarrassment, and tried to saw his minto conversation. I tremdraw him into conversation. I tremdra bled; but at that moment-welcome sound!-Ted and his companion passed | word for $1,000. If I had told him of little music. pleasant position we should be placed in as two unprotected ladies. My daughter, too, has not been well for some time.

"Get married," I suggested.

"Do you like classical or popular music, Mr. Randall?" said I, mischievously. I began to feel now that I was master of the situation.

"Do you like classical or popular music, Mr. Randall?" said I, mischievously. I began to feel now that I was master of the situation. "I don't care much for music at any > hand at cards with me when I think private, Mr. Lawson."

> good to ask him. I give a liberal "Certainly!" I agreed; "I will retire with you for a short time directly "I think I can fit you with just the we have had tea, A servant is just bringing it in." "But I should like to return to York

> > "All right," rising to follow him. "You gentlemen are not leaving be-fore you have had some tea?" Mrs.

"One or both of us will return in a

"Are you convinced of your error now?" I demanded,
"Nothing is more certain. I should never have come to Newcastle but that the Inspector was so positive that they took the train that you came by, and blew me up so soundly because 1 had not seen the ladies who were with yeu. It would have been a great rise for me to take that young rascal. But for the present the clew seems to be lost. I have a notion he is hiding in London. "Quite likely," I assented, and a few minutes later I returned to Mrs.

Spence's sitting-room alone. As the night wore on I thought it strange that I never before noticed the soft, low music of Laura Spence's voice. I liked to hear her sing, and felt charmed when she spoke to me, and although we none of us had much rest the night before, we did not separate

The time at Greystone passed all too quickly, but I did not leave there until Laura Spence had promised to make me the happiest man in the world. British Bank robbery ran its course, and then died away to be remembered

"What a strange coincidence," said Ted over two years and then left for and sister. The lad remained with walked up to the front of the nearest pringe.

"Get back to York as fast as you can and know what you are about another detained for some hours, owing to the and know what you are about another time before you begin insulting to a mow having drifted so as to render the lim, and then, with many other people an Indian, one probably wouldn't find in the newspapers that Paul Rivers, > fore me. "Why, this is an unexpected pleasas I entered the billiard-room. 'Have | ure!' said 1, holding out my hands. "As soon as ever I was a free man I "Yes. This is the number of my could not resist the longing to come said, earnestly. "You are not going back, I hope?" and now and then giving a ball a stroke.

"Eight o'clock, Bob," said Ted; he went in a short time, taking with him his mother and sister. "Let's put more life into the game, Paul is a rich and prosperous man > dren and an abundance of this world's Sympathy in Dogs and Cats.

conscience, a good wife, happy chil-

A favorite Fomeranian dog was or way to Newcastle. But traveling was leavy work, as the rails were encountered with show.

A favorite Fomeranian dog was o'clock p. m. express; I saw all the passengers but the two who were traveling with you. I must and will see them.

A favorite Fomeranian dog was o'clock p. m. express; I saw all the passengers but the two who were traveling with you. I must and will see them. "If you must you must," said I, as- cat, always sat by with a kindly look suming a carelessness I was far from of pity in his luminous green eye. When course the idea was preposterous, and I military necessity. feeling; "but really-Vercoe, will you "Laddie," the bind dog was called in a remark on her own account; but the young one merely gave monosyllable when her son Paul, who was in a bank, replies to any observations addressed to her, I throught, however, that she had refund it; but the defaication was at the modern to be described as more again. Then turning door, or would strike his venerable to the detective again: "You say you must and will see these ladies at once; head against the posts. "Blackie." having noticed this difficulty, would be a more of the post of the the most musical voice I had ever once found out, and as there had been leard, and I felt provoked with her for other petty frauds in the bank of late other petty frauds in the bank of late alking so little, and keeping her face the manager and directors were deterwhich made it impossible to see what faulter.

And now, sir," concluded the old it legals it gave up all efforts at lady, "we are in your hands. You and say 'Here ladies is a policement."

The faulter of the dealing in the billiard-room, as they know it is shoulder, as it were, and the friends would then separate for the night. You see I could hardly enter the room and say 'Here ladies is a policement." to frolic with his long, fringed tail; but "Time's up!" said Ted; as we clasped he was too noble to show active dishands as two old friends and school- like. When the kitten died in convulsions-a victim to nerves and a bail of "Let me hear from you now and cotton—and its owner bent over the stiffened form in grief, "Laddie" came "All right, Bob. My secretary shall gravely up and kissed it. He followed the claim of a tweet voice, and I the case at breakfast, and hoping the element that I would not lose sight delinquent would be caught. He had been discussing give you full accounts of our doings. It to the grave, and for many days was give you full accounts of our doings. It to the grave, and for many days was give you full accounts of our doings. It to the grave, and for many days was give you full accounts of our doings.

He Was Another Kind of taar.

He had called at a house on Cass Avenue, Detroit, on business and as he "I believe you were up the lake this

"Yes." "Go fishing any?" 15 Yes. 77 "Catch anything?" "One little perch."
"Ha! ha! al. That's about as I expeated. Well, good-night." When the caller had gone the wife those fish be would have gone away and so sat quietly by the side of thy

SHE MET HOLMES.

A Washington correspondent tells where now. I shall be off directly when strange hotel unless we have a man the following pleasant story of a lady I meet with one that suits me. You belonging to the party." mense favorite throughout the south, as Miss Page, the sister of Mrs. Thomas Bryan, once unconsciously told aim. She was visiting another sister, present, "Where is he?" she asked with enthusiasm. "Do show me." "I do not see him," said the little gentleman to whom she was speaking. He was a very little gentleman, with a face like a winter apple, a pair of twinkling brown eyes and a merry smile, but his name she had not heard. "Oh," she said, "I am so anxious to meet him. You know he is such a favorite in the South." "Indeed," he answered, evidently greatly surprised. "I thought Yankee principles and Yankee literature were just the reverse of popular." She smiled her own brilliant smile. "Perhaps you are not altogether wrong, but of this I can assure you, no outhern gentleman's library is considered complete without the 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." He positively colored up and looked confused and just then some one laid a hand on his shoulder and said;

"Tableaux! But Miss Page, through her blushes, told him: "It is all true and you must accept the compliment au pied de la lettre, for I did not know to whom I spoke."

"Dr. Holmes-"

A Midnight Adventure

One afternoon last summer I went out to our local base ball park to witness the performance of one of the Wild West shows which have become a feature of our National amusements. I was accompanied by the young lady to whom I am engaged. We had good seats in the grand stand and enjoyed the performance very much. The markmanship was good, the horsemanship excellent, the cowboys were rough enough to have come from the most distant frontier, and the Indians were The nine days' talk of the North typical representatives of the modern red man. There was one old squaw who figured in a camping scene, and who impressed me as the ughest human being I had ever gazed upon; there were also several young women, who tored children of the forest, and com-pelled to pass his whole life among anything uncommon or disagreeable or die. of them, there was no necessity or reason for either of us making such a sacrifice, when a startling feat of horsemanship about it, and that as for marrying one performed by half-breed Apache excited her interest and put an end to my moralizing. I did not call at Bella's that evening, having been with her all the afternoon, As I was sauntering down town after supper, whom should I run across but peremptory accents: Bilkins, a young friend of mine, of sporting proclivities. Bilkins proposed bibed a number of mixed drinks, I started home about 11 o'clock. 1 was feeling a little tired from having stood on my feet so much during the wening, and as I passed through a small public park which lay in my homeward route I sat down on an iron

I had been looking at this statue for several minutes, when it seemed to me that the bronze plume which decorated the present that the bronze plume which decorated the warriance with the present that the bronze plume which decorated the warriance with the present that the bronze plume which decorated the warriance with the warriance w the warrier's scalp-lock began to wave containing this information were in the to and fro in the gentle wind. Of mails, and must be seized as an act of him off on his bridal tour, looking and land by Benedict Biscop, Abbot of had formed a satisfactory hypothesis to account for the delusion, when the offence punishable by death, but account for the delusion, when the statue upset my theory by stepping from its granite pedestal and advancing with a stately stride to the place on a lonely road between Washington on a lonely road between Washington where I sat. "Ugh!" said the voice of the statue, with a metallic ring which sounded just a little out of the common. "The same to you," I answered, poitely, not knowing exactly what it to the post office at Pittsburg.

meant. "I am Worm-in-the-Bud, the last of the Objibways." "Pleased to meet you," I murmured. | finding General Morgan, gave himself "My name is Jones," commanding movement, swept it slowly from right to left.

these shores once roamed the red deer and the moose, where now the streetcar horse toils wearily; the war whoop of the Ojibways resound where now the shrill piping of the hand organ announces the return of Spring. Who has wrought these changes?" and he paused I was about to remark that the great American people had wrought these changes, and that he would find a complete description of it in Bancroft's "History of the United States," when the Indian continued fiercely:

"'Tis the pale-face! the false-hearted pale-face who has stolen our inherit-but I hated to make a scene in public, We had taken the car which want past the base ball park, and a ride of about fifteen minutes brought us to the entrance, at which we alighted. My and emitted the cry of the screech owl. wonderful capabilities. The duties of A gutteral voice murmured something the wife of a Syrian to-day are as foling with Indians-every copper-colored and bringing them upon her head. She attache of the show was evidently on rises early and goes to the handmill of hand. Somehow they seemed different the village, carrying corn, enough of in the moonlight from what they had which for the day's bread she grinds by appeared in the afternoon; their faces a slow, laborious process. This she wore a fiercer expression, they walked carries home and cocks in an oven with a longer stride and freer move- which is made in the earth. It is a ment, and much of their cheap modern round hole, lined with oval flat stones, clothing had been replaced with deer and heated by a fire built in it. When and buffalo skins and a profusion of the bread is mixed with water and a feathers. "Braves and squaws," said my cap-tor to the crowd, which had surrounded hot stones to cook. Could anything be us closely, "this is one of the accursed more crude? pale-faces, who have stolen our hunt- She cares for her children-usually a ing grounds, dug up the bones of our large family—and does all the rough fathers, and driven our tribe to the work at intervals, while the devoted (?) barren

What shall we do with him?" gether, but I could not distinguish what they said, and only knew that a discussion was going on. Finally a conclusion seemed to have been reached. An Indian broke away from the circle and brought a square block of building stone which he placed in of building stone, which he placed in cracks appear. The rain comes, and, appeared as counsel in a case at Brook the centre of the group, while another as a natural consequence, the roof lyn recently, brought forward a sledge-hammer, leaks. ordinarily used for driving tent poles.

I was wondering what this meant, when I was firmly seized from behind, and a raw hide lariat wrapped around the behind, and a raw hide lariat wrapped around this bodily comfort. He remedies the bis bodily comfort. He remedies the his bodily comfort. Wunger, me half a dozen times and tied securely. I was then laid upon the ground, face downward, with my nose resting upon this wife comes, ascends to the house fame and wealth.

—A Detroit man, Theo. Munger, claims that he invented the air brake that has brought Mr. Westinghouse fame and wealth.

would go with their tomfoolery. Wormhim for my husband!"

evil which was realized when I recog-nized in the speaker the old squaw sosiety in Syria, but those who belong and for many years in charge of one whom I had observed in the afternoon. to a higher class are very, very few. She looked ten times more hideous in the moonlight than she had seemed in hotel table to meet Mr. Vercee, and now here is Mr. Lawson."

"Had it not been for Ted we should probably have slept in the same hotel and knew nothing of each other's pres
"It was evident that she had seemed in the same train "that my son went to knew nothing of each other's pres
"How thankful we ought to be that the moonlight than she had seemed in the daytime. It was evident that she had been forced to adopt a husband, for the reason that she could never the course of the performance:

"How thankful we ought to be that the moonlight than she had seemed in the daytime. It was evident that she had been forced to adopt a husband, for the reason that she could never the course of the performance:

"How thankful we ought to be that the moonlight than she had seemed in the same train "that my son went to keep the daytime. It was evident that she had been forced to adopt a husband, for the reason that she could never the course of the performance:

"How thankful we ought to be that the moonlight than she had seemed in the same train "that my son went to be description given by," and of course I knew nothing of any one answering the description given by the police.

Time passed on, and Laura Spence > in-the-Bud, "Cannot one of those younger women once more the fatal sledge hammer was raised, and had begun its descent, when I awoke to find the cold club of a boss,

"Well, now, move on, will you? This busly, "and we will make some arrangepark is no hotel." I moved; and as I looked back, I

Guarded by His Honor.

"I have been a fool," he said. "I dian—glared at me a moment, and then extending his right arm, with a see that plainly. I am ready to bear then extending his right arm, with a see that plainly. I am ready to bear the punishment of my folly." General Morgan, who knew that he had been deceived by Bradford, was annoved that he had not made his establishment of my folly."

and others that it is a mere dummy, contrived to impose upon a credulous landlord at a half-dime lodging house, landlord at a half-dime lodging house, father has finished. "My daughter, your father has finished." "This was once the hunting ground of my fathers," he said, and then paused as though he expected me to him a chance to escape.
"You cannot be tried here," he said,

> "I am to have a guard?" "No, none." The General turned on his heel and walked away. He intended and ex-farmer's honor was a stricter guard than soldiers would have been, and drove him without funching to his death. He bade farewell to his wife and souly? He bade farewell to his wife and child and started alone on horseback to Philadelphia. It was a three weeks' voice full of alcohol and mystery, "I journey, at any hour of which he could don't mind telling you. It's my fullhave escaped. He reported himself as dress suit. You see a feller in my posi- quadruped 20 feet in length, and hold-reached the wilderness, but the young

Morgan he sent a special messenger to 11, 11 the President, with an account of the Nomen's Work in Syria. There are grand women in Arabia; companion put his hand to his mouth women of ability, keen insight and in the darkness, and the gate swung lows: She brings all the water for family use from a distant well; this is In a moment the place was swarm- accomplished by filling immense jars, little salt she removes the ashes and mountains of the far West. husband calmly smokes his "argelie," Several voices spoke confusedly to housetop, in conversation with some or sits cross-legged upon his divan or the cold stone. Twisting my head a top, and in the drenching rain propels a roller of solid stone backward and stone backward and spit on his hands and grasp the sledge forward, much as we use a lawn county (N. J.) courts have died since would go with their tollings, and the in-the-Bud gave a signal, and the sledge hammer was raised, when I housewife's duties. Her reward is not in this world, surely. She cannot speak as it is less difficult for all classes to take time for voting on that day. to her husband in public; she can re- take time for voting on that day, "Hold! He shall not die! I will adopt ceive no caress before his friends. She —Milton used twice as many Latin The sledge hammer sank to the goes veiled and scantily clad. She has as Saxon words, but he used the latter no time to make her own habiliments, so much more frequently that in 'Parground, and an expression of disappointment gathered in the faces of the embroider artistically and abundantly and in "L'Aliegro" ninety per cent.

crowd. But it was their custom, and for the husband and the male children, they did not think of opposing it. I was raised to a sitting posture, which gave me an opportunity to get a good look at the squaw to whom I owed my life. As I turned my head, I felt a sinking of the heart, a presentiment of eyil which was realized when I recognized by the lower and middle classes of expectations. An old-time Mantana freighter.

Curious Story of an Inventor.

"How thankful we ought to be that the accident of birth has made us chilthe accident of birth has made us chilnartially removed, when I remarked:

Christopher Meyer, who was more or charlemagne at the close of the eighth less with Ives. Many years ago he retially removed, when I remarked: was a workman in a factory where a few that had been crected on the stop a moment. is this the only cubber shoes were made. He received Rhine and Danube by the Romans. "It is the only way," replied Worm- the fabulous sum of $1,25 a day. At Lubec was the first on the Baltic, benight he worked out the details of an invention for economizing in the numbe substituted for this venerable relic?" ber of men employed in the factory.

"By no means," he replied, frown. an Indian, one probably wouldn't find ing 'you must either marry Nokomis cied it to the shop and showed his boss how well it would do the work "Then let the execution proceed," I of a dozen or twenty men. The boss > machinery into chaos. "But I want that," protested the when I awoke to find the conditions in policeman resting quietly across my up-turned nose, and to hear a blue-up-turned nose, and to hear a blue-workman, quietly.

>
> "Come and see me to morrow noon," "I know you do," answered the continued the head of the firm, pompments-----"If you want to talk business with played one game—two games—half a dozen games—during the course of which I smoked several cigars and im bladed a number of colors of the statue.—Chicago Inter Ocean. the year 1843, Meyer was taken into the firm, and in a short time he was at the head of said to be of quite frequent "During the "whisky insurrection" the business. He lives in New Jence among certain African tribes, Brunswick, N. J., in a pretentlous Dr. Stockly mentions the case of a in Western Pennsylvania in 1792, the house, and his sons are all well mar- Caffre, eighteen years old, who had six leader, Bradford, acquired a powerful influence over a wealthy farmer named ried. A short time ago the old man— fingers on each hand. His parents, influence over a wealthy farmer named the is more than 70 years of age—took four sisters and a brother, had the which I occupied was just across the walk from a life-sized bronze statue of an Indian, clad in the traditional garb of the forest of prepared for the forest of a gradual country for the forest of the forest of a gradual country for many and the same and a brother, had the same, and his mother had also a double out a beautiful 19-year-old girl and out a beautiful 19-year-old girl and spread for the wedding. Immense of the forest of a gradual country for many and a brother, had the same, and his mother had also a double out a beautiful 19-year-old girl and out of the forest, of a period antecedent to the introduction by the white man of whiskey and blankets.

I had been been target and the plans had been sent from the feeling like a major. A Tramp's Bundle. For many years I have been devoured on a lonely road between Washington die. You may have noticed that no and l'ittsburg, and carried the mailbag to Bradford's house. It was der what circumstances, he has a bunopened, the damaging letters were taken out, and the rest were returned to the post office at Pittsburg.

Where the injuries by having a mixture of marble dust and sulphuric acid blown in his wrapped in old and dirty rags; it may When the insurrection was quelled all the leaders escaped except John Mitchel, who rode into camp, and, finding General Morgan, gave himself own knowledge I have never been able night's lodgings, I said to him:

"Tell me what is in your bundle and pected Mitchel to fiee as soon as he had I'll give you a dollar." "Honest?" said the tramp. I assured him of it.

a prisoner, who was tried, convicted, tion has to move in society a good deal, ing an intermediate position between and sentenced to be hanged.

sent a full pardon to Mitchel, with a scalded meal and feed to the chicks. a similar nature have of late years been message to return to wife and child and Camphor will prevent moths; the made in that vicinity, but this of Mr. to keep clear of conspirators for the rest gum near your silver will keep it Fisher's is the most recent and most

NEWS IN BRIEF.

-Esmeralda county, Nev., has a new guyser hot enough to cook potatoes. -Somnambulism is said to be on the increase among the women of this country. -Horseback riding as an exercise is becoming more popular in the New England States. -The public records in England began to be regularly preserved in 1100, by order of Henry 1.

-Amarath L was the founder of the power of the Turks, and reigned from 1357 till killed in 1390. -Bees were introduced into Boston in 1670, and have since spread over the American continent. -In one of the French schools there is a natural magnet which is said to be capable of lifting four times its weight. -The invention of pumps is ascribed to Canaus, at Linden, 1485, but they were in use in England fif's years -Professor Turner, the Edinburgh anatomist, gets $20,000 a year, the highest salary paid to any professor in the world. -Hong Yen Chan, who is said to be the only Chinese lawyer in the country,

-At Mount Washington during Fammer, Still I said nothing, for I was mover. This rolls the sun-dried cracks curious to see how far the red devils would go with their temforless. Worm -The elections in France, Spain of the largest bull trains in the Northwest, says it is a fact that during a hard winter living cattle will eat the dead ones. He has seen them wany ing founded A. D. 1140.

to make wall paper. They made it in square blocks, stamped to imitate embossed leather. The Dutch imported such papers about the last of the sixteenth century. They began to copy the Chinese papers about 1040, -Nearly 300 cases of optum were brought to San Francisco recently by a single vessel. It is stated that the opium weighed 11,685 pounds, which,

-The Chinese were the first people at $10 per pound duty, puts into Uncle Sam's coffers $116,850. This is the argest importation made this year." -The largest fall of snow at one time in the month of April is said by an old resident to have been on the 11th of April, 1821, and was four feet ceeding days soon melted it away. The heaviest fall of snow in May was in

-Supernumerary toes and fingers are Weymouth, in A. D. 676. -The soda fountain is seasonably beginning to assert itself. One in a drug store in Orange, N. J., exploded by an intense and abiding curiosity to know what a tramp carries in his bunmissed the head of the proprietor, J. L. Yatman, and tore a hole in the wall. As it was, he received painful with the tenacity of death itself. I have her mother. She was educated a heard a number of conjectures hazarded | Pious girl, and subsequently married as to its possible contents. Some critics a physician. She was called home father has finished his course. You tunes concealed in the tramp's bundle, know his principles and views. He and been told of occasions when the cannot comfort you with the assurance say something. But the circumstances were so unusual that I could not think of anything appropriate.

Through the torest that adorned with the rest of the county, liked and bundle found in the possession of a dead tramp contained family papers and documents to prove that the late would be death he determined to give him a change to escape. and exalted connections. But of my law of the universe, and to that law own knowledge I have never been able "I will give you a pass to Philadelphia. to satisfy myself as to its actual char-Report yourself there."

-Some wonderful teeth, weighing 5 actor, so that when I was accosted the pounds each, and measuring 19 inches other day by a tramp with the usual in circumference, were plowed up bundle and a plea for the price of a lately by Mr. William Fisher, of Clachan, in a low field on his farm. Several years ago the field was drained of a body of water by which it had been covered, and later on a heavy tire overspread it, lowering the surface "You won't give me away to a living a few feet. By investigation the teeth and their fossil accompaniments (huge bones 5 feet long) evidently belong to S. G. Gooderich as "dinotherium," which he describes as an herbiverous and sentenced to be hanged.

And he must have his dress suit ready, the mastodon and the tapir. The fine when the news reached General for he don't know when he may need enameled surface of these gigantic tenth and their forked propes, which teeth and their forked prongs, which must have protruded fully 8 inches facts in the case. Washington, it is Gather purstane in the morning while into the monster's jaw, is an object of said, was deeply touched, and at once the dew is on. Chop fine, mix with great curiosity. Other discoveries of