

WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1891.

R. F. SCHWEIER,

EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

OLD Intel the Chicago grain dealer is broken financially.

Gerready. Be as good as you can, for according to a Professor of Yale University, the long looked for Millennium, will begin with the beginning of 1890. Think of it, only 8 years till then.

Some eastern financier estimates the money value of the Delaware peach crop so large that if 60 cents profit is realized on each basket that may be marketed, that enough money will be put into the peach growers' pockets to buy the whole state.

The New Orleans Grand Jury investigation of the case of the lynching of the murderous Italian gang has been given to the public. They report no verdict against the people who executed the 11 Italians by Lynch process. Of the men lynched, 9 were naturalized American citizens. The 10th had fled or declared the intention of becoming an American and the 11th was the only one about whom Italy could enter an inquiry and his case is not clear.

The jury could not find a verdict against about 8000 people, who in one way or another participated in the lynching.

Child Murder.

Dr. Joseph Simme in a communication to the San Francisco Examiner says, in China I saw towers that were built for the special purpose of what is nothing short of child murder. Infanticide is practiced in every part of China, but especially in the interior and in the Lower districts. As soon as we get many miles from the coast it is usual to see near places of worship a small stone house, from ten to thirty feet high, with no door, but a hole on one side, reaching into a pit in the center. Children that parents wish to get rid of are thrown into this hole and quicklime soon consumes the lifeless little form. It is said that priests take charge of this cruel work. They have estimated that every year 200,000 female babies are brutally slaughtered in the Empire.

The "Pennsylvania Dutch."

A Correspondent in "America." I have lately passed through the Dutch part of Pennsylvania and have observed some very interesting things. I never thought of before. Apparently the Dutch are a people in reality they are a people and more Puritanistic than New Englanders were fifty years ago. They are as sharp as Yankees after money, more saving and more generous. They are more intelligent, independent and happy than they appear, and bashful before strangers, especially the ladies. Their other traits make them appear excitable and ebullient, yet they are the most social and comical people in America. Among them (if one understands their gibberish) one can hear more words, jokes and hearty laughs in a minute than in even the modern Greek or see hoch dieck. I now have learned that the Pennsylvanians, who are well acquainted in Germany, cling to their dialect in small rapid talk and the firing of a multiplicity of jokes. They are often derisive and scornful, yet their sense of humor is not less. They are more comical witty characters—real Yankees—in Pennsylvania than in all New England.

La Grippe Influx.

The prevalence of this epidemic disease, on two successive winters, has made many persons better acquainted with it than they desired to be. The disease was first accurately described in 1810, though it undoubtedly existed anterior to that time, and some medical writers claim that there were epidemics of it in 1811, and again in 1843.

The name influenza was given it by the Italian physicians, from the belief that it had proceeded in some way by the stars. While the name La Grippe was given by French physicians in the epidemic of 1803. In English, until the Italian term became adopted, it was known as catarrhal fever and epidemic catarrh.

Epidemics of influenza appear to have occurred in 1807, 1810, 1817; when the disease spread to America, in 1829, 1843, 1852, 1875, 1878, 1883, 1887, 1890, 1891, 1892, and in 1890 and '91. Some of these epidemics were very severe, others of a milder nature. In 1803, it was said half the population of Europe was affected.

CAUSE OF THE DISEASE.

Many efforts have been made to account for this disease. The Italians at one time attributed it to the influence of the stars; at another time to volcanic eruption. The idea has been brought forward that it is caused by an excessive amount of ozone in the air. By others, disturbed climatic condition, or miasma arising from the earth, have all been brought forward to explain the origin of the disorder. Cullen held that it was a contagious disease. This was denied generally until the present time, when the belief in its contagiousness is held by very many, though positive proof that it has been transmitted by inoculation is yet wanting. It is probably caused by some specific microbe which, possibly, flourishes equally well in the human body and in the air, or at least, is capable of multiplying in the air. These microbes doubtless leave the bodies of the sick, in the exhaled air, and by the winds are carried far and wide over continents. The disease is not caused by any condition of the soil or of the atmosphere, unless coldness, dampness and fithness of the air may be promoting causes. It is less than likely that these conditions simply cause a less vigorous condition of the general system, producing such states of the body as will promote the spread of the disease. It is caused by the drinking-water, for, if that were the case, it would be confined to certain localities, while on the contrary, it quickly spreads over whole continents.

The most charming Summer Resorts, of which there are over three hundred in Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota and the Peninsula of Michigan, along the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Nearly all are located near lakes which have not been fished out.

These resorts are easily reached by railway and range in variety from the "full dress for dinner" to the flannel-shirt costume for every meal. The finest shooting grounds in the Northwest are on and tributary to the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Nearly all are located near lakes which have not been fished out.

THE SIEGE OF SEBASTOPOL.

The exhibition to be given at Harrisburg commencing June 16.

The enterprising citizens of Harrisburg have decided to give an exhibition of the dependant open air exhibitions that proved such a gratifying success last year.

East Salem.

The fruit crop will no doubt be immense. East Salem is getting there, Samuel Schlegel's new house which is nearing completion will be as fine and cozy as any house in the county when finished.

John Winegardner has created a new barn on his lot west of town, commonly called Johnstown which is a great improvement to that end of the town.

Surgery in Day's Liver.

Johnson, Pa., May 7.—Surgeons A. J. Howe, of Cincinnati, and William Ranah, of Rockford, near this city, yesterday cut into the right side of 13 year old Ira Boose, at Rockford, to remove suppurated tumors from his liver.

Life of William Tecumseh Sherman, artist retired Gen.

By Major Fletcher Johnson, assisted by William General O. O. Howard, U. S. A. Hubbard Brothers, Philadelphia, 1891.

The public will greet with much interest this complete biography of the last of the great Union Generals. Sherman's autobiography, published years ago, was only a partial record of his career, and the appearance of the present volume, a full history of the famous soldier was lacking. In this work, however, every important scene in his eventful life is portrayed with graphic power; due prominence is given to his social and personal traits in times of peace; there is a compilation of many of his best letters, etc., and a closing touch of interest is added in the tributes and eulogies pronounced upon him since his death, and the estimates of his military genius and his personal character made by those who knew him best. Mr. Johnson has done his work as a historian well, giving a narrative that is at once coherent, complete, fascinating in interest, and evidently inspired by earnest admiration for his subject. General Howard, who was one Sherman's closest comrades, has reviewed the entire work, insuring its absolute accuracy in matters of military detail, and has written an introduction. The volume is profusely and elegantly illustrated with admirably executed portraits, war scenes, etc., and is not only an excellent specimen of the bookmaker's art, but is unquestionably the best biography of one of the greatest generals of modern times.

Ask Your Friends About It.

Your distressing cough can be cured. We know it because Kemp's Balsam within the past few years has cured so many coughs and colds in this community. Its remarkable sale has been won entirely by its genuine merit. Ask some friend who has used it what he thinks of Kemp's Balsam. There is no medicine so pure, none so effective. Large bottles 50c and $1 at all druggists.

Hold It to the Light.

The man who tells you confidentially just what will cure your cold, is prescribing Kemp's Balsam, this year. In the preparation of this remarkable medicine for coughs and colds no expense is spared to combine only the best and purest ingredients. Hold a bottle of Kemp's Balsam to the light and look through it, notice the bright, clear look; then compare with other remedies. Price 50c and $1.

Walnut Store Articles.

S. D. Kaufman, storekeeper at Walnut recently returned from the city with a new stock of goods and will sell at bottom prices. The following articles are on the list of saleables. Calico 5, 6, 7 and 8 cents; sugars, browns, dets; nearly white 5c; soft A. 5c; granulated 6 cents; Fish, Lake Herring $1.75 per quarter, Lake Shad $2 per quarter; White Fish, $1.75 per quarter, etc. Call and see for yourself. May 6, 91.

Farmers Alliance Women.

Two women who made themselves a national reputation in Kansas during the campaign of the farmers, Mrs. Diggs and Mrs. Lesse. They not only organized the female power as an element in politics, but kept the stump and made speeches. Mrs. Diggs is a member of the Farmers Alliance Legislature committee, and it is hardly an exaggeration to say that her word is law in the Legislature. Mrs. Lesse has retired to private life since the campaign closed, but Mrs. Laura Johns has taken her place, and is watching the Senate as Mrs. Diggs is the house. These women are all female suffragettes, of course. Mrs. Diggs is going to Washington to act as the correspondent of some Alliance newspaper during the session, and while there with aid of Senator Puffer and Alliance member, will start the suffrage movement anew.

Melancholy Objects.

Philadelphia Record May 8, 1891: There are many melancholy objects to be met with in an hour's walk in a great city. One of the most melancholy objects in a large city is a church that has been abandoned in the city and flood of population, and that having lost its sacred character, has been devoted to base and worldly uses. There are many such in Philadelphia, though this city has been unusually lenient in holding on to its old sanctuaries. The Episcopal church of the Covenant on Filbert street, in which for many years preached Rev. Richard Newton, father of the well-known Rev. Heber Newton, was ruined by the building of the Pennsylvania Railroad's elevated structure, and now the horses of the Adams Express Company stand about where formerly worshippers listened to the eloquent old preacher. Just above it is another abandoned church, a Reformed Presbyterian, which is for rent for storage or manufacturing purposes. What was formerly St. Philip's Church, on Spring Garden street, is now the Lutheran Temple and the witness of many strange rites. An old Spruce street church is now used as a lard factory, and there are a number about the city that have been turned into storage warehouses. Several of the churches in the central portion of the city, such as the First Presbyterian and St. Stephen's Episcopal, are now seeking to raise an endowment fund to preserve their historic structures from similar fates.

John Winegardner has created a new barn on his lot west of town, commonly called Johnstown which is a great improvement to that end of the town.

The Ideal creamery is in full blast and is receiving an average of over 3000 pounds of milk per day or 120 pounds of Butter per day, and the sound of the whistle makes the town feel proud of itself.
