

The gold bond men say: "If the free coinage bill becomes a law the country will be flooded with silver."

The Republican platform on which President Harrison was elected says: "The Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money and condemns the policy of the Democratic Administration in its efforts to demoralize silver."

Gold is the dearest money, and if the men who control the bonded indebtedness of the world can get rid of silver, gold will be made dearer than it now is, and as a natural consequence land values, town property values, will shrink to such a degree, that men who have comparatively a small bonded or mortgaged indebtedness will be bankrupted.

SECRETARY BLAINE is in favor of a full exchange of such products, between the South American States and the United States as the people of the respective governments may need and do not largely produce themselves. For example if the South American States produce something that needs not protection here, receive it free in the United States, in exchange for something that we produce and they need.

Last week the Senate by a vote of 43 yeas to 24 nays, passed the free coinage bill, which restores the silver dollar to the position it held previous to 1873, when the single standard or gold bug men, or in other words the men who control the bonded indebtedness of America had silver demonetized, or its free coinage stopped. The men who shaped the legislation of Congress so that the free coinage of silver was stopped, thought the act would cause silver to be ignored as money entirely and thereby they would be immensely benefited by the shrinking of values in everything but the bonds payable in gold, but the people generally without being financiers had confidence in silver, hence it held its own value remarkably well, in the face of the efforts of American, German and English gold bugs to rule it out as money, and now that the Senate has come to the rescue of the debtor class, and passed the free coinage bill, it is hoped that Speaker Reed will not as some predict, put himself in the way in the house and prevent the final passage of the act. President Harrison it is said is not in favor of the free coinage bill. If he could have the expression of the people who elected him to the Presidency whispered in his ear on the subject of free coinage there could be no doubt of his position. Should Speaker Reed and the President take a stand against the free coinage bill, there is no telling how the Congressional elections the coming fall may go.

The silver bill when sent over from the Senate to the House was referred by speaker Reed to the Committee on Coinage. The free coinage men objected to that method of disposing of the bill. They wanted to vote on it immediately, and as a consequence Thursday and Friday and Saturday in Congress, were battle days in the Lower House to put the bill on its passage. However on Saturday the Speaker's rule prevailed and the bill remains in the hands of the Committee on Coinage.

A Singular Lawsuit. The Philadelphia Times under date of June 16, reports the following singular lawsuit. Media has been treated to a novel entertainment in the lower House for several days, and it has attracted large audiences. It appears that Antrim Worrilow was driving along a public road in Chester some time ago and came upon a scene that is seldom witnessed outside of Spain and her old colonies. It was a bull fight.

With locked horns and foaming nostrils two gentlemen cows were engaged in a duel in the king's highway to the delatation of a bevy of feminine Jerseys, who were enjoying the sport in a field near by.

His horse bearing bulls as all his kind do, slid sideways to the furthest admissible place and endeavored to pass by regardless of consequences and of the restraint of his master. All would have been well but for a solitary tree that sent its branches overhanging the road, and it was there that tore the top of the Dearborn, broke the traces and shot Mr. Worrilow out into the road. He was picked up insensible and suffered for weeks before being able to get about again. Mr. Worrilow brought suit against the road Superintenders for $5,000 damages for negligence in permitting the highway to be obstructed by the tree, and Judge Clayton was wrestled with this for full two days, uncertain whether the blame rested on the bulls, the road, the tree or the horse, but with inclinations toward the bulls.

WHAT CAUSED THE BALDNESS. Worrilow produced many witnesses as to the fact and Dr. Stellwagen, of Philadelphia, as to the cause of his baldness for his hair had all fallen out. The doctor called his disease alopecia areata, which he told the court meant baldness in patches caused by the shock.

The defense had also an array of witnesses and among these, Dr. D. Lanny of Chester, who differed with Stellwagen as doctors invariably do. He said Mr. Worrilow's disease was not as stated on the other side, so he thought, but it was parasitical and could be cured, the shock having nothing to do with it.

THE JUDGE IN A QUANDARY. The Judge hardly knew what to do, and especially did he know nothing at all about medical matters. As he was brought up on a farm he did know all about bulls and there were many of these in his charge. He told the jury they were twelve sensible men and would settle the question by the facts, although these were somewhat mixed.

If the bulls smashed the wagon, and the tree did not touch it, then the bulls were clearly liable, but if the tree was the sole cause of the accident, and the bulls did not run against it, then the tree should bear the blame, but if the bulls scared the horse into the tree, although they contributed to the general wreck, it was for the jury to divide the conspirators and lay the damages accordingly. As the bulls had no money and could not be assessed, the tree should only be charged with its share, and this would fall on the supervisors to pay, therefore no excessive amount should be awarded.

The jury retired for a half hour and gave Mr. Worrilow $25, a verdict that seemed to please both lawyers interested.

A Goat at a Wedding.

A despatch under date of the 16th inst. from Christ Church, Va., says, our little town had quite a sensation in its best circles at the marriage yesterday of one of its most prominent young men to a young lady whose beauty and wit made her a belle, but whose nuptials were nearly prevented by a billy goat belonging to an Irish family, living in the suburbs. The bridal party was followed into the church by a goat, which proceeded quietly and peacefully to respect the guests and the edifice, and probably would have retired in like manner if it had not been for the injudicious efforts of one of the groom's attendants to induce it to leave by an impertinent shoo.

This was more than his goatship meant to tolerate, and to reach the altar he made a break at the bridegroom who happened to be nearest to him, and without that gentleman having suspected his proximity, made him painfully aware of it by a well directed blow that caused the candidate for matrimony to slight several feet distant, though hardly with the grace of position he could have desired. The amount then turned his attention to the bride, but the lady escaped by climbing the pulpit stairs. The clergyman, wedding party and guests dared not stir, for every movement caused the goat to make for them with lowered head, so for awhile the animal was monarch of all he surveyed, but the arrival on the scene of one of its infantile masters, speedily reduced him to submission, and he followed the young stepson from the church as meek and humble a goat as ever dined on a tomatoe can. The bridegroom though much bruised and with one arm broken, insisted on having the interrupted ceremony completed.

No Peaches this Year.

The Delaware peach growers have cried "Woe" so often that their annual laments over the probable failure of the crops have come to be regarded by the public with a good deal of incredulity. Every spring an unreasonable frost, or a cold rain, or a hailstorm or a high wind, or something of the kind, destroys the blossoms and prevents the possibility of any fruit to speak of, and every summer the supply in the market, if at some time better and more bountiful and others is reasonably sufficient to meet the demands of the consumer. This season, however, it seems as if the wolf has really arrived. The reports of the damage done by the cold weather of April and May are so substantial and come from such varied and trustworthy sources that it may be taken as true that the Delaware peach crop this year will amount to little or nothing. This means that the Delaware farmers will be thousands of dollars out of pocket, that the railroads will lose a large amount of freight, and that hundreds of poor people, ordinarily employed in the canning houses of southern Maryland will lose for a time their means of livelihood. The only compensation for this misfortune is to be found in the fact that next season, the peach orchards having had a year's rest, will be more than ordinarily prolific. In the meantime, however, the hard times in the Blue Hen's Chicken State—North America.

Summer Trips to the Seashore via the Pennsylvania Railroad. In accordance with the custom of past summers the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has arranged a series of pleasant summer trips for the people of Western Pennsylvania to the most popular resorts of the New Jersey Coast. The tickets for these excursions are July 10th and 24th and August 7th and 21st. The reports covered by the tickets are Cape May, Atlantic City, Sea Isle City or Ocean City, any one of which is a delightful place to pass a few days of rest. The excursion tickets will be valid ten days, and they will be sold from Pittsburg at $10, and proportionately low rates from other stations.

A special train composed of day parlor cars and day coaches, will leave Pittsburg on each of the days mentioned at 8:50 A. M., and run through to Philadelphia, arriving at 7:15 P. M. The night will be passed in Philadelphia and the party will take regular trains to the seashore next morning.

Passengers from Pittsburg, East Liberty, Irwin, Uniontown, Conelikeville, Scottsdale, Stonersville, Greensboro or Johnstown may take the express trains leaving Pittsburg for Philadelphia at 4:30 and 8:10 P. M., and proceed to the shore the next morning. The immense success of these excursions in the past will undoubtedly serve to increase their popularity this season. The excursion rate from Mifflin is $5.65. For special information in regard to these excursions may be obtained by addressing Thomas E. Watt, Passenger Agent, Western District, 110 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburg.

NEW BERLIN, Pa., June 19, 1890. Mr. Editor:—Last evening an immense crowd gathered on the college campus to witness the graduation of the class of '90. Every year if not more than 800 to 1000 people and sometimes more than this gather. People look upon this period of the year as a place where they may spend a pleasant and profitable evening. Friends meet glad friends whom they love to see. Fond recollections are brought to conversation, and old friendships ever made. The class consisted of eight members who graduated in one of the three principle courses—Classical, Scientific or Elementary. The programme was an interesting one, and it was followed to the letter in fine spirit by the entire class.

Each member showed his ability in the preparation and delivery of his oration and impressed the audience. The years spent in college were not made in vain and the good things that years ago were not made in vain. On the evening before, Tuesday, Deputy State Superintendent Houck, delivered the annual address before the literary societies. His subject was the "Old and the New," and needs no comment for all who know Mr. Houck can be assured that nothing but a good lecture could come from the pen of such a man. The exercises preceding this, beginning June 12th, were all good and the students deserve much praise in assisting Prof. Goble and his corps of able professors to make the commencement exercises a credit to the college. This college was known as Union Seminary until 1880, when it was chartered as Central Penn. College with the power of granting any degree except that of law or medicine. New Berlin is but a small inland town situated on the north bank of Penn's Creek. The town is in hopes of having a railroad run to it, which will improve the place wonderfully. The town is small, but I can truthfully say there are few towns that can surpass it in neatness and cleanliness. The streets are broad, and except the track look like a lawn. There is no town in Central Pennsylvania that exceeds it in general appearance and pleasantness; and exceeds many of the towns in New Jersey, and some along the Hudson river which I have had the pleasure to see.

Literary Note.

The July number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine departs from its usual make up and devotes itself largely to fiction, travel and sports. A new Southern writer, Robert Yates Tombs, of Georgia, comes to the front with one of the most spirited sketches of Southern life yet published. Julian Hawthorne presents a curious study of the Boston girl, asking of her in his title page "What is typical?" Eleanor Sherman Thacker, a daughter of Gen. W. T. Sherman, appears for the first time in the literary world in a discussion of "Three Great Philadelphia Training Schools"; and Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, considers the constitution of American Society in an interesting way. "Trout Fishing in Lake Edward," and the actual experiences of "Trapping Grizzly," will interest the hunter who proposes to roam the mountain ridges during the summer. Arthur Sierberns Hardy, one of the most distinguished graduates of the Military Academy, and the author of "The Rose," which received last year such favorable criticism in all English speaking countries, will start this month for Japan with the intention of preparing for the Cosmopolitan, some articles on the military forces of that country, to be completely illustrated by photographs and sketches.

Dr. Nils Lano while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lano's Family medicine. It will cure sick headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for the clearing up of the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c a package.

EDITOR SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN.—Dear Sir:—The county government office is lodged in the hands of County Commissioners, is of more importance in times of peace to the people of the county than the general government, subject to the force of a majority of honest and capable men, who will discharge the affairs of office for the general good. With this object in view, I would name Joseph Sieber of Fayette township as a citizen abundantly qualified to fill the important office of county commissioner. His nomination for the primary election will give the people generally an opportunity to elect a good man to the important office in November. JUNIATA COUNTY TREASURER.

EDITOR OF THE SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN.—Dear Sir:—In conformity with the rules of the Republican party for primary nomination that all candidates for office must be publicly announced, I hereby certify that if he becomes the standard bearer for that office, he will prove a tower of strength before the people in old Tuscarora and the upper end of the county, the entire county at the November election. He is a man of straight forward address and good business qualifications and common sense view of financial affairs. TUSCARORA.

EDITOR SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN.—No man in this community has the public confidence to a greater degree for honesty of purpose and integrity of character, than Frederick Espechade, and for that reason he is one of the fittest men in the county for official position, therefore I present him as a candidate for the office of County Treasurer. He has not been an office seeker and for that reason will be accepted by a large number of people. His extensive acquaintance which has been acquired throughout the county by diligent attention to business will make him invaluable before the people in November. MIFFLINTOWN.

EDITOR SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN.—No man in this community has the public confidence to a greater degree for honesty of purpose and integrity of character, than Frederick Espechade, and for that reason he is one of the fittest men in the county for official position, therefore I present him as a candidate for the office of County Treasurer. He has not been an office seeker and for that reason will be accepted by a large number of people. His extensive acquaintance which has been acquired throughout the county by diligent attention to business will make him invaluable before the people in November. MIFFLINTOWN.

EDITOR SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN.—Dear Sir:—I am a native of Fayette township, and for that reason will be accepted by a large number of people.
