own good homes? The fairest of Lilies the pure Easter Flower the Bermuda Lily was first brought to America from the island of Bermuda, in 1876, by Mrs. Thomas P. Sargent, wife of Thomas P. Sargent, Assistant Purchasing Agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

When she was leaving the island, in the spring of that year, two friends residing there gave her a few of the Lily bulbs. Upon her arrival at her home she presented some of them to Mr. Robert Crawford, a near-by florist, who, shout a year later, sold the increase Mr. William Harris, of Philadelphia. He began growing the bulbs and offered them to the public, with the addition of his name, as the Lilium Harrisit

The flame of an ordinary fire is yellow, be-cause the heat is not sufficient to render the carbon a white heat. The flame will burn much brighter when air is supplied to it freely, as by raking out the cinders at the bottom of the grate or blowing the fire with a beliews, because with every fresh rush of air there is a new supply of oxygen. The red flame is caused when there is a rapid union between the combustible asses and the oxygen of the air, which

Why the Fine Sonorous Indian Appellations Should Be Preserved

The ridiculous practice of naming American places after European cities, from mean incidents, instead of preserving the fine sonorous Indian appellations, is fast gaining ground. "If a man must drink he cannot do better than to stick to good whisky. I am aware that many people, including very high medical authorities, are of the opinion that beer and wine, because they coptain a smaller percentage of alcohol are less injurious than the possibly be true per se, but beer and wine drinkers daily imbibe their favorite tipples much more largely than the drinker of spirits, thus taking more alcohol into their stomach, and, therefore, having larger quantities of it con-stantly in their blood and tissues than the man who cheers or even inebriates himself with good old rve or bourbon. The more constant the presence of aland certainly does it produce its ill effects upon the heart, blood vessels, stomach, liver, kidneys and nervous system. The man who goes on a 'spree and is drunk for a day or two, and then abstains from drinking for two or three months, is not nearly so apt to experience the evil influences of alcohol upon his physique, as is the man who drinks two or three quarts of beer or wine daily, but is never really intoxicated in his whole life. Constant indulgence, though comp ratively moderate, is worse than occasional excesses. Then again, from the fact that the bib ber of wine or beer drinks much larger quantities of his tipple than does the spirit drinker of his, the former, by the excessive quantity, imposes a much severer task upon his liver, kidneys and bladder than does the latter. We constantly hear the cry: "It is not the emperate use but the abuse of alcoholic liquors that is injurious. There can be no more mischievous error than this. The worst forms of organic disease are produced in scores of the usands of people in the United States annually by the very moderate but habitual use of the mildest forms of alcoholic drink, and that in people who have never been under the influe liquor in all their lives. For all these reasons, and many others which I have stick to good whisky."

Good night."

An unhealthy woman is rarely, if ever, beautiful. The peculiar diseases to which so many of the sex are subject, are prolified causes of pale, sallow faces, blotched with unsightly pimples, dull, lustreless eyes and craciated forms. Women so afflicted, can be permanently cured by using Dr. Fierce's Favorite Prescription; and with the restoration of health comes that beauty which, combined with good qualities of head and heart, makes women angels of lovines.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, soid by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle.

be in the wrong. Of late it has been fashionable to deny that there ever was a Jessie Brown at Lucknow, and that even had there been, she could possibly have heard the bag-pipes. There are some witnesses, however, who stoutly support the truth of the story as it has been told for many years, and one of them, Marie F. B. Cuttler, in a letter to the London Times, says:

"Having accidentally seen in to-day" Manchester Guardian an account of the controversy, which is going your paper as to the truth of Jessie Brown hearing the pibroch so long before the regiment came to the relief of Lucknow, it struck me that it might be interesting to your readers to that I believe the story to be perfectly true.

"Jessie Brown was a domestic ser vant of my mother's about the year 1853, and lived with us for a few years (but as I was quite a buby I do not remember her). I have heard my moth er tell the story scores of times, and had a penchant for soldiers, and when she left our service, she returned to he native town, Glasgow, and macried, believe, one of the Seventy eighth Hig landers, who were immediately ordered out to India, and she, being an excelvant to some of the officers' wires, an

"I can quite understand her hearing the bag-pipes so long before they arrived, as I have heard my mother say Jessie's aural powers were most extra-ordinary. She could hear my father's footsteps in the street several minutes before he arrived at the door, and she was always correct. I believe her husband was killed, and she was sent home. Immediately on her arrival in England she paid a visit to her former mistress (my mother), and she related the whole thrilling story. She returned to Glasgow, and, if I remember right, died
