Harrisburg Telegraph: By the approval by Governor Beaver of the act repealing the fence law of 1700, it becomes the duty of every owner of cattle to care for himself. Owners of land are no longer required to fence their land against their neighbors' cattle; but if their land whether fenced or not, is trespassed upon by cattle, and damage results the owner of the cattle is liable for the damage. Owners of cattle must look sharp if they would avoid trouble.

James Spiece, a native of this county, came to his death near Coalport, Clearfield Co., one day last week by being thrown out of the seat of a travelling cart. His head caught between the wheel and shaft, and the revolutions of the wheel crushed the life out of him. When found the horse was standing quietly by the road side; the cart all right and Spiece hanging dead in it. He was following the profession of a lawyer and had driven out to attend to legal business.

Delaware Literary Society.

"The twenty-eighth anniversary of the organization of the Delaware literary society will be held at Thompsontown, Pa., Friday and Saturday evenings, April 26 and 27. The object of the anniversary is two fold "the bringing together of former members who have passed to higher positions in life, that an acquaintance once friendly may be renewed; and also to establish a fund for the purpose of building a hall with suitable conveniences for the society."

Music At The Polls.

Newton Hamilton temperance people propose to adopt unique methods on prohibition amendment day. Williams Bollman and Elmer McMeen, leaders of the brass bands in this place have been written to by temperance workers of the prohibition cause of Newton Hamilton, asking for their services at their lowest rates for a band to be on hand for the 15th of next June.

The Sabbath Schools of Newton Hamilton and other organizations are to occupy a platform within sight and sound of the voting place and music is to be kept up all day from 10 o'clock in the morning.

Through the instrumentality of prayer, music and the presence of Sabbath schools at the polls a rich harvest of votes for the amendment is expected.

An Item from Altoona.

ALTOONA, April 14, 1889.

Mr. Editor—Thinking it would interest some of the many readers of your worthy paper to hear a word from this city, I will drop you an item. The city is growing and developing in size, population and industry. It is calculated that about 5000 buildings are to be erected this summer, which will give all the work good mechanics can get at good wages. Electric lights are becoming more used every year. All the public buildings, stores, &c., also some of the private houses have them to a great satisfaction.

The P. R. R. Company is repairing and making streets in the city in the charge of Thomas McKernan. The Company is also building new car shops at the eastern end of the city, but have not as yet started the work in full. T. J. L.

The New York Centennial—Half Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Centennial celebration of the inauguration of General Washington as first President of the United States will undoubtedly prove the grandest demonstration ever seen in New York. On the morning of April 30th this great naval parade, composed of over six hundred vessels, will occur in the evening the Centennial Ball, and on the 30th the religious and literary exercises in the morning will be followed by the most imposing and extensive military parade ever seen in this country. The banquet will be held in the evening, and on May 1st will occur the great civil and industrial parade. The three days will be filled with a multitude of scenes and incidents of absorbing interest. In order to place the trip within the power of every one the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from Pittsburgh to New York on April 27th, 28th, 29th, and 30th, for trains scheduled to arrive in New York before noon of May 1st, at $13. 32. These tickets will be accepted for passage on all trains, except the New York and Chicago Limited Express, and will be valid for return trip until and including May 6th, 1889.

Memorial.

HARMAN.—On Monday, April 1st, 1889, in Port Royal, Pa., Mr. Frederick H. Harman, aged 71 years, 10 month, and 13 days.

The life of Frederick H. Harman has at last ceased. For two years past he has been a great sufferer, and at several times his life was despaired of, but each time rallied, and at times faith in the healers art flashed like a false light though the gloom. But on Monday morning the messenger called, and with the scythe of death severed the brittle tirend of his earthly existence, and his spirit passed from time to the shoreless ocean of eternity.

Life is a shadowy, strange and winding road, on which we travel for a little way—Just a few short steps from the cradle, with its lullaby of love, from the heartstone of home, surrounded by friends and companions, to the low and silent grave, where all at last must sleep.

We look upon death as an enemy, and yet it is sweet, after the long journey of seventy-two summers has been run, the battles of life all fought, the cares and sorrows, and alike the pleasures of life have all ended, to know that he has peacefully and willingly laid down the armour of life and is now resting at the way side inn.

In the ending of a life like Mr. Harman's, the grim monster has lost his terrors, and came to him as a white winged dove, bringing calm to the bleeding heart, solace to the troubled spirit, and rest, peace and happiness to the wearied frame, and above the bier and tomb floats the sweet voice of God saying: "I am the life."

The funeral services of the deceased were held at his late residence in Port Royal, and largely attended. Rev. Stephens officiated. His beautiful and eloquent remarks were based on Hebrews, 11 chapter and 10 verse; "for he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." Two of the deceased most favorite hymns "Nearer my God to Thee," and "Is my name written there," were sung during the service.

The deceased was a soldier in the late civil war, in which terrible conflict he suffered the loss of an arm, and which has caused him much pain all through the journey of life. He was a resident of Port Royal for the past fifteen years, and leaves a wife and six children and a host of friends to mourn the loss of a loving husband a kind father a sympathizing friend and a devout christian.

All that was mortal of Frederick H. Harman, was laid to rest beside his youngest son, Thos. W., in the quiet cemetery at Church Hill on Wednesday afternoon, there to await the resurrection morn, when God shall come to Judge the quick and the dead. But there are tender recollections and kind deeds that together with the influence of his life, will live and keep green in memory as long as the flowers shall bloom or the verdure grow upon his grave. Without sigh or pain he passed in an instant from the light the music and the perfumes of earth to the world of returned beauty beyond the sun. Fortunate Man: Fortunate in life, and still more fortunate in death, not a moment in the Dark Valley or the shadow between the two worlds, he closed his aged eyes upon the joys of time to open them upon the bright visions of eternity. Peace to his Ashes.

Son—Mother since I have been using Wolff's Acme Blacking my shoes wear longer than ever before, and I never get my feet wet. but I do not think they look as smooth as when I first used it.

Mother—Indeed, my son, I am sorry you are so careless. You forget that it is a good thing to apply good when properly used. You have not even looked at the directions for how to put it on through the neck of the bottle. Now you must read them, and they will get you out of your trouble. Your father and I keep our shoes in elegant order by its use. I use it about once a month and prize it more than a dress.

Wolff's ACME Blacking

Is wonderful; preserving and Waterproofing any leather; giving it a deep, rich black lustre which lasts a week. Don't use glaze. Do not confound ACME Blacking with any other. Sold by Shoe Stores, Grocers, Druggists, &c. Try it on your Harness.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The Cabinet Organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organ have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequaled excellence of their Organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competitions with best makers of the world, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Send for illustrated catalogue, MAILED FREE. PRICES, $22 TO $1500, free.

Mason & Hamlin Organ Co. have also taken the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the important improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the Mason & Hamlin Piano Strings. No other manufacturer has adopted this improvement, and they are exclusively used in Mason & Hamlin Pianos. Illustrated catalogue, containing full information, mailed free. Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments. Agents wanted.
