

"The Bible on Wall Coatings."

"And behold if the plague be in the walls of the house with hollow streaks, greenish or reddish, then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house and shut up the house seven days. . . . And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off without the city into an unclean place."

This matter of looking to the sanitary nature of wall coatings seems to be considered of much importance of late. A supplement to the Michigan State Board of Health contains wall paper and kalsomine as being sanitary, pure, porous, permanent, economical and beautiful.

To each of the first five persons in every city and town, who write the Alabastine Company of Grand Rapids, Michigan, giving the chapter containing the above paragraph of scriptures, will be sent an order on the Alabastine dealer in the town for a package of Alabastine, enough to cover fifty square yards of wall two coats, tinted or white.

To test a wall coating, take small quantities of water, mix in an equal quantity of water, and if it does not set, when left in the dish over night, and finally form a stone like cement, without shrinking, it is a kalsomine, and dependent upon glue to hold it to the wall, the feature so strongly objected to by sanitarians.

Continuing this sanitary wall-coating reform the Tribune offices have been nicely decorated with Alabastine. The effect is pleasing, and the rooms are very sweet and clean. -Detroit Tribune.

Vassar, Wellesley, Smith, Holyoke, the Harvard Annex and Bryn Mawr have each had their commencement, and their intelligent graduates are all placed by the State among those who are unfit to be trusted with political rights; namely, children, idiots, lunatics, and felons in the prisons.

Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford is a strong advocate of daily exercise for girls. She does not care so much about its nature, so long as it is taken regularly. She believes that it is as much the duty of parents to insist upon a certain amount of exercise for their girls, as to insist upon proper clothing.

General Neal Dow, has a daughter in Nashua, New Hampshire, who has not been able to move from her chair for years, but has seen an indefatigable student, and has mastered French, German, Spanish, Russian and Greek. She recently performed the feat of repeating a long passage from the Greek Testament, verbatim, from memory, a month after she had read it. Miss Dow loses sight of her misfortunes in her love of study.

"The Churchman," speaking of the death of Father Damien, the leper priest, says that outside of the walls of Jerusalem is a leper hospital tended by deaconesses from the German religious houses. Year after year these heroic women, without pretensions, without any trumpeting of their work, almost unknown to the world, have waited upon lepers, while themselves literally dying by inches. Their courage has only come to light by the chance notice of travellers.

The Queen of Corea is no figure-head. She belongs to one of the greatest families of the country, and it is an open secret that she has at times her voice in councils of the king. She has an establishment of her own inside the palace grounds, and the king, the crown prince, and the queen have each their separate household. The queen dresses, of course, in the Korean costume. She wears fine silks, and has beautiful diamonds. She carries a chateleine watch, which is studded with diamonds, and smokes American cigarettes by the thousand.

The will of Hannah Lightfoot, a colored woman, was admitted to probate in Memphis, a short time ago, and revives the memory of an anti-bellum incident. She was born free, and had some little property. She loved and was beloved by a colored man, a slave. With great industry she added to her savings sufficient money to enable her to purchase her lover's freedom, and married him, receiving a bill of sale with him, which she carefully preserved. It is pleasant to know that she prospered in the worldly way, as she deserved, and left considerable property to her children.

A singing competition took place recently between some hundreds of London working girls, representing some nine clubs. The Pall Mall Gazette says: The evident anxiety of the girls to acquit themselves well in the performance of their part-songs was touching. The members of the youngest of the clubs—it had only been formed a few months, and all its members learned their songs after twelve hours' work in a sweats factory—had been quite sure that they would win the prize as long as they were down at Camberwell, where their own musical performances were the only "sweet sounds" they heard; but when they heard the members of other clubs on Saturday a great fear fell upon them, and they whispered to the lady-president that they would rather not sing if they might withdraw. They sang, however, and professor Thomas, who acted as judge, encouraged them greatly by kindly telling them that they prospered very well.

While in Canton I visited prisons, temples, pagodas, mills, shops, duck-hatchings, and everything of interest. To see the ducks I hired a boat, managed by three women, and spent over three hours on the river. I have had occasion to remark everywhere in my travels the decent behavior of women. One hardly expects much in a country where little girl babies are sometimes killed or sold into any kind of slavery because of the poverty of the mother. Here were three women who were born on a boat and whose whole life is spent on one, and yet they had as much decency and natural modesty as if they had received a Sunday-school education. A fine girl of sixteen sat on the deck of the boat, vigorously pulling her out in front of me, and smiling through a beautiful set of teeth. She wore wide trousers under a kind of sack or gown her feet were bare. Every time a breath of air filled her sack or trousers she instinctively pulled them down, just as a well-bred American girl would her frock, though there was not any more exposure than a well-formed ankle. Most of the large junks, I learned, had women captains.

Bobby and Willie twist nervously in their chairs for half an hour, when Willie observes: "Ma, do you think it's fair to punish both of us for what Bobby done?"—Elmira Telegram.

Prof. Bumpions—"It has been truthfully remarked that 'a little learning is a dangerous thing.'"

Sophomore (cotto voice)—"Wonder if professor realizes the peril he's in!"

Husband—"What are you so much interested in that paper?"

Wife—"I was reading one of those articles on how to get up a cheap dinner."

Husband—"Do you want to ruin me?"

By Installments. Woman's wit is a gossamer thread, and one who has been known to tip the scale when a logic argument, attached to a cable of logic, could not drag it down. Indeed, a grain of wit is sometimes worth more in the practical affairs of life than a pound of learning. Happy the warrior who is provided with both and therefore armed for all occasions. An exchange tells the story of a retort which was used by a young man who was a point of learning. Many of the first settlers in Illinois were rude in speech and manner. Money was not plentiful with them, and service was paid for in produce. Governor H. used to illustrate the characteristics of frontier life by a true story. One day there came to his office a young man accompanied by a young woman. "Do you the squire?" asked the youth. "Yes, sir." "How much do you charge?" "One dollar is the legal fee, sir." "Will you take your fee in beef-wax?" "Yes, if you can't pay cash." "Well, go ahead and tie the knot and I'll fetch in the wax." "No," said the squire, seeing a chance of amusing himself, "bring in the beef-wax first, and then I'll marry you." Reluctantly the youth returned to the yard where was hitched the horse upon which, Darcy and Joan fashion, the couple had ridden, and brought in the sack of wax. On being weighed, its value was found to be about fifty cents. "Wal," said the groom, "tie the knot and I'll fetch in the wax next week." "No, sir, I don't trust that against the rules of this office." "Slowly the disappointed youth turned to depart, saying, "Come Jane, let's go." "I say, mister," suggested Jane, moved by woman's wit, "can't you marry us as far as the wax will go?" "Yes, I can and will," replied the squire, laughing, and he did.

"We had some mind-reading at our party last evening. Johnny had a pin and the new minister tried to find it." "And did he succeed?" "Yes, he found it when he sat down."
