October 1st, 1889. The Renovo Record says: An army of black, gray and red squirrels, numbering thousands upon thousands has been passing southward over our mountains and valleys for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Martin, wife of postal clerk, G. H. Martin, died at her home in this town on the 30th day of October. Her remains were taken to Academia for Interment on the 2nd of October. She was in the prime of life when stricken with the fever that closed her earthly career. She leaves a husband and two small children to mourn her loss.

John Murry recently arrived from Ireland, and on his way to Cincinnati, and while passing from one car to another near Thompsonstown this morning, fell on the train and sustained serious injuries about the head. A daughter was on the train but did not miss him until near this station. Railroad men found him and brought him to this place, where his injuries were cared for by Dr. D. M. Crawford after which he was taken to the hospital at Harrisburg.

James McCauley has been appointed post master at this place. The appointment of Mr. McCauley is a good one. He is a polite and obliging man, and will amount to almost a miracle if his administration fails of giving satisfaction. The late post master Charles B. Crawford resigned. Of Mr. Crawford no ill word can be said. He is the embodiment of a gentlemanly official and has from his youthful days been a champion of the doctrine "that to the victor belong the spoils."

Squirrels are plenty in Clearfield county as is evidenced by a boy, who with the aid of a club killed 27 one-day last week, and notwithstanding the affectiveness of the club as a weapon of destruction among the squirrels, a sportsman went out and shot 75 black squirrels in less than a day's time; and a third party stood in one spot and shot 60 off one stump as rapidly as he could load and shoot. He tired of the slaughter and the squirrels were still crowding the stump when he left the field.

The Canal Company do not propose to let go their grip on the old canal property by any default in the keeping up of the highways across the ditch. They are now at work repairing the canal abutments leading to the river bridge at this place, which is a certain evidence that by the time the river bridge people have their structure sprung across the stream, the Canal Company will have their bridge in readiness for travel. Local boss Pony is superintending the work for the company.

This from the Philadelphia Inquirer of October 2: There is rather an interesting bit of newspaper history contained in the communication, which Mr. S. L. McAllister writes from McAllisterville, Pa., to The Inquirer. My father, Hugh T. McAllister, he says, "who died on September 4, at the age of 85 years and 5 months, was a subscriber to The Inquirer for about twenty-two years, and he preserved all the papers from 1861 to 1883." The living Mr. McAllister deserves to be congratulated on an inheritance of so valuable a record of more than two decades, in which were embraced stirring and important events. Keeping an unbroken file of newspapers through many years is an apparently tedious task, but there is a wonderful satisfaction in it when the subscriber has persevered long enough to consider himself a custodian of contemporary historical chronicles, which usually happens after he has passed the tenth year of his accumulations.

The October number of the Cosmopolitan magazine, illustrated throughout in wit, as interesting and instructive as it can well be. Only $2.40 a year, New York Office No. 363 Fifth Avenue. The contents of the October number must be read to be appreciated. The reconstruction of the French Army is an article that military men and students generally may re-read with profit. An Original Social Experiment—Tuxador—will interest tactful people, and people of exclusive taste and habit. A Great Iowa Farming Region, will prove a delight to the live stock grower and farmer. High and Low tide, a pleasing poem. The Ritual Music of the Greek Church, treats upon a theme that is not often taken up by writers. The Magazine is a delightful continuation of itself through such articles as The Two Roads, Volapuk, Egypt under the Khedive, New Mexico, Wealthy women of America, Bass Ball, From the Point to the Plains, Social Problems, In the Library.

The October number of the Electric now before us is full of variety and interest. The place of honor is given to Goumard's Views on Art and Artists' notes of conversation taken by Miss de P. vol, full of originality and suggestion. Cannon Ferror, under the head of the "Nether World," studies Low life in London, the occasion being a book of the above named title. Mr. R. S. Courtney contributes a very interesting sketch of Roger Bacon, a scientific and philosophical genius, hardly less great than his later namesake, Lord Bacon. A practical article of importance is that of Dr. Bolbrand in "The Diseases Caught from Butcher's Meat," and a paper which also appears to the current interest of the time is Mr. Paul Neuman's presentation of "The case against capital punishment," which is written with great ability. Two highly readable articles of travel will be found in "My first visit to Zimbe," and Professor Freeman's "Sicilian Travel, 1878-1883." F. Logge is the author of an entertaining paper on the new fad represented by Miss Blavatsky, and J. O. Obit, the attempt to revive the ancient mysticism and natural magic of the Hindoos. Walter Pater is at his best in the quaint and poetic essay, "Hippolytus Unveiled," which will wear a double reading before its full pregnancy is realized. Mr. Pater's style and method perhaps like Olives, "cavaire to the vulgar," becomes very delightful with habit. Mr. Grant Allen contributes a very bright article called, "Tropical Education," and the sketch of the "Comedie Francaise," will attract all lovers of the drama. Principal Donaldson advances news in a "Position of Women Among the Early Christians," which if not absolutely new, will yet prove startling to the average reader. The poems and short articles of the number are of a high grade, and the whole table of contents will be found very attractive.

Mighty Niagara and Romantic Waterfalls.

Niagara! Wonderful handi-work of Nature, thy name alone bestirs emotion, arouses thought, awakens joy up within one a vague idea of thine immensity, and yet it is only when we gaze upon thee from the commanding situation that thy grandeur and sublimity which an compass and enthroned there are seen and felt in their awe inspiring entirety. The first view of Niagara can never be effaced from memory. It whets the desire for another and another pilgrimage to the stupendously beautiful, natural picture. For the benefit of the people of Washington, Baltimore, and other stations on the line of the Northern Central Railroad, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will run a special excursion train of parlor and day coaches to Niagara Falls, on Tuesday, October 15th, 1889, tickets good to return until October 24th.

Round-trip from Washington and Baltimore, $10.00. Proportionate rates from other stations. Watkins Glen will be touched both going and coming, and all who may desire to stop off in either direction and visit this romantic mountain gorge will be afforded an opportunity to do so. Train will leave Washington at 7:10 A. M.; Baltimore, 8:20 A. M.

From Lewistown Papers. The cloverseed in Mifflin county promises to yield fairly. John Y. Hartzler of Menno township informs us that a bee tree was cut on Stone mountain a short time ago which contained a honey-comb ten feet long well filled with honey. Any township in the county that can beat this honey comb record will be at liberty to let the public know of it. While Charles Freed of Littleville was in the act of shooting a cat at J. M. Wagner's last week with an old army musket that had been handed for a week or more and stood in the cellar and rusted, it exploded and knocked Mr. F. down, cutting his forehead and arm. He laid in the yard until Mrs. Wagner found him. He was on fire. Mrs. W. put it out and called for aid and got him in the house. Mr. W. took him home and at this writing he is able to be around again. A squirrel hunter of Belleville, one day last week undertook to smoke out a squirrel that had run in a hollow tree and in doing so he set the tree on fire. The fire was along Jack's mountain and near a house. The fire was soon to the top of the tree burning at a lively rate and scaring the family in the house. The head of the family tried to find the hunter to bring him to account for what he had done, but he was nowhere to be found, having made himself scarce in those parts, for he knew it would not be healthy for him around there. A watch was kept on the burning tree till it had been burned up to keep it from setting the building and mountain on fire. Last Sunday morning two Mattawana girls, who thought rowing a boat easier work than it proved to be, instead of attending Sunday school, thought they would take a row on the apparently still Juniata. Getting into a boat they pushed out into the current, which was rather swift and neither of the girls knowing how to use the oars or even the pole, they were carried down stream a good ways in a very short time. The boat floated on until it came to where the flat banks had to be, where the girls took advantage of the current and got out. Had it not been for the friendly stones that it was would be floating yet. About an hour from the time they started the girls were seen wading in the water to their wrists to get to shore, pulling the boat after them. The girls say the next time they go they will take an experienced oarsman with them. Some farmers cultivated corn fields between the rows of shocks and sowed wheat there.
