

MIFFLINTOWN. WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1890.

B. F. SCHWEIER, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

The question of state sovereignty on the liquor issue is the great question in Iowa. Can liquor under United States law in the "original package" be sent into a prohibition state and sold there?

The great factor in national affairs is the Negro. What disturbing element he has been in American affairs and now that the great Congress in Africa has been opened he promises to be a great disturbing element in national affairs among European nations. Who can predict the Negro's mission.

There are people who religiously believe that it is the Devil who moves and rides upon the destructive and death dealing storm, and the destruction of a number of lives by a thunder bolt, last week in a church in Germany, while the people were at prayer, has strengthened the belief immeasurably.

By a special election held in the Third Congressional district in Philadelphia—Richard Vaux was elected to Congress as the successor of Samuel J. Randall. Thirteen other men were voted for and secured 5 to 285 votes, among them was the prohibition candidate who secured 47 votes. Vaux received 8000 votes. The election was held on the 20th of May.

A woman of Philadelphia citizens propose to prevent hand-playing and organ grinding in the streets. Non sense, so long as the band and organ grinders are not insolent on the streets why allow them to play to their hearts content. Many people enjoy the music they make, and the little folks are always delighted with them. Let the bands and the organ grinders play.

A woman European war cloud has arisen, and as there is a woman in it, the long looked for war may take place. It is all about a few kisses. A Turkish officer and five students caught and forcibly kissed several Russian ladies, who were walking in a public garden in a certain town in Turkey. The ladies gave an alarm. Russian soldiers arrested the offending Turks. The Turkish government has demanded the release of the prisoners, but the Russian government has refused to surrender the offenders.

The reader will find in another column the sentence that has been imposed on J. Monroe Shellenberger for embezzlement and forgery. Shellenberger has discovered that it does not pay to be dishonest and Judge Yerkes rose to the crisis of the situation when he delivered the sentence and declared that the prisoner's crimes had been so heinous that confidence in the honesty of men had been ruined. Over this entire county, and beyond, there hangs a cloud of distrust that only the assertion of the just vengeance of the law can dissipate.

Just Like Me.

The Philadelphia Inquirer tells the following which proves that truth is stranger than fiction: The remarkable story told by ex-District Attorney John W. Johnson, of Lancaster county, is not likely to have many parallels. About three years before the war ending on the great Greedy's advice young Johnson got so far West as Illinois. His cousin, Frank Price and Kewey H. Fell, had preceded him there from Chester county and were well established. They put some legal matters in his hands which he took to himself on December 30 1877, to form a retail center to be the interesting point of two Illinois roads. Connections were fairly here and Johnson found that he would have to lay over the greatest part of the day until the next train came along. Presently he noticed another young man who, it afterward transpired, was in a precisely similar situation. They fell to talking and walking together. As a pair of scales stood nearby they jumped on and were weighed. Each tipped the beam at 115 pounds. This wailed some surprise as the one seemed taller than the other. They measured their heights. Each stood five nine inches. Still more remarkable, however, was the coincidence that now came out, that the one was born on the same day of the identical year on which the other was ushered into the world.

"Well now," said the surprised young lawyer, "what is your name?" "John W. Johnson," came the reply "and what's yours?" "John W. Johnson." So it was that these two young strangers, accidentally thrown together, found that their respective weights, heights, ages and names were identical. Both were also Pennsylvanians. This Lancaster John W. Johnson touches for the truth of this remarkable series of coincidences. He has never seen the other John W. Johnson from that day to this, but often wonders as to the whereabouts of the man whose remarkable resemblance to himself in so many particulars beats the record of the off-sung "fellow who looks like me."

Solution of Servantism

MR. JESSEN'S PLAN FOR THE RELIEF OF WOMANKIND. And now for the solution of Servantism.

It is rumored that Mrs. Gen. Logan, weary of chaperoning giggling girls about and across the continents has settled down to the study of domestic economy and familiar philosophy and with a capital of $50,000 and a stock company, with Miss Frances Willard, Mrs. Ellen Foster and several Kate Sanborn as chief directors, is organizing a normal school for domestic economics.

These ladies intend to bring about by intelligent study and efficient training the long and much needed kitchen reform. The days of the fish cracker are numbered and the greasy steak and potato and potato fork has out lived her occupation. Forward, march! the light fingered, soft soled, clean frocked brigade of cooks, housemaids and maids of the partry, parlor, scullery and nursery. The main school will be located in this city and foreign and domestic help will be received without question or reservation.

A graded course of study will be provided, consisting of practical lessons in cooking, cleaning, sweeping, washing and ironing, nursing and miscellaneous, by which scouring dusting, window and glass polishing, table setting and all the duties are taught. Only the more intelligent applicants will be taken through the course, sufficient in any one line or class being sufficient recommendation for a position that will make a girl self-supporting. Diplomas or cards of merit will be accepted as a "character" or recommendation in the country.

A girl showing aptness and possessed of sufficient mental ability to warrant such instruction will be given a higher training including foods, hygienic cooking, sanitation, and interior decoration as applied to picture and curtain hanging, carpet cleaning and the care of sleeping rooms. In the laundry practical lessons will be given in doing up linens, curtains, linen, dannel and cotton clothes: the pupil being taught how to wash fine fabric handkerchiefs and delicate linens without rubbing or wringing them. Chops and Desks, wall muffins and panicles will form the leading lessons in joints, vegetables and pickled meats will go with the pets, and bread, rolls, roasts, poultry and pastry with the oven. Muddy coffee, leathery steak, sodden biscuit and sour bread will be sufficient cause for suspension, and during the training each pupil will be charged with making the breads or chops and the material, whether food, fuel or gas wasted.

Babies will be borrowed from industrial schools and bathed, dressed, fed and cared for in class. Every girl will have the encouragement of a trial as a pupil, but no pupil will be retained or given a diploma who is not healthy, honest, sober, industrious, clean and capable of learning, promising and painstaking work. Women will be assisted by special training, and provided with personal influence, control and good positions permitted to make their home in the school when out of employment.

It is the intention of these public spirited ladies to offer sufficient inducement to bring from the country towns and tenements of the city those bright young, intelligent girls who go to the factories and shops and waste their youth and energies at tasks that scarcely yield a sufficiency to sustain life.—New York World.

Killed while Praying.

On May 22 a terrible visitation of Providence was inflicted on the inhabitants of the village of St. Malheur, near Hillsheim, not far from this city. The result is that six persons are dead, twenty are injured and four are completely blind. The village church is a wreck and the people are in the depths of despair.

Opportunity to Secure Bargains.

Samuel Strayer did not find a customer to buy his clothing store, therefore he has left on a piece of stock at very low cash price. Old stock still at less than he wants to quit business and will sell to anyone willing to buy him out. He invites you to call and learn terms and so forth at his store on Bridge Street, Patterson.

Shellenberger Sentenced.

On Tuesday, May 22—J. M. Shellenberger, the lawyer whose criminal escapades and flight recently excited such a widespread sensation, to-day pleaded guilty to seventeen indictments for forgery and embezzlement, and was sentenced by Judge Yerkes to undergo an imprisonment of twenty-two years at Lehigh Prison. His attorney, when Judge Yerkes pronounced the sentence, broke down completely and had to be carried from the court room. The scene was exciting in the extreme and one long to be remembered by the crowd which witnessed it.

Horse Thief Caught.

Says the Franklin Repository: The theft of the bay mare, belonging to Mr. J. Mottler Winger of near Greensburg on Tuesday night, was closely followed by the arrest of the thief and the recovery of the horse. The thief was William Hall, a young man of about twenty-five years of age who already has a record as a horse thief. In 1887 he stole a horse belonging to the Sentman's heirs, at Rockport, and on September 5th of that year was sentenced to two years and six months imprisonment in the penitentiary. He returned to this county only a short time ago. According to the story told by Hall to those who arrested him he went to Antrim township on Tuesday for the purpose of stealing a horse. He was at the Winger farm in the evening and was lying in a wagon bed while the horse which Mr. Winger had just bought was being put away in the stable. As soon as he was quiet about the horse, he went to the stable and took the horse out. He rode through Greensburg and came on to Greensburg, passing through here about midnight. He then turned up at Fannettsburg on Wednesday morning when he attempted to sell the horse to Postmaster, Robert G. Jones, offering him first for $125, and then coming down to $90. He said he was from near Marion, but Mr. Jones was suspicious of him and asked him to go with him to Mr. Lady of Marion, who happened to be in Fannettsburg, and have himself identified.

On the way over to where Mr. Lady was, Hall tried to escape. Mr. Jones caught hold of him but Hall broke loose and ran across several fields, but Bob was plucky and kept up the chase until he captured him. He brought Hall and the horse to Chambersburg late on Wednesday night. Hall was placed in jail and the horse delivered to Mr. Winger, who was greatly delighted at recovering his property so soon after it was stolen. Mr. Jones will get the $20 reward for the arrest of a horse thief, and Hall will get, well, some kind of a dose at September Court.

He Shot Them Both. Jesse, Ga., May 21.—J. M. McCall, county surveyor of Ware county, came from Jessup to Brunswick about ten o'clock last night and stopped at the Littlefield House. He returned to his room and after staying in bed two hours, went down stairs to the room, and about his wife just over the left eye, killing her instantly. He then shot Mr. McCall four times. One ball struck him in the hip, just under the nose, one in his right side, one in the left shoulder, and one in the small of the back. McCall ran into an adjoining room and fell. Medical aid was summoned at once, but he died at 2:30 A. M. Mr. McCall was about fifty years old with a large family, having grown children, and the family stands very high in the estimation of the community. Mr. Littlefield is about the same age. They came from Massachusetts and have been living in Jessup for twenty years.

An Assessor Sentenced. The sentence of $100 fine and costs imposed upon an election assessor who refused to place a voter's name upon his list is not severe, but it will probably tend to decrease that sort of election fraud in the future. The thing to be done is to punish a false assessor who commits a fraud of another kind by neglecting to attend to their business. There are plenty of houses in this city which have not been visited by an assessor for years. The assessor simply takes the old list and makes corrections in the names he is familiar with, while he lets the houses and lots which have moved out of the division are put down as voters, while new residents find it necessary to hunt up the assessor and see that their names are not omitted. This may not be done for the purpose of furthering election frauds, but it is a palpable neglect of duty which ought to be corrected.

Walker and Mexico, Isaac N. Gingrich.

A Narrow Escape.

From the Ironfield Advocate of May 21. Frank Grube and family, who occupy the dwelling house of Mrs. Jane Eady, on West McClure street in this borough, met with a narrow escape from death on Monday morning. During the prevalence of a terrific thunder storm about 2 a. m. Mrs. Grube becoming very nervous arose and set a small piece of candle and placed without any candle stick upon a side board near the bed. Reassured by the presence of the light she fell asleep. In about an hour thereafter her husband awoke in a struggling condition and found his wife suffering like with him. The room was filled with blinding smoke and in the darkness he discovered sparks lying higher and thicker. Managing to get to the window he let in fresh air, which revived them, and then proceeded to fight the fire which after stubborn resistance was subdued. An examination was then made and it was found that the candle had burnt down to the covering of the side-board and set it on fire, which rapidly spread to the contents consisting of the best clothing of the family and completely ruined them. The side-board was a new one and is badly charred and almost a wreck. Mr. Grube had a silver watch burnt and rendered almost useless. A curious feature, but most fortunate one, was the fact that a large 42-caliber revolver loaded was in the fire, and became so hot that Mr. Grube in handling it was burnt, yet it did not explode. The escape of the family under all the circumstances was most providential. Had Mr. Grube not awakened he with his family would have been suffocated and burned to death.

PIANOS ORGANS.

The improved method of fastening strings of Pianos, invented by us, is one of the most important improvements ever made, making the instruments more richly musical in every tone, more durable, and less liable to get out of tune. Both the Mason & Hamlin Organs and Pianos excel chiefly in that which is the chief confidence in any musical instrument, the quality of tone. Other things being equal, the quality of tone is much less so than this. An instrument with musical tones cannot be good. Illustrated catalogues of new styles, introduced this season, sent free.
