A single advertisement for a baby recently published brought nearly hundred answers. Most of them were from midwives, while a few came from poor mothers, who were glad to get some one to take care of the children they could not support.

An agent of the Children's Society proved how easy it is to buy a child. In May of last year, on the 16th, he called on Mrs. Koehler, a midwife. and said he wanted to adopt a baby done anything wrong it'll all be in if she had a good looking one.
