Circus wants the World's Fair in 1892.

Cost among the people of New York is reported by the papers as epidemic.

It is believed that Congress at its next session will open the Cherokee lands to white settlers.

Tax Brown Squard's Elitir of life put an end to the existence of a of a Washington, D. C. man.

At the Great Grand Army parade in Milwaukee, last week, Pennsylvania veterans carried off the honors.

London people propose to go higher than Paris. They propose to build a monument 2000 feet high.

A RESCUE from Japan by way of London reports a great flood in Japan by which 10,000 people were drowned.

PROBATIONERS met in State Convention at Harrisburg, last Wednesday and nominated J. R. Johnston of Pittsburgh, for State Treasurer.

The Survivors Association of Pennsylvania Artillery, and 188th Regiment were largely attended reunions at Reading last Wednesday.

On the 27th of August California and Eastern Europe were shaken by an earthquake. In Russia 129 people lost their lives in the village of Khenochich.

China is becoming indignant over the immigration question and many of her people propose to put an end to Americans immigrating to that country, which is fair, in view of the fact that Americans do not want Chinamen to come to America.

JOSIAH BRADY of Oregon, recently refused to grant letters of naturalization to a notorious pugilist, placing the denial on the ground that pugilism is not a man of good moral character, and hence not fit to be admitted the privileges of United States citizenship.

CONGRESS, at its next session will have no less than seventeen cases of contested elections to determine, the larger part of them coming from the Southern States. The testimony of these cases now filed with the clerk of the last House of Representatives fills no less than two thousand printed pages. The contestants are for the most part Republicans, who claim that they were elected by the people, but have been dejected of their legal rights by the Democrats.

THIRTY citizens of Galesburg, Ill., have been sued for slander and $25,000, damage by Lutheran preacher C. A. Lybthall. They talked about him being too familiar with a woman. It would be a good thing to sue the clashing trash that live in every community. It is proper to expose the bad work of people, but this is one thing and telling falsehoods about people is another thing. Every community has its scandal mongers and as a rule they are looked upon as trash, whose talk is of no account. Sometimes it becomes necessary to make such people feel the clasp of the law to teach them respect for other people. As a rule the gossips are vile themselves and suspect and defame the human family generally without discrimination and respect for any.

JURATRY is moving fairly in California in the matter of the killing of the rascal Terry. Judge Field, who had nothing to do with the affair except as a spectator who had been insolently assaulted by Terry, was charged with his murder and arraigned before the State Court in Stockton. The Court yesterday dismissed the charge, and the fact was officially communicated to Judge Sawyer, of the United States Circuit Court, in San Francisco. The Judge took occasion to express pleasure at the conclusion, and to condemn the whole proceeding by which a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States was brought before a State Tribunal upon a preposterous charge of murder. Deputy Marshal Nagle, who to save the life of a Judge of a Court of which he was a sworn officer, shot his assailant Terry, is to be brought before Judge Sawyer for the purpose of having testimony taken and the law points argued as to the jurisdiction of the Federal Court. There is reason to believe that Nagle's course will be approved and that he will be discharged as having performed a deed fully justified in defending Judge Field. This will be a grievance to the notorious Sarah Althea Terry and the gang of worthless rascals that side with her. But it will be cordially approved by the American people.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

They Snapped Wires. ALBANY, Aug. 29.—About three weeks ago, ALBANY COWAN was at home in the evening with his wife and child, when John Delaney and his wife called upon them. The Delaneys are of the same nomadic stamp as the Cowans, and like out a more or less precarious living by picking berries, hops and the like.

The day had yielded a good find of berries and they were all in a jovial frame of mind. Delaney complimented Mrs. Cowan in rustic phrase, and Cowan expressed his admiration for Mrs. Delaney. The revel was on until Delaney suggested a permanent exchange of wives, and as none of the parties were acquainted with the word bigamy the bargain was closed by Cowan paying twenty-five cents as a compensation for the proposed enlargement of Delaney's family in the person of Mrs. Cowan's child. Delaney took his newly acquired wife and child to his home.

Mrs. Delaney however refused to stand by the bargain, and, following her spouse, drove Mrs. Cowan out. Mrs. Cowan returned to her husband's shanty to be refused admission and took refuge with her father. Cowan then paid William Stevens $25 to run away with her. He did so and left her and she again returned to her father's house to be stricken down with Typhoid. Cowan then served divorced papers on her and she died from the fright the legal documents produced.

After Pension Money.

The Newport Ledger of August 30th, says: At Millertown on Thursday night of last week a most daring attempt was made to enter the dwelling of Jacob N. Long through a second story window, by the means of a ladder, but the effort was nipped just in time by the screams of two ladies who happened to be sleeping in the room. It seems that Annie Long and Clara Stites had returned on a late train from Port Royal, and Clara had accompanied Annie to her home with the intention of staying the balance of the night. Hattie Stites was also at the residence of Mr. Long, and the two sisters occupied the same room. Along after midnight the girls heard a grating noise and thinking it was the wind blowing the door of the room Clara got up to put down the window. Just as she reached for the sash she saw her hand against the face of a man who was trying to get into the window. She felt his grip, causing her much pain and frightening her out of her senses. During her struggle to get away from the fellow she was unable to speak or tell her sister what was the matter. He finally left loose her arm and made a grab for her head and ran his hand into her face, his fingers going into her eyes. By this time Hattie discovered that there was something wrong, and she raised the alarm. The villain left at once leaving his ladder and a pair of step ladders standing in front of the house. The ladder was taken from the building of T. P. Cathart, whose painters were using them. This was one of the most daring attempts to enter a house that has occurred here for a long time, and it is believed that the rascal was after Mr. Long's pension money.

Sued for Kissing.

The Philadelphia Bulletin of the 27th of August, published the following: The office of Justice Bittling, at Ambler was the scene of a sensational criminal hearing at eight o'clock on Monday morning, the defendant being William J. Devine, foreman of one of the departments of Keasby & Mattison's chemical works, aged thirty-five, tall, slender, bushy-whiskered and by no means prepossessing, and the plaintiff's Mrs. Elizabeth Keller, wife of Hugh Keller, and her daughter Lizzie. The charge was assault and battery, the plaintiff alleging that on divers occasions defendant had forcibly and against their will kissed them.

Devine owns a house in Penlynn He rented it to the Kellers, reserving two rooms for the use of his wife and himself, and boarded with the tenants. Mrs. Keller swore that early on the morning of July 15th, after breakfast in the kitchen, Devine sneaked up behind her and kissed her. Two weeks before he had done the same thing; and in June when both families were visiting in Chalfont, Bucks county, he performed the osculation act twice.

Miss Lizzie Keller, detailed that on the evening of June 17, before amendment election, Devine who was an ardent prohibitionist took her and Nettie Stover, their hired girl on a tract distributing trip to North Wales. Coming home he wanted her to take the lines, but aware of the significance of the request and not desiring to be hugged, she refused.

Devine was held in $400 bail for Court. He says the women were willing to be kissed, and that the prosecution is the outcome of a quarrel which has since arisen.

A Girl's Faint Saves Money.

The following from a special to the Philadelphia Times should be carefully read and its lesson taken at its value. Many dollars would be saved if men would read aright the lessons that are published in the newspapers of the work of swindlers and confidence men. But this is the statement of the Times. Read it carefully and at the next fair or reunion, or big show don't let yourself be swindled and be careful of the traveling confidence men who may chance to meet you as the narrative relates: Three bunco sharks are operating in the lower end of Lehigh county and are playing the same game by which two weeks ago, a farmer near Washington N. J., was swindled out of $7,000.

Two of the sharps called on a farmer named Abraham Bechtel, in lower Milford 3 days ago and pretending they wanted his advice in the matter of the purchase of a farm for which they were negotiating, induced him to enter a carriage and drive off in the direction of the supposed farm. Before they had proceeded far they met a third party, who said he was looking for a young girl who had just come into a big inheritance. Presently the latter produced cards and engaged in a friendly game with the three men in the carriage. The old farmer several times named the winning card and soon it was proposed to play for money with two men on a side.

The old farmer and his partner won $5,000 each, but before they got the money the farmer was required to put up two thousand dollars to show that had he lost he would have been able to pay. With one of the sharps he returned to the house to get the money, but when he explained his mission to his wife and children they protested vigorously saying he was being made a dupe of by swindlers. He insisted on getting the money and was on his way back to the game when one of his daughters fainted. This caused him to run to her assistance and the sharper suspecting that the game was up, hastily left, rejoining his companions, who lost no time in seeking a new field of operations.

THE TRIAL LIST.

The trial list for court this week has been shortened to number the following cases: Moses Pannabaker and Harry M. Hawk vs. W. H. McDonald, owner, and Wilbur F. McCahan, contractor, No. 33, April 7, 1889, is an action on a mechanic's lien to recover for work done as painters by Pannabaker and Hawk on house of McDonald. McDonald had nothing to do with the employment of the painters. He had contracted with McCahan for the building and painting of the house.

The case of Robert Rine, now for use of William J. Kirk vs. James J. Patterson and R. H. Patterson, No. 187, April 7, 1889. Appeal from Judgment of E. B. McCrum, J. P., is for the recovery of a note which defendant claims was paid.

COMMONWEALTH CASES.

Commonwealth against W. H. Kreider. Fornication and bastardy.—Prosecutor, Isaiah Bell.

Com. vs. George Jenkins of Philadelphia. Fornication and bastardy. Prosecutrix, Fannie E. Smith.

Com. vs. Darwin Rhine. Assault and battery. Prosecutor, Charles N. Sherlock.

Card of Thanks.

If the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam should publish a card of thanks, containing expressions of gratitude which come to him daily from those who have been cured of aches, throats and lung troubles by the use of Kemp's Balsam, it would fill a fair sized book. How much better to invite all to call on any druggist and get a sample bottle than you may test for yourself its power. Large bottles 50c and $1.00.

MIFFLINTOWN ACADEMY.

The Mifflintown Academy will reopen September 9th, 1889.

A FULL PREPARATORY AND ENGLISH COURSE will be offered to its patrons. For further information address, WM. ALEXANDER, A. B., Prin., Mifflintown, Pa.

ELIXIR.

A doctor had a little lamb. That close to him did stick, sir; One day he slew that little lamb And made his famed elixir.

He said a wondrous drop or two Kept old folks young and sleek, sir; And then he tried it on a faw, sir; Who have since been dead, sir.

A Family Gathering.

Have you a father? Have you a mother? Are you a son or daughter, sister or brother who has not yet taken Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, the guaranteed remedy for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup and all Throat and Lung troubles? If so, why, when a sample bottle is gladly given to you, free by any druggist, and the large size costs only 50 cents only $1.00?

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Commissioner John Cunningham sold a 14 acre tract of land adjoining Patterson to W. Burns Thompson, for $2,000.

Fawcett Bill's Wild West Show will exhibit every day on the fair grounds during the season of the Port Royal Fair. No extra charge.

The Juniata Valley Editorial Association excursion to Atlantic City, was held on the 27th of August by the following representatives of the Juniata county press, Wm. M. Allison, wife, and daughter, Isabella, Herald, Charles Watts, Tribune; W. C. Pomeroy and wife, Port Royal Times; Misses Annie and Mary Schweier, Sentinel and Republican; Charles Pannabaker and sister Ella, Coalport Standard, Clearfield county.

Wilbur and Emery McCahan have a large tract of shade mountain land. Among the attractions of the tract is a Sulphur Spring. Several days ago Wilbur accompanied merchant Hines, creameryman Haines, and practical miner James Williams to the highland and revealed to them the spring, and the general formation of the mountain. His friends were highly pleased with the spring and the trip generally, and brought with them specimen pieces of dark shales which Mr. Williams says indicate a bed of stone coal in the mountain.

Joseph Thompson, of Newport, Charles county, Md., had saved about $1,800 in ten years of hard labor. So fearful was he of losing the money that in day time he carried it in a leather bag about his person and at night secreted it in hollows of trees and other hiding places about the farm.

Two weeks ago he hid the bag of money in a barrel in the meat house and thieves that night carried off both his meat and his fortune. The loss so preyed upon his mind that yesterday he hung himself to a cherry tree in his orchard. His wife hearing the noise of the falling body ran to the tree, and unaided she cut the body down. Then her nerves gave way and some time afterwards she was found lying unconscious by the side of the suicide.

From the Chambersburg Repository of Aug. 28: A committee of visiting August ministers has just rendered a verdict of guilty against Elder John C. Johnson, of Uniontown, who was charged with laxity of discipline in allowing the sisters of his church to run off after worldly fashions in wearing long hair, feathers, bangs, big boucles and other ornamental contrivances to the spirit of that church. Elder Johnson and his people will appeal to the General Conference and unless the finding is reversed he will be deposed of his ministerial functions. * * * Mr. Jacob Spoonhour of near Greenwood is the owner of a dozen or more colonies of Italian bees which have not been making much honey for the past couple of years. Lately he noticed a good many English Sparrows about the hive and suspected that they had been eating his bees. He shot a large number of the sparrows and upon cutting them open found them full of bees, showing that the little nuisances had been despoiling the hives. Mr. Spoonhour thinks that unless the sparrows are eradicated, the honey bees will be banished from the country.

From the Bloomfield Times: "Squire Brehman of Lockport, Mifflin county, a few days since went up on Chestnut ridge to hunt berries. A hard stroke of thunder stunned him so badly that he wandered around until late in the evening. When he finally reached home he was looking like a drowned rat. * * * The iron bridge across Little Buffalo Creek at the foot of South Second street, carried from its moorings to the canal aqueduct by the June flood is being put in position again for $350 by the Newport Foundry & Manufacturing Company, under contract with the County Commissioners. * * * On Monday afternoon of last week, while Mr. Charles Yanderart, of Marysville, was operating a brick saw mill, near Ickaburg, he had two of his fingers cut off, and two others badly injured. He was engaged sawing shingles when the accident occurred. Drs. Orris and Rinehart rendered medical aid.

The September Eclectic recommends itself as usual to the readers and lovers of good literature. The distinguished poet and writer, W. W. Story, under the title of "Recent Conversations in a Studio," gives us a ray and suggestive discussion of various topics in art, politics and social life. Karl Blind, the veteran socialist and reformer, has a word of importance to say on the New Italy, as in some manner the outgrowth of seeds planted by such men as Giordano Bruno, the philosopher, who died for freedom of opinion in the year 1600. There is a most readable paper of a scientific turn, but amusing and racy, on "The Potatoe's Place in History," which is a model for articles of popular science. A clever anecdotal paper on Gothe and Carlyle makes the reader wish it were longer. Professor Sayce's discussion of "The Primitive Home of the Aryans," is of superior scholarly interest. A much wider clientele, however, will be found for Goldwin Smith's striking article on "Progress and War," one of the best of recent papers by this able writer. "Dr. Johnson on Modern Poetry" is an interview in the Elision fields with that bluff old intellectual giant, and is cleverly done by Mr. Watson. Father Barry, contributes a reasonable world entitled, "Wanted, a Gospel for the Century," indicating those needs which demand a revivification and even revolution of religious methods. Mr. John Rae tells us about the Russian peasantry in his article "An Empire of Crofters." Sir Morrell Mackenzie contributes the second part of his article on "Speech and Song." For most of our readers, however, the remarkable contributed "The Papacy: A Revelation and a Prophecy," will be the most interesting paper in the number. The minor articles are well chosen.
