B. F. SCHWEIER,

EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

REGULATORS in the South.

WHITE CAPS in the North.

A revolution for France is predicted.

AN Illinois statesman wants to annex Canada.

HOME RULE, without European interference for Samoa.

FOUR hundred Indian boys and girls at Carlisle school.

VOTING for or against prohibition is not a party measure.

THERE is a bill in the Legislature to make election days legal holidays.

GRAY hair is so fashionable in Paris that most women bleach their hair white.

GERMANY will be thinking more about Boulanger than about Samoan affairs.

DEMOCRATIC State Senators refused to vote on the prohibitory amendment bill.

THE Crown Prince, of Austria, aged about 31 years, died a few days ago of suicide.

EDWARD STRAHORN, English Secretary of State of War says: Europe is on the eve of war.

No public necessity requires an increase of assessment or tax, anywhere in Juniata county.

SOME Democrats will vote for prohibition, some will vote against it, so it will be with Republicans.

GOVERNOR BEAVER, has signed the bill proposing a submission of the proposed prohibitory amendment to a vote of the people.

ACCORDING to report, the Vanderbilts have bought the stock of the proposed South Penn railroad for 60 cents on the dollar.

LAST Wednesday, all Chinaman in Philadelphia observed as a holiday—the 5075th anniversary of the founding of China by Pan Ko Wong.

A SMALL army of pioneer immigrants are encamped on the border of the Indian Territory ready to go in and possess the land as soon as government opens the Territory to settlers.

THE French government has made a present of a complete railroad train to a Chinese statesman and hope that the present will induce the building of a railroad on which to run the train.

SAMOA, a group of 13 islands in the Pacific ocean containing a population of 25 to 30,000 Christianized people. Dried cocoanuts are the chief production. It is valuable to the United States as a coaling station.

SILENCE does not always give consent. The Democratic Senators at Harrisburg refused to vote for the prohibitory amendment, and if you wish to ruffle their temper just tell them that their silence gives consent.

AT the late election the Democrats carried New Jersey. Their Legislature has begun work by repealing the Local Option Law, and by passing a Democratic Apportionment bill or law which makes the State almost certainly Democratic.

THE French Republic has been so extravegant, and has so heavily taxed the people that they are ready for a king, or one man power, to escape from the taxation robbery that is imposed on them by the corrupt men that secure position by election.

THE German offense in Samoa is that they routed King Malietoe and set up King Tamasese and gave him a German minister of State. The American question on the situation is that there shall be no interferance among the natives such as the Germans have exercised but that the natives shall be free to exercise home rule.

A YOUNG man in New York city committed suicide last week, for love, that is because a girl that he loved would not marry him. Young men and women who do not find their love reciprocated should become philosophical, and find consolation in the old fact expressed in the saying, "There are as good fish in the sea as have ever been caught."

JOHN M. CLAYTON, in the 2nd Arkansas Congressional District, was assassinated by some one, who shot him through a window while he sat in his house a few evenings ago. He was contesting the Congressional seat of Clifton R. Breckinridge, democrat. Clayton's friends say he was prepared to show that Breckinridge had been elected by fraudulent means.

IN Chester county, which lies adjacent to the manufacturing city of Philadelphia, the triennial assessment shows a decrease of nearly $1,600,000 in value of real estate, here in Juniata county where farm land is pinched harder than in Chester county to meet the demands upon it, it is proposed to increase the assessment. If some dire necessity required an increase of assessment an excuse could be reasonably maintained for the increase that has been made in a district or two. But no such necessity exists and if the men engaged in the work of unnecessary increase of assessments do not revise their work, the Commissioners will be called on to do justice and equalize the unbalanced situation and reduce the unnecessary increase.

The Regulators.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31.—A New Iberia special says: Shortly after midnight Tuesday night regulators rode into town and hanged Jim Rosemond, colored, on the centre beam of the Bridge. The unhappy wretch was brought on horseback and the horse was held just under the beam. A three-quarter inch rope was thrown over the beam bridge and then in a bungling manner adjusted about the negro's neck. The horse was then led from under and the regulators departed. A coroner's inquest showed that death was caused by strangulation. The correspondent was informed by a number of citizens that they believed that the Mayor and the Sheriff could organize a posse to intercept or stop the work of the regulators, and it was their firm belief that if any of those banished should return to the parish they will be shot. A number of prominent citizens interviewed yesterday were unanimous in saying that the regulators had gone too far and a halt ought to be called. Rosemond was about 50 years old. He leaves a widow.

A Young Girl's Wrongs.

The Chambersburg Repository of last week publishes the following: The story of the arrest of John and David Rubeck near Mercersburg, for threatening the life of William A. Trogler, briefly told in yesterday's Repository, has developed into one of the most romantic and sad occurrences that has ever taken place in this county, and which is as thrilling and interesting as any novel or romance.

John Rubeck is a farmer from near Clearspring, Md. He is a well-to do man, owning a farm for which he paid $3,000, some time ago. He has a wife and a number of children, the oldest being Lillie Bell Rubeck, a young girl of seventeen, very pretty, finely formed and known all around the neighborhood for her fine looks. Last April, Lillie went to "The Corner," in Montgomery township, this county, to visit her uncle, Samuel Heister who is a tenant upon one of the farms of William A. Trogler, a well known and wealthy farmer who lives a mile and a half from Mercersburg. Heister was moving from one to the other of the Trogler farms and Lillie came up from Maryland to help with the moving. There she met Mr. Trogler who had gone out to his farms on the moving day. Trogler is 47 years of age and is a widower with 7 children, his wife having died just one year ago. He is the owner of three farms and is reputed to be worth a good deal of money. As soon as Trogler saw Lillie Rubeck he became very much in love with her, the father says, and when she returned to her home in Maryland, Trogler went with her and asked Mr. and Mrs. Rubeck for permission to marry her. The Rubecks did not look with favor upon him, and during time all sorts of correspondence was kept up between him and Lillie.

On Sunday, January 6th, Trogler arrived at Rubeck's about the middle of the afternoon and the proposed marriage was again talked over by the parents of Lillie and Trogler. The girl wanted he parents consent to her marriage and they finally agreed. Rubeck says that then Trogler produced a written paper, which he asked them to sign saying it was necessary in order that he could obtain a license and they both signed the paper. On Monday morning, Mr. Rubeck says, he discovered that Trogler had been sitting up courting all night and he and his wife were very indignant about it. Trogler wanted to bring the girl to Chambersburg, procure his license and be married here. The parents wanted him to get his license first and then come back for the girl on Tuesday, but they finally agreed to let her go with Trogler, upon his promising to come direct from Chambersburg and be married that day. Trogler then started away with the girl and that is the last her parents saw of her until next Sunday morning about 4 o'clock when she came home a raving maniac, having walked all the way from Trogler's, twelve or thirteen miles during the night. Her father says that during her lucid intervals she told an awful story of abuse at Trogler's hands, that he had taken her to his house, kept her for a week, had refused to marry her, and had gone into her room at night and forced her when she was sleeping with Trogler's oldest child. He also says that shame at her situation and disappointment over his not marrying her had driven her insane, and that she had never before shown any symptoms of mental trouble.

The girl's insanity assumed a very violent form, and she had to be confined in her room, but escaped several times, breaking glass in the windows and the locks from the doors. Her mother is an invalid and she too became unbalanced in her mind with grief at her daughter's story of her wrongs. The father threatened to kill Trogler, he admits, and yesterday morning he and his brother David started for Trogler's house to compel him to make some reparation or to compel him to provide money for placing the girl in an asylum at Baltimore. They were well armed, having a revolver and a large knife. Upon arriving at Trogler's they called him out and told him he must provide for the girl or take the consequences. He agreed to pay for the girl's support, but said he hain't any money and must go to the bank at Mercersburg, so all three walked into Mercersburg, but upon arriving there Trogler had them arrested for threatening to kill him. Squire Slick held the Rubecks in $1000 bail, each, and George Steiger and David Whitmore entered bail for David, but the father was brought here to jail. He at once employed Messrs. O. C. Bowers and W. Rush Gillan as his counsel, who had Rubeck brought before Justice Haulman last evening and his bail reduced to $200 with his counsel furnished.

Mr. Rubeck spent last night in town, and this morning was engaged with his counsel who were drawing up the papers in a breach of promise suit for heavy damages which will be entered as soon as Judge Stewart returns from Philadelphia and allows the writ, and then Trogler will be arrested. Trogler arrived in Chambersburg this morning. He was very much excited over the affair and worried over its probable consequences. He admitted that the story of the Rebecks as to the occurrences before January 6th were mostly correct but he denies all abuse of the girl and says he is in no way responsible for her insanity. Lillie, he says, was a pretty and virtuous girl, and he intended to marry her. He came to Chambersburg on the 8th and applied to Clerk Benedict for a marriage license, but Mr. Benedict would not issue it until the blanks would be signed and acknowledged by the parents.

Trogler says that as soon as he got the girl to his house she began to show symptoms of insanity, that she imagined she saw strange people and specks in the room, sat up all night and did so many strange things that he made up his mind that she was insane and that he wouldn't marry her. He denied most positively that he wronged her or injured her in any way, but gives no explanation as to why he kept her there all week. When asked on that point he evaded the question, nor would he give any reason why he did not send her home at once after he couldn't get the license, and after he found that she was acting strangely. It would have ruined his home he says to have married a crazy girl, and thinks he made a fortunate escape. Rev. M. L. Culler was at Trogler's house that week and he told Mr. Culler that he had intended to marry the girl, but found out that she was too young. When asked why he did not tell Mr. Culler of the girl's insanity, he said he did'at want to tell him. The affair has created a great sensation in that part of the county and the story of the poor girl's wrongs is the subject of universal comment, in which a good share of public indignation is poured out upon Trogler.

Prohibition Column.

Editor Sentinel and Republican:

—I avail myself of the opportunity you give in the columns of your paper to say as briefly as I know how, a few words for Prohibition. Juniata is almost a Prohibiton county now. The places where liquor are sold are so few that a marked difference is seen in the conduct of people who are observers. Everything is quiet and orderly, whereas in other days rowdyism often prevailed. Now, if prohibition be adopted as an amendment the whole state will feel the good effects and all the people will be better off. Prohibition can do no harm. Yes, they say it will destroy the value of hotel property. There is nothing in that. You might as well say the competition of the business of one man injures the trade of another. Or when a sheriff sells out a store the goods go so low that people buy at the sheriff's sale and don't buy at the store, and that you may say injures or helps to destroy the store business. Or you may say that a man buys a farm at Sheriff's sale for less than he could buy it at private sale and that is an injury to real estate. How many hotel proprietors and rare houses were made valueless by the railroad. How many can you count in Juniata county? How many tanneries were closed in Juniata county by competition of big tanneries in other counties. But more again.

MIFFLINTOWN.

Pittsburg, Jan 29th—Secret service detectives have discovered that there is considerable bogus coin shoving being done in Pittsburg. It is difficult to trace the counterfeiters. They find a great share of the crooked work is done by amatuers who are bad money makers. Pittsburg and vicinity is a regular nest for coiners of that kind.

The people who make it are mechanics out of work, moulders and other workmen accustomed to handle tools, and who are to lazy to earn an honest living. A joint such as the people run for the purpose of making coin can be stocked with all the necessary material for $250.

The "queer" produced is of very inferior kind, but it is good enough to pass inspection when first made, and that is all the fellows want. The mechanics start up their plant and run it perhaps for a week. In that time they make enough bad money to keep them for a year. The shop is then closed down, the tools put away and all evidence of crooked work destroyed. That is what makes it exceedingly difficult for the Government officers to catch the offenders.

United States Detective McSweeney says: "The whole western end of Pennsylvania is filled with both amateur and professional bogus coin moulders. The 'greenies' do not make very dangerous money, but the other fellows do. The professionals are all ex-convicts. Thirty of them will be placed on trial at the next term of court in Scranton. Two well dressed women have been quite active of late in circulating the queer, in Pittsburg. They chose for their base of operations street cars where the fare was dropped in the Shawson box, the theatres and Allegheny market houses."

ABERDEEN, Dak., January 29.—News has reached here that two school children named French perished in the storm Friday night, and that a third is not expected to survive the exposure. The party consisted of two little boys and an older sister, aged 18. The French family lives about twelve miles east of Aitchcock. When taken to school by an older brother in the morning the children promised to wait until he came for them at night.

Children belonging to other families were taken home, but they refused proffered assistance, saying that they would stay in the school house all night if their brother did not come. It appears he did start but could not make his team face the storm and gave it up. After waiting till dusk, the children started home, but lost the road and wandered in the deep snow until exhausted. When found in the morning, the two little boys were dead. The girl was severely frozen and is unconscious. If she survives she will lose the use of the lower portion of her limbs and possibly one or both arms.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 29.—The reign of the White Caps in Bloomington was of brief duration. Their threatening letters were sent to a number of disreputable houses on the 24th, promising sound whippings if the inmates did not leave the city in five days, and Friday night a number of houses were bombarded with eggs. Last night the police arrested Patsy O'Connell and three others, who are now in jail. O'Connell was seen and recognized as he delivered one of the threatening missives, and on being arrested confessed, implicating the rest of the gang. Two of the prisoners are old offenders, each having a suspended penitentiary sentence hanging over his head.

Wanted his Wages Raised.

Contributed.

The following incident occured at Bridgewater, N. Y. We asked a young man to attend the temperance meeting on Sunday evening and his reply was: "My clothes are not good enough to attend church. My wages have been small this year, and I must have them raised another year or I shan't work for my present employer.

How much are you receiving this year? You are working on the farm?

"Yes: and I get $200 for nine months, and my board."

"When is your time out?"

"It will be out in 2 weeks."

"How much money will you have coming to you then?"

"Not anything. I have drawn more than my pay now."

"How much of the $200 have been spent for clothing?"

"Not quite $49."

"Have you any besides yourself to support and care for?"

"No, sir; I am for myself."

"What has become of the $160?"

"W-e-l-l, I—I've spent that."

"Oh, you have? Did you put it out at interest? You don't seem to have any great desire to tell where it did go, do you? Well, let me tell you. In June you drew $20 and went up to Utica to a circus; you got drunk and bet on a three card monte, lost all you had, got into a fight, got whipped, put in the lockup (the man who gets whipped is always the man who gets locked up) and in the morning the recorder fined you $10? Is this true?"

"Yes sir, but how did you find it out?"

"That don't matter. It seems they did not leave you anything. When the races were at Utica you drew $20 more and went there. You drank freely, you were just full enough to bet on the slow horse, and lost all you had. You had another fight and as usual received a sound threshing, was taken before the recorder, and for a second offence paid $25 fine. You did not even profit from this transaction. You went to a hop dance; whisky was plenty and you partook freely. You imagined some one insulted you and the result was a general row. This cost you $25 more, besides the costs of court, and the paying of your lawyer, I should think you would want your wages raised."

He stood looking at the ground and then said:

"I can see it all. What a fool I am. Why I have worked five years for my present employer, and have not laid up a cent. I have worn poor clothes; have found fault because my pay was small. If it would not have been for drink, I should now have $500 at interest, should be well dressed and respected by honest people. I will be at the meeting just as I am, and sign the pledge for life."

He kept his word. He took his pledge that night. He has been true to it and is now one of the leading young men in Oneida County.

Young men can you see yourselves in this picture? If you can, heed the truth, and be made better by correcting your mistaken way of living. —Rechabite.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

Frank Kunkle a farmer residing near Delmont, Westmoreland county, was instantly killed on Friday morning at Aber's Hill. At the time of the accident he was driving along a steep embankment when the horses fell on the ice and the wagon upset over the embankment, falling on Kunkle and crushing the life out of him.

Rev. J. Max Lantz, while returning from a wedding at Lewistown Junction a few nights ago, his horse took fright, upsetting the buggy and throwing Mr. Lantz out. He was dragged some distance, but escaped with a bad shake up and a sprained ankle.

Mrs. Jacob Grove, of Walker township, Huntingdon county, gave birth to twin babies last week; these added to the already large family makes seventeen.

William Kuhlman, of Jenner township, Somerset county, on the 21st inst., was caught beneath a tree that he was felling and had his right leg fractured a few inches below the hip joint.

John Newcomb's Fatal Joke.

John Newcomb of Queen Ann county, Md., went home Thursday night, and rapping on the door told his brother Casper that he was a White Cap and had come for him. Casper poked the muzzle of a loaded gun from the door, and in a struggle for its possession it was discharged and John was killed.
