Two Faced.

When Cleveland was President, the financial policy of his administration was to deposit the funds of the United States Treasury with such National banks as his treasurer chose, and now when there is a money stringency in business centers, the friends of Mr. Cleveland are saying to Mr. Windom, present Secretary of the United States Treasury: "You should adopt the plan of the Treasurer of the Cleveland administration and relieve the money stringency and depsit the money that is in the United States Treasury, with the National Banks, the banks can loan the money to the people, and that will immediatly make money plentier and break up the present tight money times in business centers." That was Cleveland financial democratic doctrine, and that is the present doctrine of the Cleveland democrats now at Washington. Pattison is a Cleveland democrat. It was Cleveland influence that nominated Pattison for Governor. Hensel is a Cleveland democrat. Pattison and Hensel each made a speech at Reading last week, and Hensel "left the cat out of the bag," as to what great crime Senator Quay and Senator Delamater have been guilty of. They have been doing only what President Cleveland and his U. S. Treasurer did. Hensel approved of Cleveland's Treasurer, depositing United States Treasury funds in the banks, but he calls it a crime for Quay to deposit State Treasury funds in Senator Delamater's bank. When Quay was State Treasurer he deposited some of the state treasurer's funds in Delamater's bank at Meadville, and that according to Hensel's Reading speech is a crime.

Where is the moral difference between placing national money and state money in the banks?

The Cleveland administration placed national funds in the banks and the Democratic party approved it, and to day Democratic leaders urge the Harrison administration to do the same thing to relieve the tight money market. Quay deposited State funds in banks, and Hensel and other Democratic leaders denounce the act as a great wrong. By a forced construction they claim that the constitution of the state prevents such deposit of state funds, but they find no constitutional provision against such deposit of the national funds and that is why they denounce it as a crime in one case and a great public good in another case. This two faced position of the Democratic leaders on the money question, speaks for itself. How politically depraved they are when they approve of President Cleveland's financial acts, and when Quay and Delamater pursue the same course in the use of the state funds they are denounced as having committed a great wrong.

Democratic speeches met in Reading last week to open the campaign. Ex Governor Pattison was present and delivered a school-boy essay on the purity of politics, but the meeting did more harm than good, for some forty of the Philadelphia delegates bolted the meeting and have walked outside of the Pattison camp.

Courted and Married in Ten Minutes.

The longest courtship that we know of in Juniata county was 14 years, but the couple did not marry. The shortest courtship in the county that we know of was 8 weeks, the couple married. A courtship and marriage down in New Jersey last week beats all record in speedy courtship and marriage, and is reported as follows:

May's Landing, N. J., Sept. 15.—They met, courted for ten minutes and were married. That is the romatic history of Amos Lewis, 58 years of age, of Somers Point, and Annie Risley, 25 years old, of Atlantic City.

The couple met and were introduced at a dinner party given at Somers Point yesterday by Mrs. George Anderson. At 11 o'clock they first met, were introduced and were mutually struck with one another. At five minutes past 11 Mr. Lewis said to the lady:

THE PROPOSAL.

"I am greatly in need of a good house-keeper."

"What's the matter with me?" quickley replied Miss Risley.

"I would like you for a wife," was the gallant answer.

The lady was somewhat startled, but she took time (two minutes) to consider the matter, and then blushingly said: "Yes." It was then ten minutes after 11.

The ardent wooer of 58 would have no delay. "No time like the present," he said; "I'm anxious and you're willing. Let us send for a parson."

THE WEDDING.

Rev. Mr. Chambers, of Somers Point, was sent for. He arrived in a hurry; the service was read through, and the twain were made one within two hours of their first meeting. The dinner was turned into a wedding feast, the loving cup was passed around, and all was jollity and congratulation. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left for Atlantic City to spend the honeymoon.

THE BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM.

The bridegroom is a handsome old gentleman, and is senior member of the firm of Lewis Brothers, sailmakers, of Somers Point. He owns considerable property. He is popular among all who know him, and was considered a good catch.

The bride is a beautiful woman, being a tall and handsome blonde. She is well connected, and is, or was head saleswoman in a large and fashionable millinery establishment at Atlantic City. She had lots of admirers, and many other hearts were affected by the result of the ten minutes courtship.

Triplets.

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Druratscho, wife of an Hungarian miner of Audenried, gave birth to triplets late yesterday. This morning she was around attending to the wants of fifteen boarders, and expressed great surprise when her neighbors marveled at it. In honor of the event fifteen kegs of beer, twenty dozen pickles, five cases of nectar and five large hams were made way with at the christening last night.

Cincinnati, Sept. 21.—Marvina Sanders yesterday sworn out a warrant for the arrest of Nicholas Sanders, and also an attachment on his wages. Sanders is coachman for Hon. Lewis Werner, a member of the Public Board. The suit developed the fact that the girl is but 13 years of age, yet is the mother of triplets nearly one month old. They are fat good-looking and healthy. The mother is a pretty child whom Sanders married last month to avoid a suit for bastardy, but whom now refuses to support his family. Two of the triplets are girls.

A Short Corn Crop.

The government crop reports leaves no room for doubt that corn this year is a comparative failure. It is estimated that the crop will be the smallest that has been harvested during the last decade, and will fall 600,000,000 bushels below last year's great yield. This, of course, is a serious misfortune to the farmers of the northwest, and it can hardly help having an injurious effect upon the business prosperity of the country. It is, however, easy to take to gloomy a view of the situation. No one will have to go on short commons because of the shortage reported. Received as it is, the crop is still relatively large, and the deficiency can be more than made up from the stock left over from last year, when the supply was far in excess of the demand. The farmers, too, will recomp some of their loss on the reduced yield from the advanced price they will be able to secure for their commodity. Last year in Kansas and other states corn was burned for fuel, because it was cheaper to use it in that way than to carry it to market at the rates then prevailing. Corn probably won't be burned for fuel next winter, but that is hardly a circumstance to be greatly regretted.—North American.

The End of the World.

A VIVID SCIENTIFIC PICTURE OF THE FINAL CATASTROPHE.

The nebula in Orion, Saturn and the moon are indeed suggestive of change—types, they may be called, of the first stage, the middle, and the last that matter passes through in the long process of the evolution of worlds.

And, of all changes, that change has most interest for us which effects our own planet, the Earth; it has reached a later stage than Saturn, though not so late a stage as the moon; but only in long ages and by minute effects will further changes be noticed.

THE SUN DRAWING US NEARER.

Ages hence it may be discovered that there is some slight change in the earth's orbit; yet nearer to the sun than we, may be seen to pursue a smaller orbit than now, and the terrible fact may come home to man that we are drawing nearer to the sun. Time goes on, and the tropics become too hot for existence, and colder regions find a welcome change to warmth.

Age by age goes by, and the end is, visibly, no nearer; but the figures of astronomers only too surely tell their tale.

Now the tropics are an impassable desert and all the life on the globe congregates around the poles; Spain has lost her vineyards and the Alps their snow; England is a burning desert and Greenland teems with the vegetation of the tropics; in smaller and smaller circles the inhabitants gather round the poles. "But," to quote the words of Mr. Keighley Miller, "the narrowed limits of the habitable earth can no longer support this vast increase of population, and famine begins to mow down its victims by millions.

NO RAIN NOR DEW

"Now, indeed, the end of life on the earth draws on apace." "The heat and drought become more and more insupporable; rain and dew fall no longer. All springs of water fail, and the rivers dwindle down to streamlets, and trickle slowly over their stony beds, and now scarcity of water is added to scarcity of food. Those who escape from famine perish by the drought, and those who escape from the drought are reserved for a fate more awful yet. For a time the few remaining inhabitants are partially screened from the overwhelming power of the sun by a dense canopy of clouds formed by the evaporation of every lake and sea."

"But soon the sun scorches up these vapor banks, and dissipates them into space as fast as they can form. Then the fiery orb shines out in unutterable splender without the lightest cloud wreath to interpose between himself and his victims. Then the last denizens of the world are stricken down and consumed; the last traces of organic life are blotted from its surface."—Longman's Magazine.

They Stole Sheep.

Porter Devinney again in jail. This time the offense charged against him is the theft of twenty-two sheep. Constable N. W. Rouse Monday brought him from his home, three miles north of Concord, in Horse Valley, reaching here Monday night.

Devinney and his son-in-law, James L. Piper, who resides in Perry county, Monday night of last week stole twenty two sheep from William Heckenberry, who resides near Concord, and drove them into Perry county a distance of about 16 miles, and there sold them, on Tuesday, for $71. They were seen in their progress through Perry county by persons who knew and who recognized them.

Upon the discovery of the loss of the sheep search was made. It was in enough evidence to search arrest of Devinney and Piper. Constable Rouse served the warrant. Devinney was arrested at three o'clock Monday morning at his home. Constable Rouse rapped on the door and after a long delay was admitted to enter. He made a thorough search of the house, and discovered Devinney in the attic of the house, white as a ghost, badly frightened and willing to accompany the officer. John A. Elder gave Devinney and Piper a hearing. They were both held for Court in $150 bail. Piper procured bail but Devinney could not and will spend the time until Court in jail.

The sheep stolen from Mr. Heckenberry were owned by Levi Capp, Mr. Heckenberry having charge of them on "the shares." On their return from Perry county Devinney and Piper went across the mountain to Newville, thence through Chambersburg to Mercersburg, then to a Cove Gap distillery and thence home.

Devinney is well known throughout Franklin county because of the fact that he was a number of years ago arrested and confined in jail charged with killing his son whose bones were thought to have been found on the mountain. The case was made sensational by the return afterward of the son to his father's home. The son was killed, however, recently while burglarizing a house in a western State.—Valley Spirit, 10th inst.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

The editorial triumvirate of the Democrat and Register are displeased with our special artist for showing them up in their bottomless search for victims of the Jaggernaut. Some one of these fine autumn days our special artist will be directed to take a picture of the editorial trio of the Democrat and Register taking quinine to stop the chill that they took in their fruitless search for victims of the Jaggernaut. They seem to be taking quinine in large doses, and it will be only rendering justice to them to give a picture representation of their quinine jugglery act. Quinine seems to be their favorite drug. They take it in large doses from their big medicine bag, and their little medicine bag, and on that account it is not to be wondered that they indirectly complain that our artist does not furnish them with a finer picture, one to correspond with their exquisite taste for jaggernaut and quinine. It is not the fault of the artist that the lines of the picture were not finer. It was the fault of the engraver. Our special engraver has received a severe reprimand and has been instructed to sharpen his hatchet, and "jack knife" and hold himself in readiness to prepare a fine cut of a picture that our artist shall give him, representing the editors taking quinine from the doctor's medicine bag. Our artist and engraver have instructions to give attention to them in their juggernaut and quinine performances.

The perils of a freight brakeman's life are not exaggerated, but the adventure of John A Wocate, at present employed on a Philadelphia road, surpasses all previous experiences, at least so he claims, and admirably illustrates the nerve required in the business. "I was running out of New York some two years ago," he said last night, "when on one of the trips we stopped near a station, and I was ordered to go under a rear car and adjust a bit of axle machinery which was rubbing against the wheel. I had just fixed the thing when the train started off with a jerk, I was thrown heavily down, but my hand striking the connecting rod, by a mighty effort, I swung myself on to it. I couldn't understand why the train had started while I was working, but it had, and soon we were rushing along at a twenty-mile-an-hour-gait. Like a leech I clung to the rod, while all the world seemed turning around with me on the outside rim, and every second I was growing weaker and weaker. The fields went by in a blur of color, while the hurricane of wind threw pebbles into my face that cut like knives. I was just about to drop off. The next stop was still ten miles distant when I gathered my last strength and applied my will power. I had a strong will and mind, have always had in fact, and I concentrated every nerve on the accomplishment of my object. The sweat stood out on my face like beads with the strain, but all at once the train slowed up and stopped altogether. I fainted away and it was a day later when I woke up. Some strange feeling (it was my will power) had impelled the engineer to stop the train and thus I was saved. He had all along thought I was safe on board."—Inquirer.

Two men go down into a deep well for the purpose of repairing, and go by means of a rope attached to a box, and upon arriving at the bottom, commence investigating and mending, but ere long they realize that they are being affected by gas, and become alarmed and immediately turn their attention to the rope and box, their only safety, and only way of escape. Both getting into the box they give a signal to help above in order to be drawn up. It is heeded and they are brought safely up and out from the base and unclean gases. Like these men worked and repaired the well, deep down in the earth below the reach of the genial light of the sun and the balmy breezes of a pleasant summer day, so people obeying the Divine truth earn their bread by the sweat of their face, working and toiling at their business affairs on the earth, which is below heaven (in perfection) it may be said, like the bottom of the well beneath the surface of the ground. The men felt that they were affected by an atmosphere that was benumbing their senses and would kill them and clung to the way of escape, also by enlightenment through God, people realize they are sinners in his sight, and that the "god of this world, the prince of darkness and of the air" has so poisoned human nature that the spiritual atmosphere of hearts not enlightened is sufficient to benumb the spiritual senses so far as to bring death to both body and soul of such. Yet by the truth of God in Christ, obeyed and used, many are enabled to behold Christ the way of escape from the wrath and curse of God that is and will be visited upon the wicked. By using Christ's righteousness, many are made righteous and just. The Bible says: The soul that sinneth it shall die"; the wages of sin is death; and all that forget God, "shall be cast into hell." Under such realization the wise comprehending Christ the way of escape, flee to him, lay hold upon him and petition him to draw them into his favor even like the two men petitioned those above the well to draw them up to the safe plane and sunlight, and God answers those that thus seek him and come unto him, and draws them to the high plane of his friendship and love, through Christ "the Way." Christ is the way of escape from sin, the second death or hell.

Rubber Shoes unless worn uncomfortably tight, will often slip off the feet. To remedy this evil the offer a shoe with the inside of the heel lined with rubber. This clings to the shoe and prevents the Rubber from slipping off.

Call for the "Colchester"
"ADHESIVE COUNTERS" and you can walk, run or jump in them.
