SENATOR TORRE, denounces trusts as the gigantic sin of this age and generation.

The State Grange met in Harrisburg last week. 201 granges were represented.

GENERAL HASTINGS, Secretary Stone, and Auditor General McCannan addressed the State Grange at Harrisburg on the 10th inst.

The revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith is the question that claims the attention of Presbyterian ecclesiastical assemblies.

As per statement of Adjutant General Hastings to the Washington War Department the organized military force of Pennsylvania is 8,471.

The rules forbidding marriage among the Economite Society near Beaver Falls this state are about to be abolished so that members of the Society may marry if they desire so to do.

The Governors of the thirteen original states, met in Washington on the 10th inst., to devise ways and means to erect a monument in Philadelphia to commemorate the declaration of Independence.

In the State Grange at Harrisburg last week, the measure of Henry George's single tax theory was correctly measured and denounced as "calculated to render the granger's pursuit a serfdom and crush out every vestige of independence.

Those who are anxious to know Bob Ingersoll's religious belief are happy now in declaring that they have found him out, and that he is an "agnostic," who is one who does not profess to know what he does not know, and differs from the man who relies on faith.

The latest reported skip by the light of the moon is banker Hemingway, of Binghamton, N. Y. He took $75,000 with him and left a lot of debts, and a wife and blind daughter. It isn't so much intellectual training that the average American business man needs. He needs to be educated in moral principle.

Another disaster or two and Johnstown will be known as the place of horrors. On the evening of the 10th inst., during the performance of Uncle Tom's Cabin in the Johnstown Opera House, a cry of fire was raised. The crowd sprang from their seats and rushed for the doors and trampled ten people to death on the stairway, and injured seventy-five.

In many parts of Europe business is almost suspended on account of cold in the head of inhabitants. Old and young are subject to it. London is greatly alarmed over the prospect of the disease prostrating the people of the great city. The probability is it will set the people of the United States to sneezing and make them sick enough to prevent them from engaging at work between this and spring time. It seems to be as much of a mystery in its inception as was the epidemic among the horses 17 years ago.

Europe's Influenza.

The spread of the influenza which recently broke out in Russia has been so rapid that the epidemic is assuming a serious aspect. There now suffers in Berlin, Paris and even London, and while the malady is fatal in very few cases, it is a decidedly unpleasant visitor. The origin of this influenza is a mystery. It is believed to have come from Asia and the disease has been known to break out in naval fleets at sea which had not communicated with land for long periods. In 1782 several aquadrons were disabled by the epidemic, and the course has generally been westward through Europe to this country. The last epidemic of the kind occurred in 1847. Whether the present one will reach the United States remains to be seen but it is to be hoped it will not.—North American.

STEAM saw-mills about here are playing out one by one, and the last one will soon be among the things of the past. There are a few tracts of timberland remaining, but the owners choose not to part with the same for a trifle.

This being institute week and the teachers busy at the county seat the boys are proportionately "jolly."

All day-to-day heavy blasting was heard going on somewhere north from us, probably at some point on the N. C. railroad. Had it been south we would naturally have supposed that it was the firing off of some of our "big guns" in Congress.

50 or 60 years ago, a young man whose father and mother died when he was very young, was sent one cold icy winter morning, from the home of a farmer with whom he lived, in a post office several miles away. He started a foot. Progress was not so rapid as when the weather was good since the roads were covered with ice and snow. He kept the public road until he came to a ridge on the other side of which was the post office, near down over the hill than around by the road, which although slippery could doubtless have been traveled if patience had been taken.

However, unwise, he concluded to take a course over the ridge for the purpose of saving time, which was not his patient. So he leaped on top of the hill, walking on the crustal snow until he came to where the hill inclined downwards. Accordingly as he advanced walking became more uncertain until he concluded to take off his shoes to get a footing. This plan worked partially for a short time, but still he would lose his footing. He now was not able to get up the incline which he had come down, and no doubt was somewhat alarmed concerning his position and condition. He must needs try to get further down since it seemed easier than going up which had become hopeless, so he attempted sliding from tree to tree, here and there he endangered the breaking of his bones, arms, and limbs, so he gave this mode over as not to help. He then held fast near the top than bottom of ridge, but not able to go up and in too much danger to go down. He lost all confidence in his own ability to get out without help. What shall he do? He raises the cry of help! help! help! After awhile an answer came from far down at the foot of the steep inclined sides. Exchanges of halloo and cries were kept up. The person below taking a circuitous route came in above the young man and having been previously prepared to walk on the ice, having the soles of his shoes filled with protruding nails, he walked down to where the young man was, and helped him to the top, saving him from going on to serious injury and possibly death. Like the just mentioned young man without a living father or mother was a stranger among well-to-do farmers, working for his own living, so there are many persons in the field of life or in the broad world, who are unacquainted with and strangers to the love of Jesus Christ who ever liveth, and who ever loveth those who seek him early, and whose love is greater than the love of parents for children, and who "sticketh closer than a brother. Like a road led from the farm house to the post office that could have been traveled so the law and commandments of God perfectly kept would be a road to Heaven. A section of the second commandment reads "showing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments." This indicates that thousands keep God's commandments which include the old and new Testaments sufficiently well, to be shown mercy in the keeping of them. But an answer to a Sabbath School Catechism question reads: "No more man since the fall is able perfectly to keep the commandments of God," but doth daily break them in thought, word and deed." Like the young man broke away from the road so all have "come short of the glory of God" and the laws of God, if it be either in thought, word or deed. A young man came to Jesus for inquiry of him when Jesus was on earth and said, he had kept the commandments. Then Jesus although he loved the man told him he lacked one thing. So let any one appear before God, and say "I have kept the commandments and laws," and yet God can say to such, "you lack" something. In different persons it may be lack of different things. If the young man had kept perfectly the law of God, Jesus would not have made him to understand that he lacked since surely he would have been broken, but he was badly bruised about the neck of the head and neck. Saturday afternoon he was carried on a cot to his home, where he is suffering considerably. At last accounts Sunday evening he was slightly better, but only able to lie on his back.

On Wednesday Mrs. Nancy Long, of Newport, while carrying a tub in her left hand, was unfortunately enough to break her left hip bone. S. L. Snyder was sent with hands when he butchered; he had about ten hands and seven pigs to kill, and did not get done until the next day.

A few days ago, a dog of Abram May, of Centre township, in running a rabbit on Mahoning Ridge ran into a flock of wild turkeys, and seizing a big gobler, held him until the boys came up and captured it. The turkey cleaned 17 pounds.

Mrs. John Smith, of Newport, last Wednesday gave birth to twins whose bodies were firmly united by a ligament. One infant was well formed, the other not. They only lived a few minutes after birth.

News reached this place on Monday that John Temple, a freight teamster on the Northern Central Railroad, fell from his train near Mt. Wolf on the above date and was cut in two. He was aged about 24 years, and was a resident of Donnelly's Mills, this county, to which place his body has been taken for interment.

Bear tracks have been seen by some of our hunters on the Chestnut Flat. Two have been seen walking along the ridge above Waterford, but all their hunters were at Black Log. Holiday Excursion Tickets on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Pursuant to the usual policy of aiding its patrons in the interchange of social visits during the holidays, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will, this season, place on sale at all its ticket offices, excursion tickets to be sold between the various stations on the system at the rate of two cents per mile in each direction.

The holiday excursion tickets will be sold from December 21st, 1889, to January 1st, 1890 inclusive valid for return until January 4th, 1890, inclusive.

This arrangement, however, does not apply to the sale of excursion tickets between New York and Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, in either direction, nor even between any one of the above-named cities and any other of these mentioned.

From the Newport News: On Tuesday Andrew Pines, a man of family residing at Reward, fell off the Millersburg bridge into the river. He was sitting on a log, trying, and it slipped, pitching him into the water. In his descent he struck one of the braces, breaking a bone in his right wrist and cutting his face. He lay on his back, stunned momentarily, but as if dead, only his head being visible when he revived and his left hand kept on top, having floated down the river fifty yards or more before rescued.

Give the administration a little time and you will see what is being done for the laboring man. The pulvers wages were raised twenty five cents a ton last Monday. Oliver Snook lost a fine two-year-old colt a few days ago. The colt was in the barn yard and the cow was left out of the stable to go water, when one of the cows horned her in the side, leaving its intestines out on the ground and causing death in a short time. Quite a number of the relative and friends met on Christ P. Yoder's wood pile Thursday and assisted him in chopping his stove wood for the winter in return for which they received a splendid dinner, and those who failed to make a full hand on the wood pile made up the deficiency at the dinner table. Hon. Joseph W. Parker died in Clearfield Wednesday evening from heart trouble after only two days' sickness. His remains were brought to this place and interred from the home of his mother Saturday afternoon. Several fine pigs were killed at Belleville last week that were hard to beat, according to their average. Weight from 250 to 300 pounds. While taking a load from a gun barrel Thomas W. Lauer of Zenglerville shot himself through the leg above the knee. There seem to be two balls in the barrel and Mr. Lauer took the gun to the smith shop and wished to melt the lead by heating the barrel. Standing in front of the barrel the powder between the balls exploded, sending both balls out at opposite directions, with the above result. Mrs. Butler who was in the China Presbyterian mission field for a number of years, addressed a large and appreciative audience in the Presbyterian church in Kelly, Sabbath evening a week. A good deal of plowing has been done this winter. J. P. Bradford was seriously injured Friday last. He was assisting D. E. Notestine on the barn floor, and whilst raising the beef with a hay rope and a horse, Mr. Bradford stood leaning over the pulley, which was holding the barn door open to keep it out of the way of the rope. When the beef was partly hoisted the chain which held the pulley to the floor suddenly broke, which left the rope fly up like the crank of a whip. The rope caught Mr. Bradford under arm and pitched him about twelve feet in the air, and he fell on the bare floor on his head and shoulders. Medical aid was summoned at once and upon examination it was found there were no bones broken, but he was badly bruised about the neck of the head and neck. Saturday afternoon he was carried on a cot to his home, where he is suffering considerably. At last accounts Sunday evening he was slightly better, but only able to lie on his back.
