Perchance my thought was wide awake, Or I was dreaming, may be, As I sat rocking to and fro, My arms around my baby.

I felt along my cheek and throat Her rosy fingers playing.

Ind stooped to kees the sunny curls

About her forehead straying. The foolish rhymes of Mother Goose

In time and tune came springing To lips not made for song—and yet My children like my singing. And as I sang, a mystic spell Changed all the world completely-Another woman singing sat, And rocked her baby sweetly.

The woman's face, a look it wore,.. Like mine; and yet the rather 'Twas like my baby's, larger grown, 'Twas like my baby's father. And as she, swaying, softly sang, I saw some tear-drops falling: I knew her thought, I knew her heart, Her heart to mother calling.

A sudden passion filled my soul, longed to soothe the weeping My baby stirred upon my breast, My baby gently sleeping; The vision fied, yet well I know— Though I was dreaming, may be ar down the future sits my child

And rock's my baby's baby. ROGER'S HOUSEKEEPER.

However, I guess I'd better of calling the spot the three forges, "because," said he, "the blacksmith forges shoes for the farmers' horses, forges shoes for the farmers' horses, the store-man, under the guise of lean pound-weights and fat pass-books forges care and anxiety for the farmers' wives, and the tavern keeper forges for the farmers themselves an armor that cause of his dumbness.
