Says the New Port News: Besides being a farmer John S. Roper is a tailor from way back and has made a pair of trousers for himself composed of over 200 pieces of different kinds of cloth. He came down town with them on Friday afternoon and amidst the rapid flashes of modesty on his sunny cheeks explained that the materials were all first-class and the pants serviceable, but a great deal of work was required to make them.

Subscribers to the SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN who are back with their payment more than a year will confer happiness upon themselves and the management of the paper by paying few of our arrear patrons would not be working one, two, three, four, five and more years for a dollar and a half on trust. We do not like to place their account in the hands of an attorney for collection and will not do it if they pay within six weeks time. Feb. 1890. If.

Benjamin Whitehead, a farmer residing near Riddlesburg, Bedford county, committed suicide on Sunday, March 9th while his wife was at church. Some neighbors who called at his home at noon and found his hat on the table went in search of him and discovered his body hanging from one of the joists of the stable. Life was extinct. He was in ill health and melancholy and is believed to have been insane when the rash deed was committed. He was about 60 years of age.—Ex.

A correspondent sends the following notes relative to the Mexico teachers institute. "The local institute held at Mexico on the 7th and 8th inst., was well attended, and the exercises freely participated in by the teachers and patrons present. Number of teachers present 21. Number of members of institute 43. Prof. J. A. Meyers of Millin Co., added much interest in the institute while here."
The orchestra and choir furnished excellent music during the institute.

From the Huntingdon Journal: One day last week a farmer before going into the postoffice carelessly dropped from his shoulder upon the steps a big log chain. Just as he entered the office our good-natured friend, and neighbor, Charles Logan passed, and noticing the chain lying all over the doorway, picked it up and was about to remove it to the pavement, when he suddenly dropped it, and exclaimed, "oh, murder." The farmer had just come from Peter Gerlach's blacksmith shop, and one end of the chain was very warm yet. Charley thinks that it is never too late to learn.

The Selingsgrove Tribune of last week mentions the following singular accident to a railroad watchman and his box: On Tuesday morning as the Shiffer with a train of 56 cars was leaving the N. C. track to cross the river bridge at this place, one of the cars jumped the frog, and a number of cars were soon derailed. The watch-box at the east end of the bridge was struck and turned upside down on an 18 foot embankment.

The old watchman John Aisler was in the box at the time of the occurrence and went over the embankment with it. To make matters more serious the box fell upon the side with the door and the hot stove set the inside of the box on fire. The old watchman although stunned and injured by the fall succeeded in breaking out a small window out of which he was extricated from his perilous position by the trackmen and others.

He had his face cut and burned, and was injured in various parts of his person, but very fortunately not seriously.
The Annual Statement of the New York Life Insurance Company, published in the other column, shows remarkable gains in every direction must be alike gratifying to the Trustees of the Policy Holders and the Trustees of the Company. The figures show an income of $29,000,000. Benefits to Policy Holders, $12,000,000. New Risks assumed, $150,000,000. Assets $105,000,000. Surplus, $15,500,000. These figures show prosperity and careful financial management. The Philadelphia Agency appears to be a local institution so to speak. The increase of its business—cash collected by them for premium—is appraised to the bottom of the Company's report. The total premium income of the Agency of Messrs. L. C. Vanuxem & Co., during 1889, being over $2,600,000, shows a remarkable and careful management of the Agency Department. We commend the careful reading of this statement by those interested in this class of corporations.

Woman's Sphere.
They talk about a woman's sphere—As though it had a limit;
There's not a place in earth or heaven,
There's not a task to mankind given,
There's not a blessing or a woe,
There's not a whisper, yes or no,
There's not a life, or death, or birth,
That has a tenth's weight of worth,
Without a woman in it.
From Kate Field's Washington Try-Field.

Interested People.
Advertising a patent medicine in the popular way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.
