"Senator Vest of Missouri says, 'President Cleveland, by his message to Congress in December last, and for which I sincerely thank him, has challenged the protected industries of the country to a fight of extermination, the fight is to the death.' Let every American wage-earner remember the Democratic challenge against 'Protection' is against him personally. 'The fight is to the death.'"

Saturated With Beer. READING, Sept. 19.—Augustus Boyer, aged 35, married man who works a grocery store along the river front, took his gun out this morning saying he would shoot at the first man he met to see whether it was loaded. He was followed by several men, and after a desperate struggle, disarmed him and locked him up. On the way to the station he shouted wildly, and it was evident, was a raving maniac. He said that the cart he was in on Friday and refused to sell because he said every Friday was a holy day. He has become insane through excessive religious reading and asserts that the cart is so saturated with beer that the men are losing their souls. He will be taken to the Harisburg Asylum.

The Mistake of the Rebels. It is well to keep before the people the frank and candid statements made by General Dick Taylor, one of the ablest men—though far from being one of the best—of the rebel army, in an article explaining the defeat of the rebellion. Said he: "We made two great mistakes. Had we avoided them we should have conquered you. The first was that we did not substantially destroy the protective feature of the tariff in the winter session of 1867 and 1869, by an act which provided a rapid sliding scale to free trade. We could have passed such a law and held it tight on you till it closed the furnaces, workshops, wooden and cotton mills, and steel and bar iron works of the whole North and West, and scattered your workmen over the prairies and Territories. When the war was ready for you, you would not have been ready for this war. You could not have armed and equipped and put into the field a large army, nor built a large navy. You would have been without supplies, machinery and workmen, and you would have been without money and credit. What the Confederates failed to do in 1867 they are trying to do in 1888, assisted by their Democratic brethren of the North."

The Game Law. Published by request. No person shall kill or pursue any wild deer, save only between the 1st of October and the 1st of December of any year, under penalty of $50, nor have in his or her possession, or offer for sale any wild venison, except from October 1st to November 30, inclusive. No person shall at any time kill any fawn when in its spotted coat, and have the fresh skin of such in his possession, under penalty of $50. Dogs pursuing deer or fawn may be killed by any person, and the owner of such dog shall be liable to a penalty of $10 for each deer killed by such dog, except in Centre, Clinton, Fayette, Lycoming, Luzerne, Schuylkill, Union and Wyoming counties. No person shall kill, or have in possession after being killed, any gray, black or fox squirrel, between January 1st and September 1st—penalty, $5 for each squirrel; wild turkey between January 1st and October 15th—penalty, $10 for each turkey; upland or grass plover, between January 1st and July 15th—penalty $10 for each plover; woodcock, between January 1st and July license, deserved and should receive the earnest support of prohibitionists, instead of aiding the Democratic party which is the advocate of free rum."

The Republican Senatorial conference of the 31st district met in this place last week and nominated Joseph M. Woods, of Millin county for Senator. Perry county presented Senator Smiley as a candidate, and Juniata county presented Representative Pomeroy as a candidate. It had been predicted that Millin county and Perry county would make the nomination, for the same parties that controlled the nomination three years ago when Mr. Smiley was nominated, were in control of the Millin and Perry county conferences and from that basis it was argued that as Millin county had gone for Smiley three years ago, Smiley would now go for the Millin county candidate Mr. Woods. Whether Smiley and Woods had the matter thus arranged is not verified but it turned out that way, and after balloting one whole afternoon—each set of conferees for their candidate—the Smiley conferees topped the climax and nominated Mr. Woods. Certain citizens have been trying to make it appear that the friends of Wm. Pomeroy now feel as if they are carrying a grievance and for that reason Mr. Woods will have to suffer. The real friends of Mr. Pomeroy only smile over such a statement. Mr. Pomeroy would scarcely enjoy being put in the light of a citizen who is carrying a grievance because he failed to secure the nomination, and if he has no grievance to redress, it is simply ludicrous political mischief for the seconds to want to fight when the principal says there is nothing to fight about. Mr. Woods is a young man who should be stronger than his party for he stands abreast of the great industrial and civil and moral questions that are urged forward by the Republican party in this campaign. He conscientiously believes in the advancement of the industries of the country as advocated by the Republican party, and on the moral issues that have shored themselves to the front he gives no uncertain sound. He is abundantly able and energetic to make an active Senator and there is no reason why he should not be elected by a handsome majority.

A Free Trade Land. "In Turkey everything is sacrificed to the necessity of keeping down the price of provisions, goods of every sort, from grain to iron, and pay an Ad Valorem duty of 3 per cent. Exported goods pay an Ad Valorem duty of 12 per cent. This strange policy readily accounts for the ruined condition of Turkey, Austria, Egypt and the Chinese provide food for her capitol, while her rich lands lie waste. By special treaties with France and England the tariff on imports was reduced to 3 per cent Ad Valorem. Turkey was one of the greatest manufacturing and commercial nations in the world. But Free Trade closed her manufacturing in competition with the accumulated capital and improved machinery of England and France, and soon Turkish carpets, rugs, silks, shawls, and muslins and Damascus cutlery disappeared from the markets of France. Agriculture followed for want of a home market and soon there will be no Turks. Turkey is dying for want of men. She is a land of the living dead. With balances of trade continually against her, she is destitute of capital and the ordinary rate of interest is three per cent a month. This is the rate in London, for instance. That of a man, fifty cents a week. But it is a blessed land in one respect. It has "no robber barons, no 'monopolists,' no 'railroad kings,' and not even a whiskey or coal land. It is a land of honest men. Scott's own heart, where men spend to day what they earn to-morrow. Namantine, the French statesman and historian says, 'The Turkish Empire is a vast and magnificent theatre, with a great flower basket standing in the centre. Nearly all the streets, houses and public buildings were gay with colors.'

GENERAL ITEMS. NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Mail advices from Cuba give further details of the ravages of the recent cyclone. The last advices put the loss of life at over 1000. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James George, of Armstrong township, Somerset county, was married the other day. A few hours later a young child was born to Mr. and Mrs. George gave birth to a child the same evening. WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 19.—In the trial of the horse-stealer, who was being here to day it was discovered, after the jury had gone out, that the prisoner's father was one of the jurymen. The jury after being out for about an hour returned a verdict of guilty.

The Beautiful Flour Barrel. When I was a boy I had seen fish barrels, molasses barrels, sugar hogsheads and oil barrels on the docks at Liverpool and at Philadelphia, and of them black, dirty and unpleasant to look at, but in May 1832 we got to Phoenixville, Pa., and after father worked one week at the Whitaker Iron works I brought home the most beautiful barrel I ever saw. It was white and clean, and I thought the nicest barrel in the world, and when father opened it and I saw the snow white flour fall to the very top of the barrel, I liked it still more. We had always got our flour in the old country, in a tin pail, for there were no paper bags at that time. Father said he had to pay a very big price for that barrel of flour, I think it was about $8.

At that time the free traders were in power, but General Jackson, who was President (like the boy who cut off the dog's tail half an inch at a time, because the dog could not stand it to have it cut off at once), said: "Let the tariff be reduced by degrees." And so it was done; and so the tariff went down, so did the price of flour, and we got the beautiful snow white flour at $7, then at $6, $5.50, $5, $4.50, $4, $3.70, and at last at $3.20. The storekeeper offered us a barrel of tin snips, just as clean and nice and full as ever got, for $2.70 but father said he didn't get $2.70 to buy it, and we had to carry 5 and 10 pounds at a time in the same old tin pail that we used to carry flour in England. The tariff got so low and the English iron came into the country so cheap that the mill we worked in was stopped, and we could not get work enough to support the family. We then went West and stopped at Huntington and Belmont. We finally got to Pittsburgh during the period of 1837, and carried our first barrel of flour in the same old tin pail that we used to carry that purpose in England. Father said that although we had traveled 5000 miles to the land of the beautiful flour barrel, the Free Traders had ruined the flour barrel, and the beautiful barrel out of our reach, and extraordinary disease. He cannot sleep when he wants to. He can hardly keep awake when he wants to. He can hardly ever be said to be awake, and hardly ever asleep, but perpetually oscillating between the two conditions. He does not sleep more than a minute or two at a time if we may call it sleep for want of a better word, somnambulism might be more nearly correct) and his eyes don't remain open or his senses active for more than the same length of time at a stretch. He is never allowed to walk alone, for if he tried it he would be sure to fall, the somnolence coming upon him without notice. Sticking pins in him is of no use, as he does not feel. He starts to talk with him he may get through with a few sentences and then be cut off in the midst of an unfinished word, but when he awakes to consciousness again he has the recollection of taking up the talk precisely where he left off. To use a printer's phrase, his sleeping, his walking, his talking, and his thinking are all done in very "short takes."

The modest stranger who stepped into Mayor Hewitt's office and handed him $12,000 in gold certificates for the relief of the Florida yellow fever sufferers, with the injunction that his name should be kept secret, could only have been one man. It must have been the Republican Vice Presidential Candidate.

Married his Grandfather. Amadeo, Duke of Aosta, is brother to King Humbert of Italy. He is now forty-three years of age. It will be remembered that in 1870 he accepted the throne of Spain. Accompanied by his beautiful and charming wife, the Princess Marie, he was received with great acclamation in Madrid and remained on the Spanish throne for about three years. Royal intrigues and alleged secret attempts on his life caused him to abdicate in 1873, when he returned to Italy and has since led a somewhat secluded existence, but he has been married to the Princess Clotilde, a sister of the Duke—her brother becomes her son-in-law. A special despatch to the Herald from Turin, Italy, says: "This city may be described to-day as having boiled over with excitement. It was the day when Princess Clotilde got married. Her husband, brother her own daughter as a bride. In anticipation of this marriage of a dual uncle to his princess niece Turin was en fête. The streets through which the bride procession passed were hung in red and white, the colors of Savoy. The arches of its fine arcades were filled with flowers supplied by the wealthy inhabitants. The place Victor Emmanuel was decorated with a vast number of theatre, with a great flower basket standing in the centre. Nearly all the streets, houses and public buildings were gay with colors."

Free Trade has always increased the price of "products" and a protective tariff has as a rule had a tendency to make the price less. Under the Democratic notion of Free Trade, foreign importations would regulate our markets for us. Break down the tariff and you equalize wages in this country with those prevailing in Europe. Does any sane man believe that anything this country can do will double the remuneration of labor in Europe? There is but one alternative. Wages here must come down to that standard.
